NEWTON HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION DIPLOMAS PRESENTED TO 174 PUPILS CLASS OF 1910

The graduating exercises of the class of 1910, Newton High School, were held in the assembly hall of the Classical High School on Saturday afternoon, before a large audience of relatives and friends.

An interesting feature of the afternoon was the awarding of the Eliot prizes for composition by Dr. Spaulding, superintendent of schools. Miss Margaret Strong won first prize for an essay on "John Winthrop, His Character and Statesmanship." Miss Ruth Calder won second for a paper on "Colonial Taverns and Turnpikes," and Allen S. Raymond received honorable mention for his treatment of the subject of "Grove Cleveland, Servant of the People." Mrs. F. B. Hornbrook presented Lloyd B. Marks with a medal for the best essay on the Merit System, awarded by the civil service.

The class history by Miss Emmons and the class oration by Paul H. Smart are given in full in this issue of the Graphic. One of the interesting papers was that of Elise C. Dodge on the selection of the colors of the school. Diplomas were presented to 174 graduates.

The class hymn was written by Alice G. Boyden and the music by Helen Gilmore.

A PECULIAR CASE.

A young girl who was found wandering in Nonantum square early Monday morning and who could give the police no definite information regarding herself was later found to be Edith Packer, the 13-year-old daughter of Eugene Packer of 14 Mt. Vernon street, Reading. The mystery was cleared through telephone messages sent out by the local police. One of these reached Chief Leggett of Reading as he was on the point of sending out descriptions of the missing girl who left her home at 10 o'clock Sunday morning.

Mrs. Packer came to Newton and was overjoyed to find her daughter. She said that the girl often left home on trips but always came back at night. The family is well known in Reading, where Mr. Packer is a plumber. The mother said that attacks of catarrh had rendered the girl very deaf and slightly afflicted mentally but that she was harmless. Her condition was such that she could not attend school.

When first taken in charge by the police here the girl would not talk at all but later she whispered a few answers to questions. She said then that her name was Edith Barker, the daughter of Eugene Barker, of 10 Main street, Waverley. There is no such street in that town. The girl readily gave the names of her sisters and brother and of her school teacher but maintained that they all resided in Waverley.

When found she had $11 in her pocket and it developed that she had taken this money from a house in Reading where she had been making a call with her mother.

THE FOURTH ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO HOW THE DAY WAS CELEBRATED IN THE YEAR 1810

The issue of the Columbian Centinel of July 7, 1810 has been brought to the attention of the editor and is interesting reading, particularly as it gives an account of the celebration of Independence Day of that year in Boston and other places in this vicinity.

A description of the decorations in "Faneuil Hall" (notice the spelling) begins with the following effusive sentences:

"The 'Cradle of American Independence' was on this occasion most superbly decorated not with empty show and unmeaning glitter but with ornaments designed by Patriotism and executed by Taste. Every object that was presented to the eye was calculated to affect the heart and to inspire those exalted sentiments that dignify the human character and consecrate a national jubilee to the noblest of purposes. Here we beheld upwards of 600 disciples of WASHINGTON assembled in honor of the event which has no parallel in the history of Man. This assemblage is not too bold to be true. We trust in GOD, that its consequences will not degrade it to the rank of common revolution—May the spirit of our fathers enable us to preserve our freedom with vestal purity, and in duration of existence commensurate with the period of time.

"To render justice to the decorations of Faneuil Hall, powers of description to which we feel inadequate are necessary—the hope, however, that a humble attempt to sketch the most prominent parts of the elegant and interesting scene will afford some gratification to such of our readers as had not an opportunity to witness the brilliant spectacle."

In another part of the four page paper, is this item:

"Boston, Thursday, July 5, 1810. "This Anniversary of the Declaration of Independence has been celebrated with more religious rites, and with greater festive pomp than for many years past—a strong demonstration that international spirit still exists in the People, however the Rulers of the nation may deserve the taunts of Oowardice and tame submission which have been so freely thrown at them from the leading democratic papers in the United States."

Another interesting item:

"AT DEDHAM. We learn, that the Disciples of WASHINGTON of that and neighboring towns made high holiday. They had a procession, an elegant and appropriate Oration by Theron Metcalf Esq., and a public dinner; after which they exhibited their feelings and sentiments in the following toasts, and apt quotations—"

Some of the toasts of which there were many are interesting today, such as:

"The Day—May the virtues that achieved our Independence brighten as its dangers increase and so render it perpetual by their triumphant reward."

"The President of the United States—May no foreign partialities nor party prejudices disgrace the successors of the immortal WASHINGTON."

"Thomas Jefferson—His promises were as he then was, mighty, But his performance as he now is—nothing."

"The Treasury of the United States—May its surplus when next it overflows be better applied than to purchase useless territory of those who have no title."

"American Manufactures—Reared by the warmth of general prosperity—not forced by heat from the country."

flagration of commerce."

The observance in Boston is described as follows:

"In Boston—the return of the day was announced by numerous salutes, the ringing of bells, the display of flags and the congratulations of the citizens—the salutes were repeated at noon and at sunset."

"The Governor was escorted into town from Cambridge by a troop of Middlesex Cavalry and about 11 o'clock the Executive Procession was formed at the State House and under escort of the Independent Cadets moved to Charles street, where the Chaplain of the Legislature performed divine service, and where an Oration was delivered by Daniel W. Lincoln, Esq. The procession then returned to the Council Chamber and partook of a public collation."

"At noon the following MUNICIPAL PROCESSION was formed at the State House, viz:

"In this order this numerous and respectable body proceeded to the Old South Meeting House—where after sacred music, a Prayer was offered to the Throne of Grace by the Rev. Mr. Channing, in which fervor of piety was united with ardor of true patriotism, and an Oration was delivered by Alexander Townsend, Esq., at the request of the town, in which the feelings, manners and principles which produced the independence of our country were ingeniously and ably portrayed."

"A democratic Procession was formed near the State House about 2 o'clock with a miniature Ship fully manned and rigged, drawn by 15 horses and various Machines of Handicrafts and Manufactures at work, flags, etc., and proceeded to Bunker's hill in Charlestown, where a dinner was provided."

"The Federal Procession which went to Faneuil hall had a dinner for 641 persons after which many toasts were given and emphasized by can-

non. Some of the toasts were as follows:

"The Memory of Washington—May his successors no longer sicken at his fame, asperse his character, nor disregard his counsels. Three guns."

"The President and Congress of the United States—More energy to one, and more virtues to the other. Three guns."

"Our Navy—A speedy termination to its inactive state—May this month to our treasury soon turn into a winged defender of the American hive 17 guns."

"The Town of Boston—First in dignity in the Commonwealth; first among equals in political rights—may it continue first in examples of patriotic virtues and maintain the true principles of independence."

"Faneuil Hall—May it never rock to sleep the Independence it cradled"

"The Hall was completely cleared before 8 o'clock, the company having repaired to the Common to witness a brilliant display of well executed FIREWORKS."

Provided by the Committee of Arrangements of the Federal Celebrations, for the gratification of their fellow citizens, and executed by Captain Burbeck before at least 15,000 pleased and gratified spectators. The evening was unusually favorable for pyrotechnical exhibitions."

"It is computed that not less than 20,000 persons visited Faneuil hall on Tuesday and Wednesday, of which the most amiable, intelligent and interesting Sex formed a large proportion; and who expressed high satisfaction at the elegant, dignified and appropriate decoration, and at the general economy of the Hall—the amplest reward for the pains and expenses bestowed upon them."

"His Excellency the Governor gave a grand dinner on the 4th at his seat

BEAUTIFUL MARION

The members of the Massachusetts Press Association and their ladies had a most delightful outing this week in the beautiful town of Marion. The party left Boston on Saturday afternoon on a special car provided by the New Haven road as a compliment to the association and reached Marion in the middle of the afternoon. Here they were met by members of the Marion Improvement Association with automobiles, which transported them to the Hotel Shipman on the shores of the harbor. The stay of the party in Marion was marked with many courtesies from the citizens of the town. The Flin-de-Sleele Club threw open its clubhouse to the members, the Improvement Association provided a dance on Saturday evening and in many other ways looked after the comfort and pleasure of the editors. On Sunday many took the opportunity to visit the Rogers Memorial Church at Fairhaven, while others enjoyed a sail in the beautiful harbor of Marion. Monday Col. Harry E. Converse, one of the public-spirited citizens of the town, tendered his beautiful steam yacht "Parchment" to the association for a trip about Buzzard's Bay. Needless to say the invitation was accepted by all, even at the risk of some seasickness, as the southwesterly breeze had kicked up quite a swell. The yacht trip gave ample opportunity to witness the beauties of Buzzard's Bay for a summer resort and the claims of the natives that there is to be the most noted summer place in the country seemed to be substantiated by the evidence. Many beautiful places were seen, none more delightfully situated, however, than that of Col. Converse on Charles Point, called "The Moorings," and which has been awarded the Harvesset prize by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for the most beautiful large estate in Massachusetts. The trip down the bay in the teeth of the wind, with a fairly good sea running, was most pleasant. Across the entrance to New Bedford harbor, a change in the course, put the yacht in the trough of the sea and the resulting roll was most unsatisfactory to a few, but the party proved themselves, as a rule, good sailors. The party landed at Padanaram in the town of Dartmouth, where the Marion Association had provided a most generous clambake for the newspaper men. While the barge was being made ready, the New Bedford Yacht Club opened its clubhouse and its conveniences were much appreciated. The clambake itself was something long to be remembered, for many of the party had never attended such an affair. Clams, lobsters, fish, sausages, fritters, tripe and other good things were served in abundance until all had cried "enough." The return trip in the yacht was over all too soon, and the generous hospitality of Col. Converse was but a pleasant memory. On Tuesday morning the New Bedford and Onset Street Railway Company kindly furnished a special car and a trip was made thru the woods and smiling country to Monument Beach, with stops at various places including a sight of the work on the Cape Cod canal at Buzzard's Bay station. Tuesday afternoon the return was made to Boston, where the party broke up with many expressions of pleasure over the experiences of the trip.

A word must be added of the splendid care given the party by Landlord C. W. Ripley of the Hotel Shipman. His pleasant hotel, situated on the shore of the harbor, furnished a delightful view from its piazzas, and the rooms and table were excellent. The fine roads in and about Marion make it a delightful trip for automobile parties and the distance, fifty miles from Boston, is about right for a good ride.

Marion, itself, is worth more than passing mention. In many respects it reminds one of Newton, with its fine roads, its well kept estates and beautiful trees. It has been called "Little Newport" and certainly deserves that title, for its shores are lined with fine estates. On the harbor itself with many others are the residences of Alderman C. W. Leonard of Newtonville, Mr. W. M. Bullivant and Mrs.

H. M. Knowlton of West Newton. The town has a valuation of over five millions and has good water, gas, electricity and a sewer system. The harbor furnishes fine and safe boating facilities and good yachting, probably the best in the world can be had in the adjoining bay.

FLOWERS AND FLAGS.

The 12th annual distribution of plants, flowers and flags by the Boston Floral Emblem Society to the children of the poorer districts of Boston will take place Monday, July 4, from the Floral Emblem Society's tent on Boston Common, near the soldiers' monument. For the past 12 years it has been the aim of this society to promote a more rational observance of our National Independence Day, and the method adopted in this distribution of flowers and flags has brought sunshine and happiness into many houses where patriotism and the fragrance of flowers is little known.

That our work may attain the success it has met in past years and advance the popular movement of today, of a safe and sane Fourth, we again ask the co-operation of all interested people and especially the florists. Flowers sent to the North and South stations, marked Floral Emblem Society, care Armstrong Transfer Co., will be delivered free. Friends out of town can have flowers forwarded by train free of charge if secretary is notified in time to arrange for the same.

Contributions of money however small will be appreciated and may be sent to the treasurer Mrs. Lucie Stuart Wadsworth, 112 Huntington avenue, Boston.

BANKS—VERNON.

The wedding of Miss Pauline De Vere Vernon, the daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Vernon, and Mr. D. George Banks of Newton, took place last evening at the home of the bride, 47 Elliot street, Watertown. Rev. Charles H. Day, pastor of the Baptist Church, Watertown, officiated. The bride wore white messaline trimmed with Irish lace and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. She was accompanied by Miss Laura Dermon of Sudbury as maid of honor, wearing all-over lace over under dress of pink silk and carrying daybreak pinks. Mr. George Wilson of Newton was the best man and the ushers were Messrs. Hathaway Coon, Harvard '13, and Walter Moore of Watertown. A reception followed until 9:30 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Banks being assisted in receiving by the bride party and Mrs. Vernon. The house was handsomely decorated with roses, daisies and mountain laurel. After a wedding trip to Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Banks will reside at Cambridge, where they will be at home after Sept. 15.

The bride is a graduate of the Framingham Normal School '07 and has been principal for the past two years of the Jefferson School at Weymouth.

FOLGER—WEDGER.

The wedding of Miss Alice Dodge Wedger, the daughter of Mr. W. L. Wedger of Newtonville, and Mr. George Arthur Folger of Melrose Highlands, took place Wednesday evening at 7:45 o'clock at the home of the bride, 45 Clyde street, which was decorated in green and white for the occasion. Rev. F. W. Hamilton, D. D., of Tufts College performed the ceremony. The bride, who was unaccompanied, wore white satin with drapery of Spanish lace and pearl garniture and a tulle veil. The ushers were Messrs. Roy Keith, Dartmouth '08; Raymond Hunting, Amherst '12; and Stanley Forbes Duncan, Tufts Medical School.

A reception followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Folger being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Wedger and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Folger. After an extended wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Folger will reside at 907 Franklin street, Melrose Highlands, where they will be at home after Oct. 15.

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by James H. Hutchings and Emily C. Hutchings, wife of the said James H. Hutchings, in her own right, to Lena J. Holmes, dated April 17th, 1909, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Book 3431, Page 473, and for breach of condition thereof, will be sold upon the premises on Wednesday, the 27th day of July, 1910, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed, namely:

A certain piece or parcel of land with the buildings thereon situated on the Norwesterly corner of Grove Street and Seminary Avenue in Newton; being Lot numbered nineteen (19) on "Plan of land in Auburndale belonging to Norman S. Wood, E. S. Smith, Surveyor," dated December 6th, 1895, and recorded with Middlesex South District Deeds, Plan Book 86, Plan 38; and said Lot is bounded NORTHWESTERLY by said Grove Street, there measuring sixty-five (65) feet; NORTHEASTERLY by Lot numbered eighteen (18) on said Plan, there measuring one hundred and fifty-six (156) feet; SOUTHEASTERLY by Lot numbered twenty (20) on said Plan, there measuring seventy-five (75) feet; and SOUTHWESTERLY by said Seminary Avenue, there measuring one hundred and thirty-five (135) feet, containing ten thousand (10,000) square feet, more or less, according to said Plan.

Also a certain parcel of land, being Lot numbered 20 on said Plan, and bounded NORTHWESTERLY by said Seminary Avenue; SOUTHEASTERLY by Lot numbered 21 on said Plan; NORTHEASTERLY by part of Lot numbered 17 and 28 on said Plan; and NORTHWESTERLY by lots numbered 18 and 19 on said Plan; together with the right of passing and re-passing over said Seminary Avenue to and from said Grove Street.

Said premises will be sold subject to a mortgage for Five Thousand Dollars ($5000) held by the Braintree Savings Bank and all taxes and other municipal assessments.

Three Hundred Dollars ($300) will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time of sale.

POLICE NOTES.

A broken tire on the police patrol wagon nearly caused a serious accident early Sunday morning. The vehicle was descending a steep hill in West Newton when one of the rubber tires on a front wheel snapped, the broken end striking one of the houses. The animal reared and plunged but Driver John Roche managed to keep his team under control until the wagon officer jumped out and seized the bits. The wagon answered so many calls Saturday night and yesterday that it was thought it would be necessary to hire a span of horses to replace the tired animals owned by the department.

READ FUND PICNIC.

The annual Read Fund Picnic held at Norumbega Park on Wednesday was attended by about 850 children, who thoroughly enjoyed the beautiful day, with the many attractions of the park. The free use of the merry-go-round kept the children busy until lunch time, when Caterer Osgood gave them a most substantial lunch of sandwiches, doughnuts, bananas, cake, ice cream and lemonade. A good show in the open air theatre followed and it was a tired crowd that filled the 10 special cars to return at 5 o'clock. The picnic was in charge of Master F. W. Chase of the Bigelow School and he was assisted by Sergeant Clay and a squad of police.

The Pip and the Slip.

Too much notice had done the trick.

Little Maimie got a pain in her ankle and had to go to bed.

The family physician and his top hat called and prescribed a pill. Maimie's mother said very well, but the family physician did not know Maimie, and she was quite sure Maimie would not take the pill. The family physician said he would make it a sweet pill, but Maimie's mother replied that so long as it was a pill it would be no use.

Then the family physician was struck with a brilliant idea. The pill should be carefully concealed in the center of a preserved pear and sent up to little Maimie to eat.

An hour later Maimie's mother went to see how her sweetest dear was going on. She appeared to be going on excellently.

"And did you get out all her pear?" inquired the fond mother.

"Yes, mumsie," replied the little darling, "all but the nasty seed."

There's many a slip 'twixt the pear and the pip.—London Answers.

Bituminous Coal.

The first bituminous coal mined in the United States, states the United States geological survey, was taken from what is usually termed the Richmond basin, a small area in the southeastern portion of Virginia, near the city of Richmond. This basin is situated on the eastern margin of the Piedmont plateau, thirteen miles above Tidewater, on the James river. It lies in Goochland, Henrico, Powhatan and Chesterfield counties. The coal beds are much distorted, and the coal is of rather low grade when compared with that from other districts with which it has to come into competition. The occurrence of coal was known in the Richmond basin as early as 1700, and in 1780 shipments were made to some of the northern states. At present what little coal is produced in this field is for local consumption only.—Scientific American.

Movement of Icebergs.

In the investigation of the currents round the coast of Newfoundland it has been observed that there is at times a wide difference in the direction of the drift of icebergs and that of the surface currents and that of the bottom ice, which, having no great depth, is governed in its motions by the surface currents and the winds, whereas the icebergs, the larger part of which are submerged to a great depth, follow only the movement of the ocean water as a whole and are uninfluenced by the winds. In consequence a huge berg may often be seen majestically maintaining its slow advance in opposition to the wind and across the general motion of the fields of flat ice surrounding it. The sailors often take advantage of this fact by mooring their vessels to an iceberg in order to prevent a drift to leeward.—Philadelphia Record.

Hunting the Kangaroo.

When brought to bay the kangaroo jumps like a flash for the hunter's chest and tries to crush it in with his fore feet. To prevent this each man wears across his breast a two or three inch thick matting. Armed with a spear, with a club attachment at the other end, they ride upon swift horses into a herd. With the agility and equanimity of circus riders they stand erect upon their horses and use their spears and clubs.

The kangaroo is able to jump clear over a horse. As the game is bagged it is skinned, and the skin is stretched on the ground and pegged down to prevent shrinkage. The flesh furnishes meat for the camp. Each man places his private mark upon his booty, and when they have 100 apiece they return back to civilization.

Why He Searched.

The old man had evidently dropped something in the muddy road, and he began searching for it. In three minutes about thirty strangers had joined in the search, and every additional minute brought additional searchers, till at last one, bolder than the rest, plucked up heart and spoke:

"What are you looking for?" he inquired.

"My friend," mumbled the old man, "I have dropped a piece of taffy candy."

"But, great Scott," cried another of the crowd angrily, "why do you go looking for it when it will be covered with dirt?"

"Because, my inquisitive friend," replied the old man, "my false teeth are sticking to that taffy."

Strange Hiding Place.

False teeth are occasionally used for secretive purposes. An eccentric old lady boasts of a roof plate which consists of two thin sheets of gold between which a miniature copy of her will is inserted. In a similar manner a dyer preserves a prescription which he declares he would not disclose for a large sum.—London Muff.

Envious.

"Just think of it," said the student of immigration. "Many men who come to this country cannot write their own names."

"Yes," answered Mr. Pinchpenny, "and when I get down my check book on the first of the month I am inclined to envy them."—Washington Star.

Fixing the Break.

"They were both broken up by their separation."

"But I understand they've effected a reconciliation and are now re-paired."—St. Louis Star.

There is no teacher like necessity; it has been the making of man; it wakes up his dormant faculties and stimulates to action his latent talents.

She was 73 years of age and was married to Dr. Marcy in 1863. At that time she was a resident of Somersworth, N. H. The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 180 Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

LOGGES.

On the grounds of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Vinig on Maple avenue, Newton, Tuesday evening, a lawn party and barn dance was given under the auspices of Summer P. Lawrence Rebekah Lodge. There was a good attendance of members and friends and the program consisted of an entertainment for the children in the afternoon, supper and refreshments, dancing in the barn, music by Marie Grosse, a burlesque, gypsy fortune telling and a grab bag.

We are especially pleased to note that our High School boys had no games scheduled for Memorial Day. It showed deference to the day which it richly deserves but which astonishingly few seem to think of. In a very few years more the veterans will be all gone and their persons will be but a memory and their deeds be told only in history.—Waltham Free Press Tribune.

Diplomatic.

The late Lord Savile used to say that high diplomats had always to be on their guard against intriguing women, mainly Russian agents, who would use any wife to extract information. During the Russo-Turkish war, when Europe was always on the verge of a crisis and Russian statesmen were most anxious to know what England would do under given circumstances, a lady came up to him suddenly at a ball and said:

"I hear that the Russians have made a forced march and entered Constantinople," hoping, no doubt, that he would be surprised into some indiscreet expression.

He merely replied:

"Indeed! And I suppose the sultan has conferred on them the order of the Turkish bath?"

The lady continued gravely:

"And they say in Paris that if England does not interfere the eastern question is settled in favor of Russia."

"And that," replied his excellency, "is, I suppose, the new judgment of Paris."

The Raising of Rice.

The cultivation of rice extends back into the dim past, and there are no authentic records as to when it first began. Evidence points, however, to the Chinese having been among the earliest people to cultivate it, and such great value was attached to it that the annual ceremonial sowing of important plants inaugurated by the Emperor Chingnong so far back in the past as 2800 B. C. the rice had to be sown by the emperor himself, while the four other plants of the ceremony might be sown by the princes of his family. In India rice has been cultivated from time immemorial. It was introduced at an early period into Syria, Egypt and other parts of northern Africa. In more modern times rice has been sown in Spain, France and Italy, the first cultivation in the last named country being stated to have been near Pisa in 1468. The plant is believed to have been introduced into America in 1647, when Sir William Berkeley raised a crop of sixteen bushels from half a bushel of seed.

NEWTON CENTRE PLAYGROUND NOTES.

The "Youth's Companion" for July 14 is to have a special article on our playground, recommending the plans to other communities.

The Civic Federation is going to offer good prizes for the best photographs of Newton Beautiful, prizes for buildings and prizes for landscapes. One of those last certainly ought to go to a negative taken on the playground. Are there more beautiful trees anywhere than those willows?

Jack Cummings won the boys' Mason School tennis tournament by defeating Willard Rice in the finals, 6-3, 6-4. The tournament was a great success, there being 30 boys entered and many matches were extremely close and well played.

The Young Americans won the championship of the Junior League by defeating all their opponents in the league. The team was made up: Unice, c.; Armstrong, p.; Beecher, lb.; Maxwell, 2b.; D. Foley, s.; Richards, 3b.; Goodwin, 1. f.; Monigan, c. f.; A. Foley, r. f.

The All-Newton Baseball League is being formed, open to any team composed of boys under 17 years of age. Managers will please notify Mr. Howard as soon as possible that the schedule may be started after the Fourth of July.

Flag Drill! Let no one forget the flag drill on the morning of the Fourth. All the children in town should take part in this event and should gather at the playground at 10 o'clock sharp, the beating of the drum being the signal for gathering. Let all parents encourage the children in this new feature of our Fourth.

The meets start promptly at 9:30.

POLICE NOTES.

Patrolman James A. Mills was given a hearing Wednesday morning by Mayor Hatfield on charges preferred by Lieut. Robert S. Harrison, in which it is alleged Mills neglected to properly investigate a case after being ordered to do so by a superior officer. The original complaint was made by a citizen living on Grant avenue, Newton Centre. On the night of June 2 this man telephoned to the police that a man was acting in a suspicious manner near his home. Mills was notified to investigate and arrived there after midnight. After he had filed his report the citizen again called up to say that he and members of his household had watched Mills through a window and that the officer had not even taken the trouble to cross the street and make a proper search, although the suspect was there at the time. Mills denies this. He has been tried on charges twice before.

CLASS HISTORY

WRITTEN BY MISS DOROTHY S. EMMONS

It has been said of Edward Everett Hale that he could write the most interesting history of bygone days, for the simple reason that when noteworthy events were lacking he would draw upon his imagination to create marvellous and unheard-of incidents with which to entertain his readers. Would that I might be allowed the same privilege, for I fear some of our history may seem uninteresting to those who have not played an active part in it.

There are very few of our class today, I am sure, who could give a lucid account of that far-away period in which, to quote the class of 1907, we figured as just having graduated from "the age of long dresses and go-carts, and having arrived at the stage of pitifully bashful and extremely green young men and women." But we have been nevertheless we had the honor of being the largest infant class that ever entered the austere portals of the Newton High School. We immediately showed that we could wield other implements besides rattles, for with his marvellous manipulations of the tennis racquet Hall won for us the tennis championship.

As became children of such tender years, we had an unconquerable weakness for ice cream; and how we used to crowd around that ice cream cart at recess! Each one clamoring for his favorite color—white, brown or pink! After we had consumed the cool delicacy (at the risk of our constitutions), we had a fixed habit of going the rounds of our intimate acquaintances to borrow ten cents, wherewith to pay for our indulgence. Those were good old days! Our debts, as well as our cares, weighed lightly upon us. "But today, for tomorrow we die," was one of our mottoes.

However, in spite of the trials and tribulations of every day life (including those five weeks' reports), we succeeded in electing our class officers and soon began to feel right proud of our school.

Thus a year slipped by, and as yet no budding genius had appeared. The next fall we returned to become sophomores—and boy, small the freshmen did seem! How helplessly they wandered thru the maze of corridors, on a quest almost as full of hardships as that of the Holy Grail—the quest of their respective rooms. We never made such ludicrous mistakes! At least, if we did, it was long ago in the freshman existence, considered no doubt as prehistoric.

Our class officers were chosen and a class pin selected. As this was the very best pin a class ever had, it was but fitting that it should be worn by the very best class that ever was!

Again the championship in tennis was won for us by Woods and we rejoiced over the fact that the football, baseball and track championships came to Newton, as in the year before. At the class meet, however, we were doomed to disappointment. We, the sophomores, came forth from the contest with a goose egg!

In December, 1907, the school lost a kind friend and beloved teacher, Mr. George. Although most of us had known him only thru our upper classmates, nevertheless we realized what a powerful man had passed from among us. To Mr. Thomas, our class owes a hearty vote of thanks for the interest and patience with which he has aided us in the classroom, the debating clubs and on our school papers.

During our sophomore year Mr. Adams went abroad and Mr. Davis filled admirably the place of head master. In the spring of 1908 several enterprising girls of our class organized a baseball team, which, under the unparalleled coaching of Louis, did some excellent work. Unfortunately there was no other team with which to compete, although I believe there was some talk as to the advisability of challenging some of our baseball stars. No other team was needed, however, to make things exciting! Why, if every other time the pitcher did not throw a curve and disable some of the fielders, the girl at the bat would make wild fun of the air, and if by chance the ball happened in the way of the waving hat, the aforesaid girl would utter an ear-splitting shriek, throw her hat, endangering the life of the individual who held catcher's position, and race to first—on a foul! I might add that there were no noses or arms broken, but that would take away some of the professional air.

Meanwhile the name of 1910 was beginning to appear in the Review—a certain Smart boy being the courageous pioneer to explore the field of literature. Finding that no noticeable harm was received from dropping manuscript into that mysterious looking Review box, where by some unseen mechanism the material goes thru a trying process (not a drying process, though you might think so), and then appears in awesome black and white on the pages of the Review, other aspiring individuals tried their luck, but with less success.

Another year had passed. Then with brave hearts we reappeared upon the field to assume the duties of college exams and increase our social functions. With brave hearts, I say, for did we not have candy sales and Mr. Marshall's proverbial corns and doughnuts (three for five), to fall back upon when the horizon loomed dark before us and our hard-worked brains demanded nourishment?

We elected our class officers and then our well meaning treasurer devised dandy laid plans whereby each member of the class should offer up small sums of 25 cents regularly. Then the tax leaped to 50 cents! But, this being our parting gift to afford the seniors well earned refreshment, we gave willingly, for we knew that the same good deed would be done for us this year.

Feeling the pressing need of oratorical ability the girls formed a debating club, which bade fare to rival that of our masculine friends, though the latter important individuals declined to admit it.

In March, 1909, occurred the girls' first annual gymnastic meet, under the management of Miss Shephardson and Miss Westgate. The enthusiasm with which the girls took up the project is cited by the instance of one of our usually sober and sedate young maidens, who knowing that she was to be in the relay race to work up her speed punctually and faithfully every morning took a gallop up and down Church street, thereby affording the neighbors much amusement and limbering up her joints! As a reward for her training, the Juniors won the relay race! In fact we won about everything and the meet closed with 80 points in our favor, the seniors next with 30 points.

The girls' hockey team, defeated Radcliffe, an exceptionally worthy feat, and on the Clavin field our old rivals, Brookline, were obliged to yield us the football championship.

All too soon our junior year was left behind. And now we entered upon the last year of our sojourn in this school. A year by far the most successful and enjoyable of our whole course. What if our lessons were rather too long or hard for our person, our fort? Success comes not to him who waits for an inspiration! This year we began to realize how much our teachers have done to prepare us for the greater tasks of life. Let me, in behalf of the class of 1910, extend to you, our teachers, a heartfelt word of appreciation and thanks for the services so unselfishly rendered us.

There is a great Doubt (doubt) who stands for our class president, and in these days of rapid progress and new thoughts we should have had difficulty in keeping pace with other schools had we not secured for our vice-president a small Wing propeller. And with the occasional aerial flights of our secretary, Mildred Clark, a champion both in literature and in the running high jump, we feel well prepared to challenge even the Wright brothers themselves. Of course the money in the treasury has increased while basking 'neath the golden glow radiating from our hockey star, Hopkins, so you see that there is just cause for our being the finest class that ever graduated from this school!

This year, owing to the oratorical ability of the boys of the debating club, we were enabled to hold two debates with outside schools. The first with Everett High School and the second with Brookline High. In both debates the wreath of victory was accorded our opponents, but the boys have shown what excellent work can be done in this line, and we sincerely hope that our successors will carry on the club.

The French and German clubs prospered under 1910 management and the orchestra entertained us in the hall one morning. Especially fortunate have we been in listening during our course to helpful and entertaining talks by ex-Gov. Long, Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, Bishop Lawrence and I could keep on with a list as interesting as it is long.

With the opening of the Technical High School last fall the number of students in this building decreased to such an extent that we, the seniors, were deprived of that coveted Wednesday morning privilege, so dear to the hearts of our predecessors, of gracefully ascending these few steps and seating ourselves with solemn dignity upon this platform, from which lofty height to gaze patronizingly over the sea of uplifted faces below, where ardent admiration and due reverence should be depicted. So, if today we appear a little bashful, you will understand that it is our first appearance upon the stage!

One bright day in the early fall a mystic message summoned us to the athletic field. And what do you suppose greeted our vision upon arriving? Merely a man and a camera! But how worried the young ladies looked! "Does my hair look all right? Are you sure my collar is straight?" and even the youth's hand sought his beloved necktie and smoothed up his classic pompadour. Then the angelic expressions dawned for a moment suddenly changed and What happened when the camera man approached the grandstand high? With marshal step and stiffened back, There rose a joyous cry! And as the man strode back and forth in fancy black felt "dip" These naughty children thumped the steps.

In our school teams this year there have been several stars whose radiant brains have shone so brilliantly that all opposing teams have notably been dazzled by the splendor. At any rate, when Hopkins beamed upon them, we won the hockey championship, and the championship in football came to us, without doubt, because of the halo surrounding Gallagher and his sturdy followers. Again the triangular meet was won by Newton, and three cheers for those who helped us win the class meet! What heavenly harmony was produced by the excellent rendering of those cymbals and clear-toned bells! Much slumbering musical talent was thereby aroused, as were also many un-fending individuals seated within convenient hearing distance! The girls' basketball team became the champions of the school under the good captaincy of Emily Wellington, who, like her famous namesake, the Duke, enjoys an active part in the fray! Not to be outdone the boys organized a basketball team, and for the first time in several years Newton, led by Captain Wood, 1910, rejoiced over basketball victories.

The other day while perusing some dust-covered magazines in the dim recesses of the attic, I came upon a thin, sad-looking manuscript, which I discovered had been in its youthful days a copy of the Review, and I smiled to think how much larger, more interesting and altogether finer the magazine has become within the last few years and especially within the last year. But what could you expect with a Smart editor, and 11 out of the staff of 14 from our illustrious class? At the 11th hour (although it was nearer half past eleven) we decided to edit an annual, and as some of us probably know, it has meant a great deal of thought and work added to the regular duties. However, under our editor and his assistants, the project was very successfully put thru.

Our class assembly passed off enjoyably for all who attended it, but the reception was the never-to-be-forgotten social event of the year. The fair maidens arrayed in the long-tailed-of-reception dresses made one think of so many dainty flowers fresh from the garden, only more likely they were fresh from the hands of the long-suffering dressmaker. The youths were also prepared for the fray and the hall was ingeniously trimmed with our green and white.

With photographs, exams and essays our last few weeks have been filled to overflowing, and now, as we look back upon the four years so pleasantly spent together, we realize that privileges have been ours—how much we have lost, which in vain we regret. How much attained, for which henceforth we must render an account of our stewardship, for as is the measure of privilege, so is the measure of responsibility.

As the last hour strikes, it tells not of the completion of the history of the class of 1910, but announces the beginning of a new chapter—an entrance into a larger, broader world—and with firm resolve to do our best, with steadfast friendship for one another, so go we forth—and God-speed!

If All Housekeepers Knew the Advantages of the

Crawford Ranges

few others would be sold

In the saving of time, trouble and labor and in superior cooking ability, no other range can compare with them.

The Single Damper (patented) is the only perfect fire and oven control; one motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check," and the range does the rest.

The Two Hods in the base (patented) is a wonderful trouble-saving feature. One Hod for ashes, instead of the old, clumsy ash pan; the other Hod for coal.

The Oven with its cup-joint flues is heated all over alike; no "cold corners," no "scorching spots."

The Patented Grates save trouble and money.

Auxiliary Gas Ranges at the end or above the range, if desired.

Ask the Crawford agent to show you and write us for circulars.

FRESH AIR CAMP.

The fresh air camp of the Salvation Army off Waltham street, West Newton, was formally opened for the season Monday when 50 poor city children and several mothers went there in special cars. This party will remain there eight days, and the ninth will be devoted to cleaning up. On the 10th day an excursion of 100 mothers and children will be taken out for a single day and on the next day another party will journey there for an eight-day outing, this program being followed throughout the season. As before, the camp will be in charge of Ensign Charlotte Abrams, the work being supervised by Mrs. Adam Gifford, in charge of the relief work in New England. Last year the camp entertained 571 mothers and children, who were thus given the only outing they enjoyed all summer. The work of a season costs in the neighborhood of $2500. The house is large and airy, there are shady woods nearby and hammocks and swings are provided for the enjoyment of the city dwellers. When possible the meals are eaten out of doors, the guests assisting in certain of the work.

AN APPEAL.

The Associated Charities is supported entirely by voluntary contributions. It has a list of faithful annual contributors, but it has lost many by death, and stands greatly in need of new ones.

Its financial requirements are threefold:

1. A fund for administrative purposes, which, as the work is at present organized, should amount to $1000 a year. Contributions of $1 or more are earnestly solicited.

2. An endowment fund to yield an assured income. This has been started but has been stationary at $500 for some time. Contributions to these two funds should be sent to the treasurer, John F. Lothrop, 36 Central avenue, Newtonville.

3. An emergency fund to be drawn upon for direct relief, when there is no other source of supply, or no time to lose. Two or three hundred dollars a year, judiciously used, can accomplish much. Contributions to this fund should be sent to the secretary, Mrs. Mary R. Martin, Room 7, Central Block, Newtonville.

CHARLES S. ENSIGN, Pres.

JOHN F. LOTHROP, Treas.

RESCUED.

A 17-year-old boy who had overturned his canoe was rescued from possible drowning Saturday evening by Patrolman Arthur Hardy of the Metropolitan Police. The young man whose name was withheld, was paddling just below the police station when in some manner he was capsized. Hardy was on duty on the lookout platform and saw the accident. The victim could swim a little but became bewildered and instead of heading toward the shore, floundered into deeper water. There is considerable current on account of the high water in the river and he was fast becoming exhausted although other canoeists were making efforts to help him. Hardy slid down the brass pole and sent the emergency boat out into the stream from where it was an easy matter for him to pull the frightened swimmer into his craft. The young man was given treatment at the station and his clothes dried, after which he went to his home.

A GOOD CAUSE.

The children of the Pomroy Home depend upon the good citizens of Newton for whatever outgoings they may have during the summer. If any one is inclined to send a small sum of money for that purpose to Oliver M. Fisher, treasurer, Newton, it will be greatly appreciated and promptly acknowledged.

Probably few taxpayers realize the importance of the attempt made in the Board of Aldermen last week to require the school committee to reduce its expenses by increasing the size of the classes in the Classical High School. While the sum involved, $8000, will only affect the tax rate about 12 cents, the adoption of this principle by the Board of Aldermen would have prevented considerable increases in high school cost in the immediate future. Most of the aldermen, I believe, did not realize the significance of the question and voted for the larger sum, merely as a matter of sustaining the committee which had recommended that amount. Involved in the question is the important matter of a considerable increase in the high school attendance thru the mistaken policy of admitting the pupils of the eighth grade. The school committee will tell you, when asked, that they have not abolished the ninth grade, but when they authorize the superintendent (who openly advocates such abolition) to promote such children as he chooses from the eighth grade directly into the high school, it is easy to see that what remains of the ninth grade is an empty shell. One hundred and fifty children will be placed this fall into the high school from the eighth grade in addition to the usual number from the present ninth grade, so that about 400 or more children will enter the high school. The importance of regulating the size of high school classes should therefore be recognized by the aldermen, and if money can be saved by increasing the present number of 26 it should be done. The writer recalls the time not so far distant when the classes numbered from 35 to 40, and it is his individual opinion that the results obtained then were as successful as the results produced at the present time.

The implied threat of the Commissioner of Public Records that if the statutory requirements relative to safe and fireproof vaults are not reached in Newton, he will take the same drastic methods as at Cambridge was read to the Aldermen this week. It is probable that the matter will be soon adjusted, as it does not necessarily mean a new City Hall.

It is understood that Representatives Bohlfeld, Ellis and White will be candidates this fall for re-election, much to the delight of all who have followed their exceedingly good work in the present House.

The cuts of High School officers used in this issue of the Graphic were furnished thru the courtesy of the managers of the High School Review.

BRADBURY—SCARBOROUGH.

In the Newton Centre Congregational Church Tuesday evening Miss Alice R. Scarborough of Newark, N. J., who has lived in Newton since her graduation from Wheaton Seminary, was married to Frank E. Bradbury of Dedham, a graduate of Bowdoin College '96, Harvard Law School '01.

The bride wore white massaline, trimmed with rose point lace and carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas.

The matron of honor, Mrs. A. C. Burnett of Waban was in pink silk, trimmed with black thread lace, and carried pink sweet peas.

The best man was Mr. Curtis H. Waterman of Arlington, classmate of the bridegroom, and the ushers included Mr. Alfred B. White, Mr. William T. Shepard, the latter of Lowell, classmates of the bridegroom; Mr. Clarence A. Barnes, Yale '01, and Mr. Wm. Barnum of the Harvard Law School.

Gerald Scarborough was the ring bearer.

The officiating clergymen were the Rev. Edward M. Noyes of Newton Centre and the Rev. William H. Parker of Dedham.

The musical program by Mr. Walter E. Young, organist, was as follows:

Romance Lenore
Introduction and Bridal Chorus
"Lohengrin" Wagner
"Die Autorn" Wolfenstein
Nuptial March Gullmant Wedding Music "Lohengrin" Wagner
Prayer from "Der Freischütz" Wagner Wedding March Mendelssohn
After their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury will live in Dedham.

FALSE ALARM.

Joseph P. Gallagher of Wellesley was arrested Tuesday morning for sending in a false alarm of fire. The young man is said to be demented. He was walking with a companion near the junction of Homer street and Lakeview avenue, Newton Centre, when he broke away and sent in a call from Box 263.

CLASS ORATION

BY PAUL HURLBURT SMART

War, the Destroyer of Civilization.

The yellow sands of Egypt cover a civilization that flourished three thousand years ago. Following close upon the decline of Egyptian prestige and art, came the rise of Greece and Rome. When the vast hordes of Goths swept down from the North, despoiling the Eternal City, civilization was buried and did not emerge again until the Renaissance. Today marks the fifth great period since the beginning of authentic history.

Four great civilizations have risen and fallen, none proving permanent, and it is a vital question today whether ours is destined to destruction as were those of the ancients. There must be some fundamental fault with the structures of the past, some fault to which we can ascribe in a great measure the present condition of Egypt, the degeneration of Greece, the lost glory of Rome, as well as the passing of the Renaissance.

Some people would place the blame for this destruction upon nature, and which advanced the organization of Roman civilization. But when her provinces, her love of conquest, and her avaricious generals led her into unrelenting war, then began her fall.

Why was war the cause of the destruction of the organization of these two great civilizations? Because such conflicts as the Persian and Peloponnesian wars at Athens, and the long chain of struggles at Rome, drained their best blood and the pulse of their organization gone, and their resources exhausted, what was left to maintain their high position? They must fall—and they did. Professor David Starr Jordan of Stanford University attributes Rome's downfall to this fact, namely, "that her noblest blood was shed in war."

What is true in the case of the greater civilizations is true of the lesser ones. By her wars and her invasion Spain was lowered from her proud ranks among nations to that of a third-rate power. The French Revolution and Napoleon dealt France a blow from which she has never recovered. We know that the social would say that nature is the destroyer of civilization. True—in a slight degree. Fire, a natural element, did destroy Rome, did destroy London. But was not Rome rebuilt, and did not London rise from its ashes, a new city, far more civilized in its streets, buildings and ornaments? We cannot say that this force of nature has destroyed these four civilizations, nor can we say that any other single force, or combination of forces known as nature destroyed them.

But human nature did; and war was its instrument.

War has been the destroyer of the organization of civilization. The Standard Dictionary defines civilization as "a condition of human communities characterized by political and social organization and order, advancement in knowledge, refinement, and progress in general." This definition, we readily see, applies in par-condition of the South has never been properly adjusted since the upheaval caused by the Civil War, and the attempted reconstruction by the North did little toward pacifying conditions, because it was militant in its nature.

War has retarded progress, which is essential to the permanency of the organization of a civilized country. There never occurred the war that did not retard progress. The war of Napoleon held Europe at a standstill for over a decade. Our Civil War marks a four-year period of arrested development—nay even of retrogression.

War has destroyed the products of civilization, which have followed in the wake of the organization of man's social condition. Indeed the magnitude of the organization of a civilization is measured by its products. The civilizations of Egypt, Greece, Rome and the Renaissance can all be measured by the scale of results. Just as civilization that is destroyed by war. This is the ideal of civilization or life.

If I should take one deal of civilization and call it the greatest, it would be that of self-expression—self-expression in the individual.

Taking the result of war upon this ideal we see that military life places an iron restraint upon men. The dictators of Rome had absolute power over the whole state, civil as well as military. The generals of today have the same power over their armies. Military discipline does not place a premium upon individuality. It creates a condition of restlessness, which in itself is suicidal to the ideals of civilization.

War is the destroyer of the moral ideals of civilization. It awakens the basest passions in men's hearts. Instead of fostering the virtues it aids the vices. Intemperance, revelry and debauchery are rife in war. We have it on General Sherman's authority that "War is hell." We hardly need more than this confession.

International morals are jeopardized by war. Nations as well as individuals believe that "might makes right." Or at least they take cover under this doctrine. It never has, and is never will. I know of no instance where such has been the case. Because the United States was more powerful than Mexico in 1845 was her action justified? Because Russia has one-half a million soldiers more than her aggressions in the East morally right?

DOROTHY S. EMMONS,
Historian.

Was the enforced submission of Cuba to Spain right, because Spain could put down each succeeding uprising? In short, was there ever a case where an oppressor was justified because of its military strength. Another ideal of civilization is self-expression in art. Civilization has fostered the very highest kind of art. Men have thrown their whole soul into their work, because an enlightened social order demands self-expression and individuality. It has allowed men to "sit still," to work peacefully. War makes men restless, prevents thoughtful work, and discourages art because it destroys it.

Today many of our artistic ideals are unfulfilled because war, and the preparation for war, which in our age has assumed immense importance in the minds of military men, demands all our energy, and all our available resources. Our military expenditures are increasing so enormously that our ticular to the organization of civilization. The savage was not civilized because he had no organization, social or political, worthy of the name. His practice of incessant warfare made this impossible. Bagehot, the English political economist, said that civilization was "the art of sitting still."

The savage never sat still! He was fighting, killing his neighbor, plundering his fields, moving, hence uncivilized. We note the first beginning of civilization when men being able to sit still for a moment could think—think of their social condition, and begin to reform it, not by violence or war, but by peaceful reform.

Civilization advanced in spite of war! But it was because the quiet upheaval in the social condition of man was more rapid, and far reaching at that particular time, than was. As the reforms outbalanced the wars, so advanced civilization. When the opportunity for reforms became less and when the frequency of wars and their duration increased, we begin to record the destruction of the organization of civilization.

"History repeats itself," as we find in looking for proofs of this fact. As the reforms of Solon, Draco and Cleisthenes were introduced into Athens, civilization increased, until under the stimulus of the reforms of Pericles, she attained her highest point of intellectual, artistic and moral development. When her empire involved her in unbroken warfare we notice the beginning of her downfall.

The same holds true in the case of Rome. While the struggle between Patricians and Plebeians progressed, her growth was healthy. The peaceful, although vigorous struggle for equal rights resulted in reforms the greatness of civilizations can be measured by their products, so can the destruction of war be measured by its ability to demolish these products.

The plundering armies of Rome despoiled Greece of her marble statues. The works of art that were not destroyed formed a prominent part of the conqueror's triumph. The great library at Alexandria that had taken centuries to collect was destroyed by Omar in time of war. The Goths sacked Rome and today but a fraction of its glories remain.

The nose of the Sphinx was shattered by the French cannon while Napoleon was campaigning in Egypt. The army of Cromwell despoiled the abbey and cathedrals of England. Statues were torn from their pedestals and stained glass windows were shattered by his soldiers.

The Parthenon was cleft asunder by an explosion of gunpowder during a bombardment of Athens by the Turks.

When Sherman's army was marching to the sea, it destroyed in many libraries one volume of each set of priceless books, in order to render the whole set worthless!

These were all treasures, not of any single race, but of all the world, of all mankind, the very essence of civilization that have been destroyed by one nation because that nation falsely believed that "might makes right." How many cities and towns have been destroyed by the mutilating hand of war? How many have been given to the torch by a victorious army? How much pillage has followed in the wake of the "conquering hero?"

We now come to the last phase of

ERNEST P. CLARK,

moral and artistic ideals are unfulfilled. We cannot build temples such as the Parthenon today because we must spend millions of dollars for a new battleship. Or perhaps we think that a gray sea monster, bristling with foreboding cannon, is more artistic than the Parthenon? If so, it is a pity that the Athenians could not have realized that a war galley was more artistic than a temple, and decorated the Peloponnese with them, instead of adorning the Acropolis with shrines.

When we consider that the civilizations of three thousand years have passed away, because that arch destroyer war has undermined their organization, shattered their products, and mocked their ideals, we naturally wonder what the chances of permanency of the civilization of the twentieth century are. We see that war and its destruction are still with us; but thank God, some noble spirits have realized that our advancement is threatened and are striking repeated blows at this enemy that is eating the very heart out of our civilization as it has of all those that preceded. We must exterminate war! If we don't, some future bard may sing of America and the civilization of the twentieth century, as Poe did of the ancients, when he said:

"The glory that was Greece, and the grandeur that was Rome."

BURGLAR HELD.

After his case had been continued from Monday, Richard Hayes, who lives on Great Plain avenue, Needham, was given a hearing Tuesday morning on a charge of breaking and entering and larceny. He asked for a further continuance in order to secure witnesses to support his alibi he is trying to prove, but Judge Kennedy found probable cause and informed him that he could produce his witnesses before a jury. He was held in bonds of $2000.

Hayes is charged with entering the house of Archibald Holland at 78 Boyd street last week Tuesday while members of the family were absent. He entered through a second story window and as he had been a frequent visitor there was acquainted with the inside of the dwelling. He stole a suit case, a quantity of clothing, some tools, a revolver, a watch and some money. Part of this stuff was pawned in Boston and this morning the pawnbroker singled out Hayes from among the other prisoners in the dock, as the man who had disposed of it.

According to the police the man has a record as a pickpocket, a second story worker and for other offences.

NORUMBEGA PARK.

Norumbega Park will begin the coming week with a number of special features for the Fourth of July celebration on Monday, including the band concerts all day in Music Court. In the open-air theatre there will be a musical comedy presented every afternoon and evening, "Boys and Girls." The characters are said to be all drawn true to life as are all the characters of the Matthew Ott plays. All the fun and excitement of college life is well brought out by the clever company. It goes without saying that there are plenty of pretty girls in "Boys and Girls" and they can all do something that is worth watching. The singing and dancing features are pronounced as exceptionally good. The show is replete with music of the jingling three-bagger variety.

CLASS PARTY.

The class of 1910, Newton High School, held its class party last Saturday evening. Mr. James E. Clark of Claremont street, Newton, opening his beautiful house for the occasion. The grounds were handsomely decorated with hundreds of Japanese lanterns and colored electric lights and made a fine spectacle. The class officers, Chauncey E. Doud, president; Miss Esther M. Wing, vice-president; Miss Mildred Clark, secretary, and Stephen T. Hopkins, treasurer, received, assisted by Mr. James E. Clark, the host. About 200 were present, including the teachers of the high school. The formal program included the class prophecy by Ernest Clark and the class statistics, written by Ernest Weaver and read by Allen Raymond. The evening was passed most delightfully with games and dancing, music being furnished by an orchestra.

REED—GATES.

Miss Blanche Isabel Gates of Newtonville was married last Saturday to Mr. Samuel Burt Reed of Boston, the ceremony taking place at the family homestead, the residence of the bride's grandmother in Stow, Mass. The wedding was a family affair, with about 30 of the immediate relatives present. The house was decorated with roses, hemlock, mountain laurel and wild flowers. The bride wore white lace over chiffon taffeta, with pale pink sweet peas in her hair and carried a shower bouquet of the same flowers. She was accompanied by her sister, Miss D. Lucy Gates. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James W. Campbell, pastor of the Newtonville M. E. Church, and was followed by an informal reception. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Reed will reside at 59 Bowers street, Newtonville.

MAGNUSON—SCHOFIELD.

Miss Myra Horton Schofield, the daughter of Mrs. Lane B. Schofield, was married yesterday at noon to Mr. Mark Magnuson of St. Paul, Minn., the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride, 49 Bowers street, Newtonville, and Rev. J. T. Stocking of the Central Church officiating. Miss Gladys Avery of Newtonville was the maid of honor and Mr. Clinton Austin of St. Paul was the best man. After a wedding trip in Maine, Mr. and Mrs. Magnuson will reside at Minneapolis, Minn., where they will be at home after Oct. 1.

BATH HOUSE.

The Crystal Lake bath house will be open hereafter to women and girls on Monday mornings from 9 to 12 and Friday afternoons from 4 to 7. Mrs. Morton has been appointed matron.

MILDRED CLARK,
Secretary.

STEPHEN T. HOPKINS,
Treasurer.

Waban

—Mrs. James C. Sharp of Pine Ridge road is now slowly convalescing at the Newton Hospital after a long siege.

—Mr. Elliot H. Robinson of Windsor road received the degree of LL. B. at the Harvard Law School on Wednesday.

—Dr. William H. Parker and family of Collins road are at River View, on Narragansett Bay, for the summer months.

—Final services for the season were held last Sunday at both the Church of the Good Shepherd and the Union Church.

—Mrs. J. H. Robinson and Miss E. K. Harlow of Windsor road went this week to their summer home at Nantucket for the season.

—Mr. F. A. Childs and family of Windsor road went on Thursday to their summer place at Northampton, N. H., for the season.

—Mr. W. Mason Turner and family of Windsor road left on Thursday by automobile for a three weeks' tour to Baltimore and Washington.

—Miss Katherine Wardwell of Plainfield street has been the guest of Miss Irene Davidson formerly of the same street at North Scituate the past week.

—Miss Edith and Miss Harriet Collins of Rahway, N. J., who were the guests of Miss Jessie G. Gould of Beacon street for ten days, returned home last Monday.

—The marriage of Miss Alice R. Scarborough, formerly for several years a resident of Waban, to Mr. F. R. Bradbury of Dedham, Bowdoin '96, took place on Tuesday evening in the First Congregational Church at Newton Centre. Mrs. A. C. Burnett of Waban avenue was the matron of honor.

—Miss Edith Childs of Windsor road was graduated last week from the State Normal School at Framingham and was honored by being selected to take the leading part in the play which was given by that class as a part of the final exercises. Miss Emily Childs was a member of the graduating class at the Newton High School.

—Mr. Rhodes Garrison of Pine Ridge road, Mr. A. C. Gould of Beacon street and the latter's guest, Dr. Edward Adams, all of Harvard 1900, have been participating in the decennial reunion of that class the past week.

—Mrs. N. W. T. Knott of Plainfield street underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Homeopathic Hospital of Boston last week Thursday, her illness being so serious as to demand speedy action. She is now improving steadily.

—The Waban Tennis Courts were again on the losing end last Saturday, being defeated in the Mystic Valley League match by Belmont at the latter club, three matches to two. The local players won one singles and one doubles match easily. R. Garrison and Hill and Blaney scoring for Waban, while G. Williams and Fisher and Turner were defeated easily. The hardest contest was between Gardner of Belmont and Robinson of Waban, the match taking more than two hours and a half and being as close as possible, almost every game going to deuce up to the third set when the latter was seized with cramps and was easily beaten.

The scores: Garrison defeated Wellington, 6-2, 6-3. Gardner defeated Robinson, 4-6, 11-9, 6-1. Dunning defeated Williams, 6-4, 6-2. Dewey and Young defeated Fisher and Turner, 6-3, 6-4; and Hill and Blaney defeated Parker and Reed, 6-2, 6-4.

—The capable and energetic Fourth of July committee report everything in readiness for the finest celebrating ever held in the village. The successful event of the past two years will be present and enlarged and in addition a brand new feature will be found in the antique and horrible parade for which great preparations are in progress. Every child and many grown-ups are expected to participate and make the parade a howling success and a large silver cup will reward the wearer of the most original costume. This starts at 7:30 from the playground and at 10 at the same place will be held the athletic field and track sports for the children, a silver cup being offered to the winner of each class. At 3 o'clock the big championship ball game the third of the new series between the East and West Sides for the championship of Waban, the sides now being tied. In the evening is the band concert and pyrotechnic display and throughout the day open house everywhere.

GATES—COLEMAN.

Miss Lillian Ruth Thayer Coleman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Coleman of Newtonville, was married last evening at 8 o'clock to Mr. Louis Mortimer Gates of Auburn-dale. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride, 25 Court street, which was decorated with smilax and peonies, and under a marriage bell of rambling roses. Rev. Richard T. Loring of St. John's Church officiated and the wedding march was played by Miss Ethel Gates. The bride wore white lace with satin ribbons over white silk, a long veil fastened with orange blossoms worn by her mother, and carried a large bunch of bride's roses. Her only ornament was a diamond ring on a gold chain. The matron of honor, Mrs. William H. Adams of Newtonville, sister of the bride, wore embroidered white mousseline de soie, with white satin ribbons and carried roses. The ushers were Misses Marie and Elizabeth Johnson of Alston, Marie Jenkins of Newton and Helen Thompson of Waltham, and were gownned in white organdie.

A reception followed until 10 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Gates being assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Coleman and Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Gates.

The young people were the recipients of many handsome and useful gifts, including cut glass, silver, bric-a-brac and china.

Both the bride and groom are well known in musical circles.

The Civic Federation of Newton offers the sum of one hundred dollars in prizes for photographs of notable features of the city, natural and architectural, such as a lake and river views, photographs of trees, streets, boulevards, parks, fountains and public memorials.

It is hoped that the offer of these prizes will stimulate local pride and arouse general interest in the beauty spots of our city, and that a large and representative collection of attractive photographs may thus be secured.

The contest will close Nov. 15 allowing contestants more than four months in which to obtain views during a season which promises to be unrivalled in beauty and density of foliage and vegetation.

All photographs are to be submitted with the understanding that they will become the property of the Civic Federation to be used for exhibition purposes. The entire collection or certain selected photographs, will be exhibited in various public places throughout the city during the winter.

The sum of one hundred dollars will be divided into six prizes three prizes for the most artistic photographs of views or landscapes and three for photographs of public works and architectural features.

Parks, streets, trees, rivers, lakes and nature in general—First prize $25, second prize $15, third prize $10.

Public buildings, institutions, memorials, bridges and architectural features—First prize $25, second prize $15, third prize $10.

All photographs must be mounted and plainly marked on the back with the name and address of contestant, the location of the subject of the photograph must also be designated. No photograph should be smaller than 4x5; enlargements will be received.

The judges will be Charles Cope-land, a well known artist, a member of the Civic Federation and William H. Downes, art editor of the Boston Transcript. Both the selection of the subject and excellence of the photograph will be considered in awarding the prizes.

Announcement of the awards will appear in the Newton papers soon after the close of the contest.

Photographs should be sent on or before Nov. 15 to the secretary of the Civic Federation, Newton Club, Newtonville, Mass.

Committee of Civic Federation: C. E. Kelsey, George Hutchinson, Albert P. Carter, Alonzo R. Weed, Herbert R. Lane, secretary, Waban, Mass.

In Cambridge to the Lieutenant-Governor, the President and speaker of the two legislative houses, and a large number of Federal and State Officers and persons of distinction."

"On Thursday between six and seven hundred persons, without distinction of parties were regaled in the Hall with between two and three barrels of punch and lemonade which remained of the stores provided for the Federal celebration."

Some of the toasts in Charlestown were as follows:

"Our Navy—Rendered contemptible and useless by the imbecility of our Administration."

"The American Government—Like Balaam's Ass they have borne insults, deceit and hypocrisy in dumb silence—May the Angel of Truth, who stands in the way, open their eyes and the cudgel of their Master give them utterance."

"The Fourth at that time was neither 'safe or sane,' for there is the following account of a

"DISTRESSING ACCIDENT."

"We lament to state that on Wednesday two worthy and laborious men by the names of Green and Hodges were shockingly maimed by the accidental discharge of a cannon while celebrating the Independence of their country on a wharf at the north part of the town—Green has lost both arms and part of his face, and Hodges one arm and received other injury; both have young children whose sole dependence was on the labor of hands now lost forever." The item goes on to state that a subscription paper has been started for the unfortunate.

SERIOUS CHARGE.

William Owen, the young man who was arrested in Boston Monday on a charge of burglary, was held for the grand jury in bonds of $1000, Judge Kennedy having found probable cause. He was unable to furnish bail and was committed to the East Cambridge Jail.

Owen was charged with robbing the house of Samuel J. Brown at 580 Walnut street, Newtonville, sometime between May 27 and June 14. The family was at the Brown summer home and when Mrs. Brown returned to Newton one day she found the house ransacked and a quantity of clothing missing.

When the house was searched a coat was found in one room bearing a tailor's name as well as the name of the customer for whom it was originally made. After much trouble this man was located at a summer resort and from information given by him as to where he had disposed of the garment it was finally traced to Owen.

The officers secured a photograph of the man that was taken at the Concord Reformatory and which showed a mole on the right side of the neck. It was this mark which identified Owen, though he denied all knowledge of the crime and said that he had given the coat to a "dope fiend" that has begged it of him.

Owen has a long record, although he is but 21 years old. In 1908 he was tried on four counts of forgery and was convicted on one, serving a term at Concord. He is clever with the pen and has passed a number of bad checks.

CARTER—CARTER.

Miss Dorothy Carter of 499 Auburn road, Boston, and Mr. Phillip Waters Carter of West Newton were married last Saturday at the home of the bride by Rev. John Goddard of the New Church, Newtonville.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. A. K. Paine as matron of honor, and her bridesmaids were the Misses Leslie C. Carter, Ethel Love land, Mildred Sargent, Alice Allen, Selma Smith, Sarah Hackett, Lydia Clark and Margaret Hatfield.

Mr. Carter's best man was his cousin, Elliot Carter, and the ushers included Richard B. and Raymond Carter, F. Asbury Waterhouse, Lionel Drew, R. P. Joulain, David Whitman, Henry B. Sprague and Mr. Barta.

Mr. and Mrs. Carter sailed Wednesday on the Bohemian for a three months' trip abroad and on their return will reside at 308 Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

Park Theatre—When William Hodge in "The Man From Home" terminates his engagement at the Park Theatre, Boston, Saturday evening, July 3, he will do so with the proud distinction of having broken all known records in Boston, entertaining more people and playing to the largest box office receipts of any dramatic production.
 In many respects the engagement of "The Man From Home" has been most remarkable. During the 25 weeks just passed 253,181 people have witnessed "The Man From Home," an average of 1205 persons a performance. The box office statements show that the total receipts have reached the enormous sum of $248, 010.25, an average of $9920.41 weekly. Mr. Hodge has been called upon to make 211 curtain speeches, and Mr. Hodge and the members of his company have responded to an average of 12 curtain calls a performance.
 The management reports that the sale for the last two weeks points to a business that will compare favorably with the largest weeks of the engagement, notwithstanding the warm weather. A special matinee will be given on July 4.

Keith's Theatre—For the week beginning with Independence Day at Keith's a typical program has been arranged. In the first place it will include the Old Soldier Fiddlers, a remarkable company who will be seen in Boston for the first time. Another picturesque feature will be the Geisha Girls from Japan, who make their first appearance here. These eight little maidens from the land of the Mikado have been the sensation of New York this summer. Also on the bill are Lovenberg's six American dancers, who at the conclusion of their engagement at Keith's will sail for London to start a long continental tour. Porter J. White and company also will be seen in one of the strongest dramatic sketches of the year, entitled "The Visitor." Other features are Conlin, Steele and Carr, in singing and dancing novelties;
 the Havelocks, a company of remarkable jugglers who do all kinds of amazing stunts, and McPhee and Hill, the clown acrobats.

WHAT YOU CANNOT DO WITH FIREWORKS AND FIRECRACKERS.

Carry fireworks or crackers on trolley car, steam train, ferryboat or public vehicle.

Transport them through streets in vehicle with other explosives or inflammable articles.

Set fireworks in any building used in part as a dwelling, factory, school or place of assembly.

Set off rocket, bomb, roman candle or Italian battery, unless an experienced adult person.

Sell or keep blank cartridges.

Sell or keep toy guns for blank cartridges.

Sell or keep toy cannon for blank cartridges.

Explosive blank cartridges or bombs.

Sell or keep firecrackers exceeding two inches in length and threeeighths of an inch in diameter.

Sell or keep firecrackers of greater explosive power than regulation size black gunpowder cracker.

Set off fireworks requiring special tool, holder or mortar.

Use high explosives (explosives more powerful than black gunpowder).

Sell or store in any building or premises where there are paints, oils, dry goods, lumber, drugs or other combustibles.

Sell or keep torpedoes larger than three-quarters of an inch in diameter.

Set off serpents, bombs, rockets or set pieces in the public street or public way.

Sell fireworks or firecrackers, except to caps and toy torpedoes to children under 13 years.

Set off illuminating fireworks except between the hours of 7 p. m.

Set off firecrackers within 300 feet of any hospital without a special permit.

Smoke inside premises where fireworks are kept and only the sale and use of safety matches allowed.

It is a needless and unwarrantable
 "Hope deferred maketh the heart sick." Please the wife and children by keeping the home warm. A "WIN-CHESTER" steam or hot water will do it beyond all others. Made by

PETITION OF

THE BOSTON & ALBANY RAILROAD COMPANY.

To the Honorable the County Commissioners of the County of Middlesex:

Respectfully represents the Boston & Albany Railroad Company that it requires additional land without the limits of the route fixed in the City of Newton in said County of Middlesex, for the purpose of making and securing its railroad, and for depot and station purposes, and for one or more tracks adjacent to other tracks already in use, which additional land is bounded and described as follows:

Beginning at a point on the dividing line between land of Adam S. Miner, thence running southeasterly by land of said Railroad Company formerly of said Miner about seventy-six (76) feet to a corner; thence running northeasterly by land of said Railroad Company about eighty-four (84) feet to a corner; thence running northeasterly by land of said Railroad Company about forty-two (42) feet to the place of beginning containing seventy-one hundredths (71/100) of an acre more or less.

Reference is made to the plan entitled "Additional Land Required for Railroad Purposes, West Newton, Mass.," dated May, 1910, and signed by F. B. Freeman, Chief Engineer, filed herewith.

Your petitioner further represents that it is unable to obtain the same by agreement with the owners, and said land is supposed to be owned by Adam S. Miner or by Michael H. Curley or both.

Wherefore your petitioner prays that your Honorable Board will grant the limits within which the same may be taken, without the permission of the owners, after due proceedings in the premises.

To the heirs-at-law, next of kin and all other persons interested in the estate of Hannah C. Kelley, late of Newton, in said County, deceased:

WHEREAS, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court, for Probate, by Zebina D. Kelley, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on his official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court, to be held at Cambridge, in said County of Middlesex, on the eleventh day of July, A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof, by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Newton Graphic, a newspaper published in Newton, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said court, and by mailing post-paid, a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said court.

NEWTON, MASS., FRIDAY, JULY 8, 1910.

TERMS, $2.00 A YEAR.

PASTOR MARRIED

The wedding of Rev. Harrie Rogers Chamberlin, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist Church of Newton, and Miss Elizabeth Lamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius G. Lamson of Toledo, O., took place last week Wednesday evening at the home of the bride's parents on Scottwood avenue, Toledo.

About 250 guests witnessed the impressive nuptials, at which the groom's father, Rev. Carey W. Chamberlin of Beverly, Mass., assisted by the Rev. Dr. Emory Hunt of Grandville, officiated.

The handsome Colonial hall was reserved for the ceremony, the effective lines of architecture, being accentuated with quantities of the graceful cut leaf birch, that formed a background for bouquets of white blossoms, arranged in available places.

A pillared recess, filled with palms, made the improvised altar and garlands of greenery covering the stairwell and circular railing above, completed the harmonious scheme of decoration.

Each of the lower rooms expressed a distinctive color tone. There being clusters of American Beauties in the den, and pink roses in the music room and dining room. All through the house the garlands of birch and the riot, festooning walls and electric lights in poetic fashion.

Miss Lamson had as bridal attendants her sister, Miss Miriam Lamson, as maid of honor, and Miss Ruth Arbuckle and Miss Mabel Wheeler acting as bridesmaids. Mr. Carey J. Chamberlin, the groom's brother, served as best man, and Mr. George Rogers of Cleveland and Mr. Harold Bragman of Pittsfield were the ushers.

The bride, descending the broad stairway on the arm of her father, made a lovely picture in her robes of Meteor satin, fashioned on simple lines with garniture of rare Venice lace, and chiffon. The long veil falling to the end of the court train, was fastened with a becoming coronet of orange blossoms, and a shower of bride's roses and valley lilies formed the bridal bouquet.

Miss Miriam Lamson was beautiful in an artistic gown of shaded chiffon, coming from white to a deep pink, and built over white satin. She carried an armful of pink roses.

The two attractive bridesmaids were gowned alike in picturesque frocks of white net over pink satin and carried Killarney roses.

Carl Hill's orchestra played the Lohengrin bridal chorus for the entrance, the bride and her maids being met at the foot of the stairway by the groom, with his best man and the two officiating clergymen. During the service Schuman's "Trauerlied" was played softly.

Following the ceremony, a wedding supper was served at small tables, arranged on the enclosed veranda, and through the rooms. The bride table was placed in the dining room, covers being laid for 18, about a round banquet board, which had as a centre piece an immense circular piece of Killarney roses.

The favors for the ladies were silver vases holding single roses and at the places of the men there were silver key rings.

Mrs. Lamson, the mother of the bride, wore for the occasion a handsome gown of lavender Marquise, trimmed with jeweled bands and lace.

GAMBLERS FINED

As the result of a gambling raid early Sunday morning five men appeared before Judge Kennedy Tuesday and paid fines aggregating $190. The men were Welcome S. Freeman, Frank Feola, his brother James, both of 50 Charlesbank road, Newton; Albert P. Wallace of Watertown and James Murray of Brookline.

Each of the men was fined $10 for gaming on the Lord's day and in addition Freeman, who roomed at 312 Centre street, Newton, was fined $50 for maintaining a place for gaming. All pleaded guilty.

According to the police Freeman has entertained poker parties in his room for more than three months. They have talked with him regarding the gambling and he readily admitted it, denying the officers, however, to apprehend a game in progress. He is said to have declared himself willing to acknowledge the offence and pay any fine imposed if they could only catch him.

The game was in full swing when a squad of five officers entered the apartment where Freeman roomed. They had no difficulty in getting to the door of his room and waited until a particularly exciting pot was being opened. Bets were made freely, although they were mostly for small amounts. Just as the players had drawn to their hands and were settling down to the final bets the officers opened the door.

The pot held $7.35 and this was seized, together with five chairs, the table and a half dozen decks of cards. The men all secured bail.

Rev. and Mrs. Chamberlin left during the evening for New York, and sailed on Saturday for a wedding journey abroad. They will be at home to their friends after Oct. 1, at 132 Church street, Newton, Mass.

NEWTON BOYS WIN

With a corps of trained athletes the Newton Y. M. C. A. won first place in the field meet given by the Young Men's Christian Association of New England at Canobie Lake Park, Salem, N. H., Saturday afternoon.

The Newton team took four firsts and tied for another one, giving them a grand total of 24 points. Lawrence received 17, Havenhill and Lowell eight each, Manchester five and Salem one. John J. Cody, Jr., one of the champion high jumpers of New England, was one of the men who wore the red of Newton, and he showed up in fine form, winning the shotput with ease and tying the running high jump. He was prevented from entering the pole vault owing to a badly sprained ankle.

John J. Hines was another consistent performer from Newton. He captured first in the 100-yard dash, running lithely, while his team-mate, C. V. Moore, who won the 220-yard dash, and the boys who ran the relay, helped in the scoring.

The running high jump was a long event, it finally settling down to a contest between William Croft of Lowell, John J. Cody, Jr. of Newton and James Muller of Lowell. Five feet eight was where Croft dropped out, leaving Muller and Cody to fight it out at five feet ten and a half inches. They tied there and some dispute arose as to whether they would jump it off or not, but they left it a tie; Muller winning the toss for the first prize.

Cody had the shotput all tucked away and could have hurled the heavy ball farther had he been pushed. He made 46 feet and 3 inches on his best cast.

Another Newton man was the winner in the 220, C. V. Moore winning this event in 25.25 seconds.

The results: 100-yard dash—Won by John J. Hines, Newton; James G. Newhall, Lawrence, second; Emil Schlenker, Havenhill, third; time, 10.2-5 seconds.

Running high jump—Won by James Muller of Lowell and John J. Cody, Jr., of Newton, tied; William J. Croft of Lowell, third; height, 5 feet 10.1-2 inches.

12-pound shotput—Won by John J. Cody, Jr., Newton; James Andromedas, Lowell, second; Arthur Blais, Lowell, third; distance, 46 feet 3 inches.

Pole vault—Won by Howard Reed Manchester; O. H. Smith, Lawrence, second; Emil Schlenker, Havenhill, third. Height, 9 feet 6 inches.

220-yard dash—Won by C. V. Moore, Newton; Emil Schlenker, Havenhill, second; Norman Elliott, Lawrence, third. Time, 24.2-5 seconds.

660-yard run—J. W. Smith, Lawrence; K. E. Drew, Havenhill, second; D. F. Callahan, Lawrence, third. Time, 2m. 10.2-5 seconds.

Relay race—Won by Newton team, composed of Fred E. Maguire, C. V. Moore, John J. Hines and John J. Cody, Jr. Lawrence team second. Time, 3 minutes 39 seconds.

Newton—100-yard dash, 5; high jump, 4 shotput, 5 pole vault, 0; 880-yard dash, 0; 220-yard dash, 5; relay, 5; total 24.

The prizes were gold medals for the winners and silver and bronze medals for the second and third in each event.

A FOURTH OF JULY WITHOUT ACCIDENT

INDEPENDENCE DAY OBSERVED IN A MOST FITTING MANNER

The Fourth of July was quietly observed in this city last Monday and it was the universal opinion that it was the least noisy "night before" for many years. Whether or not this was due to Sunday may be questioned, but it was far more quiet this year than last when the Fourth itself came on Sunday and was observed on Monday. It is doubtless true that the new regulations prohibiting the sale of blank cartridges and of cannon crackers were responsible for the most desirable result. The day passed off without an arrest for violating the city ordinance or the new regulations, and speaks volumes for the acceptance by the people of the spirit of the new law. What, however, was the most desirable, came to pass, no accidents were reported at all during the day, and but three fire alarms were rung, two of which proved to be false.

All in all, it was a memorable Fourth for Newton.

At Newton Centre.

Newton Centre as usual took the lead in celebrating the day. The program included sports and games at the playground, in the morning, a band concert and baseball game at the playground, and a free entertainment at Bray Hall in the afternoon, and a band concert, illumination and fireworks in the evening.

Following is the summary of the sports:

100-yard dash, intermediate—Whaley first, Holt second, Howley third. Time, 12.3-5s.

Junior sack race, 50 yards—Tilton first, H. Hawkes second, McGrath third. Time, 16.3-5s.

220-yard senior race—Adams first, Ellis second, Farnham third. Time, 25.3-5s.

Intermediate three-legged race—Beecher and Beck first, Ely and Whaley second. Time, 15.2-5s.

Junior Blindfolded wheelbarrow race—Doherty first, Monaghan second, Whaley third. Winner's distance 52 feet.

Junior 50-yard dash—Tilton first, McGrath second, Unlacek third. Time, 7s.

Senior broad jump—Adams first, Farnham second, Barry third. Distance 18 ft. 1 in.

Senior 100-yard dash—Adams first, Barry second, Murphy third. Time, 11s.

Intermediate potato race—J. Sullivan first, Brock second, E. Sullivan third. Time, 34.1-5s.

Junior 40-yard run—Unlacek first, Tilton second, Green third. Time, 1m. 14.1-5s.

Junior obstacle race—Hoffman first, McCue second, Delutzio third.

In addition to the athletic events 108 children from the kindergarten and lower grades of the Rice School gave a flag drill under the direction of the Misses Brewer, Laughton, Haskell, Walworth and Mears of the teaching staff. The little ones marched with flags and afterwards saluted the colors, gave the pledge of allegiance and sang "America."

In the ball game the married men were beaten by the score of 27 to 14. No college of importance in the east was not represented in the lineup. Paul, the Yale football player, pitched for the winners, with Richardson, formerly of Harvard, catching. The lineup: Single men—Chamberlin, 1b.; Pierce, 3b.; G. Richardson, c.; Paul, p.; Pratt, c. f.; Plympton, 2b.; D. Foote, 1. f.; Howard, s.s.; Arrington and H. Richardson, r. f. Married men—Hubbard, c.; W. Foote, r. f.; Spalding, p.; Wales, 1b.; Blaisdell, 3b.; Emerson, s.s.; Walworth, 1. f.; Mumford, 2b.; Blake, more, c. f.

There was a display of fireworks from the shores of Crystal Lake in the evening. On a raft in the centre of the lake a bonfire 70 feet high had been built and this was touched off while the fireworks were being shown. In addition the estates bordering on the lake were under the auspices of the Newton Centre Improvement Association. The general committee: Sumner Clement, chairman; George W. Pratt, secretary; George C. Ewing, treasurer; Allen Hubbard, T. B. Plympton, Warren Arrington, C. E. Kelsey, H. J. Kellaway, William H. Rice and A. E. Alvord. The athletic events were under the immediate direction of William N. Howard, playground instructor, assisted by Barnett Plympton, starter; William Rising, referee; Fred C. Melcher, announcer; Allen Hubbard, timer; H. J. Kellaway, Gardner C. Walworth, George F. Wales, William H. Rice, Charles Paul, C. E. Kelsey and Sumner Clement.

At Nonantum.

At Nonantum the celebration was ushered in at 12:15 o'clock in the morning with a mammoth bonfire that was arranged under the direction of the Nonantum A. A. and the village improvement association. The big pile was placed on Allison field, off California street, and was more than 70 feet high.

After a brief interval, following the tolling of the midnight bells, the fire was lit by Alderman William J. Doherty. It was noticeable that the usual noisy accompaniment of cannon crackers and blank cartridges was lacking, but cowbells and horns were in evidence on every side.

The fire made a brave display that could be seen for many miles. It was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators, many of whom came from other sections of the city.

There was a road race of one mile for boys in the morning. It was won by Edward Terrio with Tony Baer second. Later, at the Stearns School, there was a flag raising, the flag being freed by 8-year-old Rose Chaisson. Mr. Francis W. Sprague, 2d, clerk of the police court, delivered an oration on patriotism and citizenship and the Declaration of Independence was read by Rose Brennan.

On Allison field the Newton baseball club defeated the nine from the Nonantum A. A. by a score of 8 to 7. In the afternoon the married men and single men battled for eight innings and then quit when the score was tied at 20 runs each. In the evening there was a band concert and a fine display of fireworks.

The summary of sports: 100-yard dash for boys—Arthur Boudrot first, John Gaudet second.

50-yard dash for boys—William Dalton first, Ambrose Doherty second.

50-yard dash for girls—Mildred Charlton first, Elizabeth Joyce second.

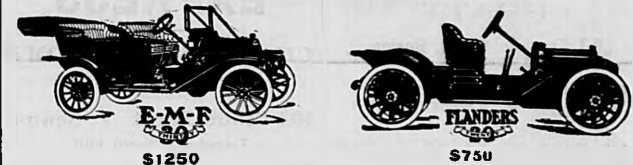

Boys' shoe race—Daniel Murphy first, William Murphy second.

Baseball throw for girls—Alice Dorsey first, Lily Gibson second.

INHALED GAS Newton Highlands

Mrs. Mary MacElroy, 34 years old, the wife of Stephen MacElroy of 25 Emerson street, committed suicide this morning by inhaling illuminating gas in the kitchen of her home. For several months she had worried over supposed illness, until her mind became affected.

Her husband is a lineman in the employ of the Newton & Watertown Gaslight Co. He worked last night and returned home shortly after 6 o'clock this morning. On opening the front door he was met by a strong odor of gas, and when investigating, on opening the kitchen door, he found his wife's body lying on the floor. She was fully dressed and had not been to bed.

Mrs. MacElroy had disconnected a tube from the gas range, placed two pillows on the floor, and lain down with the tube close to her face. The doors and windows were carefully closed and sealed.

The husband dragged his wife's body to the open door and then called a physician. When the latter arrived he found that Mrs. MacElroy had been dead for several hours. The unfortunate woman had no serious illness but imagined her physical condition to be such that her health was seriously affected; and according to her physician, the worry mentally unbalanced her.

Besides her husband she left four children, John, Mary, Helen and Florence, whose ages range from 3 to 10 years.

Sarah Murray, who rooms in the MacElroy house, left for her place of employment a short time before the husband arrived home. She saw nothing out of the way and did not know of the suicide until told.

SCHOOL GOLF.

Newton lads were much in evidence at the Greater Boston Intercollegiate golf tournament which took place this week at the Woodland Golf Club, Auburndale. Lawrence I. Maloney, Thornton C. Pray, Esmond Rice, W. E. Hart, Orville Dyer and C. W. Manning were in the qualifying round, and Maloney, Pray, Rice and Manning went into the championship round. Maloney won his match in the first round and Pray lost a hard match by one stroke to Oulmet, the state champion. The winner of the championship was Arthur D. Knight of Worcester.

Y. M. C. A.

The foundation of the running track on the new Y. M. C. A. athletic field has been laid and the work of laying out the grounds is being rapidly pushed to completion. The grading of the steep side hill at the southern side is attracting much interest because of the fact that more than 10,000 cubic yards of material has to be moved. The foundation walls of the building are nearly completed. The sinking of the artesian well is progressing slowly, a depth of only 75 feet having been reached in two weeks. This is due to lodges that have been encountered.

Special Sale

MONDAY, JULY 11

On that day and until sold we will place on sale 200 of these Tabourettes. Two months ago we sold 100 of them in 2 hours, and since that time we have had repeated inquiries as to when we were going to have more.

The Tabourette is 18 inches high; 12 inch veneer top with reinforcement; legs braced and are very strong and durable. There is hardly a room in the house but has a place and use for just such a clever little article of furniture and they are especially adapted for porch use during the summer months.

Special window display two days before the sale and positively none sold at this price previous to

HIGH SCHOOL ANNUAL.

Pressure on our news columns has postponed until this week a review of the most interesting feature of the class of 1910, Newton High School. Not content with the issue of the usual High School Review, its managers resolved early this spring to issue "an Annual" and the result is highly creditable to their efforts.

The annual is a bound volume of over 100 pages of reading and advertisements and contains halftones of Mr. E. C. Adams, master of the school, of the classical and Technical High School buildings, group pictures of the football, hockey, boys' basketball, track, gymnastic, girls' hockey, girls' basketball teams, baseball squad, the debating team, senior class, class officers and vignettes of most of the senior class. There are sketches of the different teams, articles by S. Foster Damon and Julia R. Schmalz, poems by Alice G. Boyden and Dorothy S. Emmons, a list of teachers, events of the year 1909-10, a list of wearers of the "N" and brief autobiographies of each member of the class. The different departments of the book are appropriately designated by original drawings, and the college intentions of the class members are also stated. The book is neatly bound in green cloth with gilt lettering. The publishers of the Annual are to be heartily congratulated on their success and their achievement should be emulated by future classes.

DON'T BURN UP YOUR POWER!

When Business slows up in the Summer Months and you want to cut out some machines, you can't save much on steam power. The boilers and engines built to run all your machines "eat up" the same coal, water and oil, and the engineer and fireman can't leave the job. Your are burning up—wasting—power.

RECENT SERMON TO CHARLES WARD POST

The following sermon was preached at Channing Church by Rev. Harry Lutz at a service to which Charles Ward Post, G. A. R., was especially invited:

THE TRAGEDY OF NATIONS.

"They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." (Isaiah 2:4)

This prophetic utterance of the long ago suggests the normal state of human society and relations between nations and peoples. The elements of war incidental to the devious ways of human development are to be ultimately turned into tools of industry. The forces trained for destruction are to be converted into constructive power.

This is not a mere visionary dream of a sentimental idealist. It expresses a fundamental fact of world life that deeply underlies all its variable phases in times of peace or of war. However crude may have been the conceptions of this primitive writer; however little he may have known the laws and methods of social progress and development of civilization; how ever little he may have thought as to how this ideal state of affairs was to be brought about; he has nevertheless voiced a sentiment so true, and set a standard so high, as to command the attention of all the world, demand its serious consideration, and compel universal accession to its onward leading. However arbitrary the prophet's statement may have been, founded as it was in the ideas of a primitive religion; yet in the light of intelligent study of historic experience and the operation of underlying world forces, it is seen to be a practical ideal and the realizable goal of human progress.

At the outset there may be in our minds the question as to why this ideal of peace should come to the front of our attention, when we commemorate the events of war, and pay tribute to the heroic deeds of our soldiers in battle? But, let us see! As I take it, on May 30 we as a people paused from our busy life to stand by the graves of the nation's noble sons and pay our grateful tribute to the heroic spirit of those who bore the brunt of a deadly onslaught upon our country's loved ideals, who fought, endured and suffered, and many gave their lives; and again at this occasion when we meditate to gether upon the facts and significance of that crucial battle which turned the tide of civil war; the supreme consideration lies in answer to the question, What for?

It was not for the sake of war the brave sons of freedom took the field. Certainly none who engaged in the struggle ever saw anything desirable in it. They answered the call to arms, not for the sake of war, but for the sake of the very ideal the prophet uttered long ago; that it might be saved and exalted, and its blessings be realized and enjoyed. It is the realities achieved that give significance to the events of war. It is an appreciative sense of the ends sought and won that gives our tributes of honor to the warriors its finest touch of color—that of gratitude. It is only such intelligent and feeling sense of the values it establishes will give them permanence in patriotic devotion to the ideals and higher welfare of country.

When we look fairly into the nature and conditions of human life and its progress, we find war is not a thing that normally belongs to it; nor do we find anything in it that is in itself good. It is intended to destroy, and it does work havoc and ruin. But, it is an accident incidental to the progress of the human race from the primitive condition of imperfection, through the mazes and complexities of experience, toward the far heights of its possible perfection.

War is the Tragedy of Nations. Tragedy is an accident of life; not its reality. War is not a normal action of life forces, but their clashing at the accidental point of their crossing when either or both may be turned out of the natural course. The soldier is not fighting a personal battle. Nor is the army waging a battle of collective interests. In reality they represent a deep underlying current of life force. The soldier is the actor upon life's stage, but the real conflict is that of the deep underlying force which he represents.

A failure to appreciate this fact is the source of a false patriotism which is embittered by hatred of the enemy. This will do more harm to a country and work a more terrible destruction than the guns. For it strikes a deadly blow to manhood. It fades even the laurels of the victor. Far more important than the triumph of arms is: that the victor shall emerge from the smoke of battle a man; able to recognize the fact; that on the stage of history he has acted a part representing a great life force, and that his vanquished foe has perhaps just as sincerely acted the part of another underlying force; that after all they are not real enemies, but fellow men—human brothers—each acting the part of great opposing forces.

Tragedy has to do with actors—the characters. We see actors and what they do. But the real essence of the tragedy is to be found in those dark forces that underlie our life. Not in the actors only, but in the invisible forces that move their wills and prompt their action.

When we consider the nature of tragedy, the thing that first attracts our attention is: that there is always a collision. Then we notice that it is a collision of human wills. But on looking further it appears: while the will is in the foreground and seems to be the active agent, it is in reality but the instrument of an invisible power or spiritual force behind it.

This collision of forces may take place in the individual. Did Othello will to stay Desdemona, the only person in all the world he loved? No, it was the dark force of honor blinded by jealousy set in motion by the designing Iago that really moved him to his terrible deed and his tragic end. Macbeth did not will to murder the king. It was the deeper force of desire for the glory and power of kingly authority that actually impelled him to the deadly act and his own ruin. MORE TO COME.

Hamlet will to avenge the death of his father. But another unseen force intervened to arrest his hand from executing his decision. It was the new and untold force of his manhood—his conscience. Then followed in his mind that terrible conflict between the two powerful forces—his higher nature asserting itself through conscience, and conventional right of his day which commanded him to the duty of vengeance for his father's murder.

Thus the soul of Hamlet became the battle ground of these two invincible warring forces, and by their surging to and fro is torn, devastated and weakened. Each force inhibits the other from expressing itself in outward action. His debate between the two, by "thinking too precisely on the event," spends itself in moralizing and intellectual generalization, but ends in no outward action done.

"And thus the native due of resolution is sickened o'er with the pale cast of thought; And enterprises of great pith and moment With this regard their currents turn awry, And lose the name of action."

The collision in tragedy, then, is less between wills than between the unseen forces that act through wills. The individual seems to be self-directed and controlled, but in reality he is playing the part of the greater power behind him, and the result be arrested will and inaction of the individual. It is when they severally operate through separate wills they come to the outward conflict of tragic action.

In the tragic action of life we may observe, there are always three elements—necessity, blindness and retribution. When these forces meet the collision is a necessity of their opposite nature. There is always blindness to it, in that the actors fancy themselves as free and choosing the action and fail to see any other motive than their own. Then there always falls the retribution. By the very nature of things, the blindness is held to account for its doings. It is not as a punishment, but an effect. It is the inevitable result of a violation of the right direction and adjustment of forces in any sphere of life. It falls upon both the invading power and the realm invaded.

We observe also that these conflicting forces are usually those generated in the lower and higher stages of human progress and developing ideas as to right and duty. In the mind of Hamlet it was the age of personal revenge arrayed against the higher order of civilization which commits these matters to the administration of law by the state. So on through all tragic conflicts, we might observe that: whether they take place in single individuals, between individuals, between nations or parts of a nation, it is in reality between one actor or set of actors representing a lower order of human development and another representing the higher order.

Precisely this happened not many years since, when our own nation found its divided parts opposed in the tragic collision of civil war. In that terrible conflict of opposing forces, you—comrades of the Grand Army of the Republic—were actors. You represented one of the great underlying forces of civilization that were there at open issue.

Up to that time liberty and slavery—a higher and a lower stage of development—were both present in our national life. Both elements had a firm hold upon it. Each was strongly entrenched in sectional self-interest. But they were inconsistent and utterly opposed. They could not be united and permanently stand in a single nation. Compromises were only temporary palliatives. Moving by their very nature in opposite directions, they must inevitably meet in mortal combat.

The opposite nature of the elements involved appear when we note the several marked stages of world advancement. In warfare among primitive men there was no quarter granted. They took no prisoners. Merciless slaughter was the rule and practice. It was a struggle to a finish. The strong and the skilful survived.

Self-interest is the powerful motive force in the progress of civilization. It was this wrought a change of policy. Instead of slaying the enemy, it was found to be profitable to capture him and hold him as a slave. Thus the system of slavery began, and it was a decided advance over the earlier practice of slaughter. At this stage of development slavery was a higher good, and was right according to the moral standards of that day. It marked an advance toward the higher life.

Then came the method of holding prisoners in order to demand tribute for their redemption. Then, with the higher development of civilization, came the idea of personal liberty. It recognized the rights of all. War came then to be waged, not for the purpose of killing the enemy, but to defeat him; and when that was accomplished he was to be treated as a man, his equal. Thus came about the modern practice of exchanging prisoners or holding them until the war is closed, and then giving them liberty. It is based upon the modern idea that to have superior power, either physical, moral or intellectual, does not give anyone the right to own the life and limb of another. Therefore, to modern thought—the highest result of human evolution—slavery is inherently wrong. It was good at one stage of development, in that it was more humane—a distinct advance over the earlier practice—but, in this day and age, it is an evil. It belongs, then, to an early stage in the progress of civilization.

Our country made the fatal error of attempting to live at the same time in the Nineteenth Century of freedom, and in the Dark Ages of slavery and tyranny. It adopted at the same time the primitive system of slavery and the modern principle of equal rights. The seeds of the ancient system were planted at Jamestown when a Dutch trader sailed up the James River in 1620 and landed a cargo of slaves. In the same year the seeds of the modern idea were planted on the rugged New England coast when the Pilgrims—fugitives from tyranny—landed at Plymouth.

The place of first planting had much to do with the localizing of these two widely differing systems. But it does not become us of the North to boast of any superiority over the South, because we represented the higher stage of civilization. For, in fact, it was self-interest that saved us from the lower. Had slave labor been profitable in the North there is little probability that there would ever have been a Mason's and Dixon's line. It was sectional self-interest that actually drew the line between the North and the South.

It would ill become us as fair-minded people to shift all the blame upon the South for the crime of slavery. We escaped its more immediate touch by the mere accident of soil and climate. If we were disposed to shift the burden of the curse upon the South alone, the history of the terrible war which brought it to an end, and a study of the movements of the natural forces of life underlying that tragic action, would rebuke us for our short-sightedness.

It was not the sin of the South alone. It was the crime of the nation. It was recognized by the Constitution and Law. Only sectional interest confined it to the South. As a country we attempted to live in two widely separated stages of development. Each of these systems was invading the province of the other. Each was grappling for foothold and contending for the supremacy. Like the mind of Hamlet, our national thought and feeling was being torn and devastated by the surging to and fro of these mighty contending forces. And, as Hamlet must suffer for attempting to live in two different planes of life, so we as a nation must suffer for the same vain endeavor.

In the mind of Hamlet the two powerful elements were pitted against one another one having the advantage, and now the other. The result is they neutralize each other, while wavering indecisions and inaction in sapping his very manhood, until at length a crisis precipitates the tragic action. Just so with our national career. The two powerful diverse elements were surging to and fro in the ante-bellum years of debate and contention; the one gaining, advancing, and then the other. The balancing of their powers produced irresolution, indecision and inaction. But they can never be reconciled. Their very nature they are opposed. The contention must unrelentingly ensue until the crisis is precipitated, ensue rends the nation in twain, and with the issue of secession or union the contest is brought upon the open stage of action.

Then followed one of the most terrible tragic struggles of history. The boys in blue, marching under the star spangled banner of freedom and union, were the actors representing one of the tragic forces. Their fellow Americans in gray under the stars and bars of confederacy, with equal earnestness and sincerity, were the actors for the other great tragic power. The preservation of the Union was the immediate issue of the war, but the utter disparity of the underlying forces of civilization which brought disunion, was its deep-seated cause, and their issue the real tragic action. States, having a common interest and origin; peoples, holding in common heritage and baptized in the same patriotic blood were arrayed against each other in deadly strife.

Our fair land was drenched with fraternal blood. Through the long dark years the great armies of the North and the South struggled to and fro with apparently balanced achievements and reverses. The whole world looked on with breathless interest to see if "a nation of the people" could survive this supreme test. Throughout the land was a tense spirit of war and resounding echo of thundering artillery, while the great powers were enveloped in the smoke of battle, which could be dispelled only by the triumph of one and the defeat of the other.

This direful tragic action reached its climax on the field of Gettysburg. There the tide of rebellion reached its height; and by such heroic efforts and at such terrible cost, as we today recall, it was turned back. In due time the cloud lifted and parted; and the sunlight breaking through, revealed to an anxious world the design of liberty and union triumphantly upheld by the men in blue, while at their feet the tragic force of the past lay vanquished, weltering in the bloodstained gray.

We are today, after nearly a half century, only beginning to realize the significance of that war and its issues. A full century of time may be required to know what really happened and all that comes of it.

When we review the events of this contest and the elements involved in it, we see it was the inevitable and necessary in the natural order of things as they were. A nation cannot permanently live at the same time in the past and the present. The one element must yield to the other. Why was this deadly tragedy necessary? It was because of that element to be found in every tragic action—a blindness of the actor to any other view than his own. Could the North or the South have seen the real view and motive of the other, all might have been different.

The great significance of this conflict lies in the fact that it was not merely Union men in blue fighting Confederates in gray. They were fellow countrymen—each acting the part of a great life principle. Each was blind to the principle of the other. There could be no reconciliation. But suppose they could have paused from huddling at each other denunciation and bitter epithet, have come together as neighbors and have calmly talked the matter over. Suppose, in this way both could have come to recognize the real fact; that it was the two great forces of a past and present stage of civilization were opposed, and not they themselves; that of these two they must, by struggle or peaceably, choose one; the issue might then have been determined by reason and calm judgment.

But this could not be in the blindness of heated controversy. Until the light of truth is seen more clearly, war will be the necessary incident of human progress. The method of evolutionary advancement has been that of division and contention. Parties, sects, schools of thought, clash with one another, and perhaps destroy one another. From the struggle their forces emerge into new forms. A study of the evolutionary processes in the development of civilization makes clear this most important fact: the higher level of life is always the stronger, and must finally prevail. In this fact we may see the supreme reality of life—The Hand Divine—operative in human progress, which is a steady advance onward and upward; whatever tragic accidents happen by the way.

"And that should teach us There's a divinity that shapes our ends, Rough-hew them how we will." (Shakespeare).

Man may not prevent or determine progress, but he may hinder or hasten it. It is his to choose what kind of force he will suffer to act through him. When the several forces are impinging his will for action, to choose the lower is to turn back in the way of life—is to be lost. To hesitate in vacillating indecision or daily with compromise, is likewise fatal to his real life. To choose and do the higher is the single way of actual life—the one way of advance to the better yet to be—is to be saved. His enduring safety lies in sensing the higher life-force, decision of will and action according thereto. This is the distinctive function of man.

He cannot do away with the forces or change their course; but he can control what they shall effect through him. He can rise in choice of moral principle and, like the balloon, change his course by getting into higher currents. As man rises in intelligence and sympathetic love, he is able to survey the world of diverse elements and forces; and, in the light of wisdom which human experience discloses, he may select and choose his way of life that rises above all petty antagonisms of individual or sectional self-interests, and through the higher realm of sympathetic brotherly interest and integrity to the common good, opens toward the heavens of divine reality and the status of human destiny.

In our day we open our eyes to what is going on around us, and it is to see abundant signs of this happy consummation. We see them everywhere; in the kindlier relations between sects and parties, and in flashing signals from nation to nation, in the tendency among strong nations to cease using their power for the conquest of the weak and lend their superior ability and wisdom to sustain and uplift them; in the growing sense of common interest and welfare that is drawing peoples and nations from attention to their separate and contending interests and fighting forces, and choosing them into one great onward moving body of humanity under the single banner of Liberty, Equality, Brotherhood and Righteousness.

The wondrous progress in recent times of discovery, growth of commerce, increase of facilities for travel and intercommunication, is fast binding the world-life into one neighborhood. No more important event in all history was there than that of our day: the establishment of an international court of arbitration. In the natural course of human sense, this is but the first step in the organization of nations under a world legislative body and executive function of government. The federation of the world is no longer an iridescent dream of imaginative prophetic fancy; but is inevitably and rapidly becoming a practical reality, when "Empires by the sea, nations great and free,

One anthem raise,
One race, one faith we claim,
One God, whose glorious name
We love and praise."

It is the task of our day and generation; to relieve that blindness from which all tragic actions spring, and in the light of reality, and on which all shall learn to learn part in it, and men shall not learn any more. Charge the atmosphere of common life with the magnetic power of positive suggestion that will draw all thought, interest and motive into the onward and upward sweep of universal reality.

Here is the part you and I as individuals are to play in the great life matter. We may diminish the suggestive force for positive good, and be lost from its onward sweep, by our blindness, wrong choice, indifference, or indecision. Or we may increase the suggestive power for the actualities of being, and be forever saved in its unending forward sweep, by being true to the highest we know and can know. Never content with that we know and can do with ease and convenience; but constant in employ of the facilities and powers to know more and more the nature and direction of the deep underlying forces of positive life reality—The Will Divine—that we may do better; to the happy end, that our life force may effectively help on the march of events toward the day of light, when the world shall be the community of God's children.

"O make us through the centuries long; In peace secure, in justice strong! Around our gift of freedom draw The safeguards of thy righteous law;—made in some diviner mould."

HARDY—MORSE.

The marriage of Frederick S. Hardy of Newton and Miss Elsie Morse of Haverhill was performed Friday evening at the Portland Street Baptist Church, Haverhill, Rev. Robert L. Webb officiating. They were attended by Mr. Charles E. Gibson of

If you want a cool, attractive rug,—one that does n't fill your room up or make it look hot and uncomfortable during the hot weather, we'd like to show you the Crex kind.

Crex Rugs are very inexpensive; they are made in enough colors and patterns and sizes to give you a wide choice,—and they are cool.

They are excellent for any time, and unsurpassed for summer.

Just come in and get prices and see our styles. You ought to know them whether you buy or not.

THEATRES

Kelth's Theatre—One of the most important engagements of the summer is made by B. F. Kelth for the appearance at his theatre in Boston next week of Le Grande Pandore, the famous doll revived from the court of Louis XIV. by John Colby Abbott. This doll has been the sensation of drawing rooms of Boston, New York and London and Paris, where it was exhibited by Mr. Abbott. The patrons in London being Mrs. Whitlaw Reid, the Marchioness of Londonderry, the Dowager Countess of Shrewsbury, Lady Newborough, Lady Palmer and Mrs. George Cornelius Abbott, wife of the doll was exhibited at Mrs. John L. Gardner's Fenway Court.

This feature will make a special appeal to women, especially as Le Grande Pandore shows the beautiful dresses of the time of Louis XIV. and Marie Antoinette, and is particularly interesting at this time on account of the hairdressing which is now reaching the alarming proportions of those times. At Kelth's the doll will be exhibited in all its beautiful costumes by Mrs. John Colby Abbott, wife of the inventor, and already has aroused the greatest interest in Boston.

American Music Hall—Comedy will supplant the serious at the American Music Hall this coming week when the Lindsay Morison Stock Company will present Willie Collier's funniest of all successes, "Caught in the Rain." The big feature of the production will be a real rain storm in which real water will pour in torrents upon the stage. Other scenic effects will be on a par with those used in the original production by Mr. Collier. The cast will include all the members of the company, among them being Wilson Melrose, Theodore Friebus, Rosalind Coghlan, Mary Sanders, Rose Morrison, Katherine Clinton, William Hasson, Edward Namany and Valerie Valaire. Monday matinee, as usual, chocolate bon-bons will be presented to the patrons and the prices will remain the same as at the beginning of the summer season.

SUMMER SUPPLY.

The pulpit of Eliot Church will be supplied during the pastor's absence by the following well known preachers:

July 10—President Ozora S. Davis, D. D., Theological Seminary, Chicago, Ill.

July 17—Rev. Frank L. Goodspeed, D. D., First Presbyterian Church, Oakland, Cal.

July 24—Rev. William E. Barton, D. D., First Church, Oak Park, Ill.

July 31—Rev. Charles H. Beale, D. D., Grand Avenue Church, Milwaukee, Wis.

Aug. 7—Rev. Harris E. Kirk, D. D., Franklin Street Church, Baltimore, Md.

Aug. 14—Rev. John E. Tuttle, D. D., First Presbyterian Church, York, Pa.

Aug. 21—Rev. Watson L. Phillips, D. D., Church of the Redeemer, New Haven, Conn.

Aug. 28—Rev. Clarence F. Swift, D. D., Central Church, Fall River, Mass.

Sept. 4—Professor John F. Genung, Ph. D., Amherst College, Amherst, Mass.

During the month of August the Baptist and Methodist churches of Newton will unite with Eliot Church in union services.

The Graphic is printed and mailed Friday afternoon, and is for sale at all News-stands in the Newtons, and at the South Terminal, Boston.All communications must be accompanied with the name of the writer, and unpublished communications cannot be returned by mail unless stamps are enclosed.Notices of all local entertainments to which admission fee is charged must be paid for at regular rates, 15 cents per line in the reading matter, or 25 cents per line in the advertising columns.From conversation with quite a number of parents, I have come to the conclusion that there is a strong sentiment in this city against the practical abolition of the ninth grade in our public schools. Like many other matters of public interest, there is little disposition to oppose the authorities on matters of this sort, as the average parent does not like to be involved in controversy with the school department.One of the members of the school committee has privately assured me that he does not believe it wise to send such young children into the high schools, and his attitude simply shows the paramount influence that the superintendent of schools exercises on men whom we suppose, govern the city in school matters.Would it not be a wise plan in the coming fall to organize a Parents Association, in order that there may be some forum in which the parents could consider from their own standpoint the needs of their children and the work which they would like to have done in the public schools?The recent convention of the National Education Association in Boston emphasizes the fact that among educators themselves there is a wide difference of opinion as to the advisability of the new methods of education which are now being agitated all over the country.With our school expenses the highest in the state, and with results which are now mediocre, to say the least, it would seem as if it was high time for both parents and taxpayers to organize, and have some influence in the management and expenses of our school department.While Newton has usually selected its Mayor anywhere from a year and a half to two years before the actual election takes place, there has not been any attempt as yet to select a successor for Mayor Hatfield a year from next December. Among those who have great influence in the choice of a Mayor, there is a persistent rumor that a strong effort will be made to induce ex-Alderman Frank A. Day to accept the nomination.Mr. Day has been so prominent in the philanthropic, educational, charitable and religious circles of the city that the presentation of his name would undoubtedly meet with much enthusiasm. The only difficulty appears to be that of inducing Mr. Day to allow the use of his name for the office, for, although he has given seven years of service to the city as an alderman, it is well known that he is reluctant to accept further political honors.The new law which will allow this district to make a direct nomination for senator in place of the present convention system, requires considerable work in order to have the matter placed before the voters next November. The editor of the Graphic would be pleased to hear from anyone interested enough in this progressive movement to take the pains to obtain the signatures of a few voters each in different parts of the city. The matter should be given attention during the next ten weeks, if the district is to vote on the matter next November.Readers of the Graphic can have their papers sent to their summer address without additional expense by sending name and address to the GRAPHIC office, Telephone North 77.

NEW FIRE TRUCK.

The new automobile fire truck which has just been put in commission is the product of a Springfield concern and cost about $5500. It is of 55 horsepower and will be known as Combination A. The body of the machine carried 1000 feet of water hose, a 35-gallon chemical tank and 200 feet of hose, two medium length ladders, life nets, hand extinguishers, axes and in fact everything necessary to make it a veritable "first aid" piece of apparatus. It is stationed at West Newton, replacing the old horse-drawn chemical engine, and for the present at least will respond to alarms from all of the 158 boxes in the city. The automobile weighs about 6300 pounds and its tires measure 6x40 inches.

APPROVED.

The Railroad Commissioners have approved the orders of the Board of Aldermen granting the Middlesex &
Boston and the Boston & Worcester Street Railway Companies the right to carry baggage and light freight in this city.Be good to them that hate you—and pretty soon they won't.Fear of failure never staid a man on the road to success.

FOR BOARD OF ALDERMEN

CANDIDACY OF GROSVENOR CALKINS ANNOUNCED

Grosvenor Calkins of 22 Bellevue street, at the request of the business interests of his ward, has consented to become a candidate for election as alderman at large from Ward 1 to succeed Alderman Stone, who retires this year from the board. Mr. Calkins is the son of Rev. Wolcott Calkins, D. D., and has been a resident of the ward and city for over 30 years. He prepared for college in the Newton High School and graduated from Harvard College in 1897 and from the Harvard Law School in 1899, since which time he has actively and successfully practiced law in Boston.
In 1903 Mr. Calkins was secretary of the special committee appointed (Advertisement).by Governor Crane to revise the business corporation laws of Massachusetts and he is recognized as an authority on the subject of corporation and taxation law.Mr. Calkins is a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, of the Boston and Middlesex Bar Associations and of a number of Boston and Newton clubs. He has always taken an active interest in ward and city affairs. Mr. Calkins' friends are satisfied that if elected he will fully maintain the high standard of representation already established by his predecessors from Ward 1 in the Board of Aldermen.Joseph W. Howard,

NORUMBEGA PARK.

Norumbega Park is undoubtedly on the very top wave of popularity this season. Nothing like the attendance both in the park and in the magnificent new open-air theatre this season has ever been known there. In the open-air theatre for the coming week the vaudeville program is headed by Gordon and Stoddard, the famous European specialists. Their musical act is absolutely novel and is renowned for its feature of musical bells. Another big act will be Kessely's marionettes, admitted everywhere as the best in vaudeville. Richards and Montrose will be seen in their very entertaining medley of eccentric novelties which include a little of acrobatics, singing, dancing, etc. Other acts on the bill will be of equal importance. And there will be new moving pictures.

TO GLOUCESTER.

The fine, newly-equipped Boston-to-GloUCESTER steamboats have begun their daily and Sunday trips to the quaint old fishing city of Gloucester. These cooling and highly invigorating trips are delightful in the extreme. No such views of the far-famed North Shore can be had other than by these splendid boats of the Gloucester line—safe, commodious, fitted with every comfort and convenience, and supplied with good music. If you want to "get next" to nature's most fascinating side, take one of these trips at 10 a. m. any weekday (10:15 Sundays), and go up the cool and enchanting North Shore.

POLICE NOTES.

Mrs. Lillian Carr, a negress, who lives at 87 Crafts street, was in court Tuesday morning for assault and battery on Eliot Gliffis, a small boy. She pleaded guilty and exhibited a toy pistol which she claimed the boy threw at her, the weapon "bouncing off her back and striking a lady friend." "I got so made, judge, that I just turned around quick and smacked him," she said. Judge Kennedy placed the case on file after warning Mrs. Carr.

—Waban topped her already enviable record for Fourth of July celebrations this year and thanks to the hard working committee headed by Mr. D. M. Hill, enjoyed a most successful "safe and sane" Fourth. Not a hitch or unpleasant feature occurred to mar the program, which furnished sport and entertainment for all ages from early morn till the "good night" under the stars and stripes blazed out at nearly 10 o'clock. The new departure, the much heralded antique and horrible parade, which began the festivities, was a howling success and is sure to be a fixture in the future. Fully 75 were in line and the weird and wonderful costumes made a picture no artist could paint. The judges were hard put to it to select the prize winners, finally choosing for first place Mr. H. W. Annable and small son with their dragon. Second place went to A. M. Crain, the charming fat lady; third to John Mulligan of the "Mulligan Musketeers," and fourth to the gold dust twins, Misses

A WONDERER.

To the Editor of the Graphic: Our "safe and sane" Fourth is over and we should all be thankful for the change from other days. I am for one, and yet there was a rift within the lute which marred the perfect harmony.

Early in the morning as I lay dozing and giving thanks for the quiet, the wind bore to my ears the sound of the chimes at Newton Centre. Distant chimes are soothing and I composed myself to listen, and enjoy the harmony. The melody which I heard was "God Save the King." I am well aware that the words of "America" are sung to that melody, but without the words the air is "God Save the King." I listened, hoping against hope, that I should hear some distinctly American airs, and finally toward the end of the selections I heard "Maryland, My Maryland."

Now, Mr. Editor, I wonder why, on Independence Day, those chimes should not have mingled out "The Star Spangled Banner," the air that brings us to our feet with heads uncovered; the air that sends a thrill through us when we hear it in a foreign land, and makes us unconsciously stiffen our backs and thank God that we are Americans. And I am still wondering.

FRANCIS GBO. CURTIS.

WHY SHOULD THE MERIT SYSTEM BE APPLIED TO ALL CITY AFFAIRS.

By Lois Bailey of the Mason School, Newton Centre.

In the first place let us consider the state of affairs that called for the Civil Service Reform, and the progress of this movement; also the contrast between the Spoils System and the new reform.

In the administration of Andrew Jackson he created what is commonly known as the Spoils System, turning out of their government positions all his political opponents, and filling their places with his own Democratic friends. In this way many efficient men were turned out of employment.

The custom prevailed for a great many years. In 1865 a few reformers tried to make things better, but nothing was really accomplished. Congress authorized the President to appoint a Civil Service Commission in 1871. That had some effect, but after two years, Congress proved unwilling to do its duty towards appointing commissioners. It was not until 1881, when President Garfield was murdered by a man who wanted a political position and was disappointed, that people began to see the real need of some reform. On Jan. 16, 1883, the Civil Service Act was passed. It meant regulation and improvement in the civil service of the United States.

Under the Spoils System, valuable, efficient men, some perhaps with families, were turned out of employment and thrown upon the world with no surety of other positions. During times of election the government clerks no longer did their duty but waited nervously for the next upheaval. As changes were likely to occur every four years, an employee of the government no sooner became acquainted with his task than it might be taken away from him and given to somebody else who had to learn it all over again. Thus no continuous efficient service was possible. Political leaders got control of the government offices and created unnecessary positions to reward friendly politicians. This forced the government to pay, for example, three men to do the work of two, which was a drain on the finances of the country.

The Civil Service Act of 1883 brought about the Merit System, which insists that the choice of governmental employees be based upon the fitness and experience, not forgetting the character and health of the applicants for a given position, rather than on political service or personal influence.

Now the candidates for the Civil Service Commission have to go through long examinations before they can be permitted to take the position. They also have to be inspected by a doctor, and obtain his certificate. Other similar examinations are passed to be sure the man is fitted for his line of work. Let us take an example of a man who wishes to become an inspector of bridges. He will be supposed to know how bridges are made, their different parts and so forth, all about the best ways of repairing one, and where all weaknesses lie. Then he must be tested in his knowledge of arithmetic and must know how to write a good letter. He will also be supposed to have had a certain amount of experience. We will say that 70 per cent is the passing mark, and he must receive that, at least, in order to have a chance of being chosen. After he has passed the test, he must have his name placed on a list according to rank. If he is among the first three, he will have a good chance of being elected.

Under these rules or similar, all our mail carriers, our policemen, our lighthouse keepers, our firemen, our steamboat inspectors, all employed in the Custom Service, and thousands of day laborers, are working.

But what are the results of this Merit System? In the first place, it saves our country vast sums of money. The Detroit Free Press, Nov. 14, 1905, printed this statement: "In a speech before the Detroit Municipal League in 1905, Hon. Joseph W. E. Pratt, president of the Chicago Civil Service, gave figures showing a saving of one hundred seventy-nine thousand dollars in the management of one department in that city."

There are other important benefits from the Civil Service Reform. It seeks for our government honest, efficient, capable men who know their business and do their duty. It protects the government employee against injustice during times of political riot. It has abolished unnecessary positions and improved methods of business.

No one has been more devoted to the Merit System than ex-President Roosevelt, who was appointed when a young man a Federal Civil Service Commissioner, and has been in all of his various offices a consistent and loyal worker in this most important reform.

The Merit System has appealed so strongly to those in authority and to the people at large because of its great success, that it has grown until today it plays a very large part in the national, state and city government.

Many of our largest cities have placed under the regulations of the Merit System their firemen, their police force, road commissioners, foresters, assessors, water and light commissioners and their boards of health. Why does it seem necessary to enforce this system in these departments of our cities?

1. The safety of our homes and of ourselves depends upon the alertness, the experience and the character of our policemen and firemen.

2. With the wear of automobiles, cars, express wagons, carriages and foot travelers, do we not need permanent, scientifically constructed roads?

3. The beauty of our city depends largely upon the fine trees, and were not these cared for intelligently, in time they would be destroyed by the moths.

4. To have our taxes distributed wisely and justly, is one of the most difficult and important tasks in connection with city government.

5. It takes great skill and experience to supervise the construction of an extensive water system.

6. It was a very simple matter in olden days for a man to go around and fill the little kerosene lamps in the city streets, but now that we use gas and electricity, experts are needed.

7. Our lives and homes are just as dependent upon the devotion of a conscientious, able Board of Health to protect from disease, as upon the efficient service of any department in the city.

We should be glad to see the Merit System extended also to the education in our cities.

A measure that has worked so satisfactorily in our larger cities certainly would be a great benefit to all other cities and towns.

As Theodore Roosevelt has said: "The Merit System of making appointments is, in its essence, as democratic and American as the common school system itself, for it is simply one method of securing honest and efficient administration of the government, and, in the long run, the sole justification of any type of government lies in its proving both honest and efficient."

MORE LIGHT

The improvements in the electric street lighting in Newton which the Edison Electric Illuminating Company has been working upon for some time have now progressed to a point where the results are attracting much favorable attention. Along Washington street, from the Wellesley line to the West Newton bridge, the old 25 candle power carbon lamps and the old type of arc lamps have been removed, and in their places the company has installed a sufficient number of Mazda incandescent lamps with new modern fixtures to give more than three times as much illumination. Not only has the intensity of the illumination been increased, but there is a much more general and even distribution of the light. This gives most excellent and pleasing results.

The plans for improving Newton lighting provided for a general removal of the old 25 candle power carbon lamps and the substitution of 40 candle power Mazda incandescent lamps. Over 1400 lamps in all will be changed, and the lighting will be secured by the use of 40 candle power, 60 candle power and 100 candle power Mazda lamps.

A STRONG COMPANY.

The Newtonville Trust Company is steadily increasing its business, its individual deposits subject to check averaging at present one-half a million of dollars. Its new banking rooms have proved a great success and customers find them attractive and very convenient.

Dr. Edward E. Hopkins of Newtonville avenue has recently become a director of the company, and adds very greatly to the strength of the board.

The board of directors is, as at present constituted, Dwight Chester, president; Albert P. Carter, Samuel Parquhar, Oliver M. Fisher, James W. French, Samuel W. French, Dr. E. E. Hopkins, George Hutchinson, Seward W. Jones, John F. Lothrop, Frederick S. Pratt and Frank L. Richardson.

NO COMPLAINTS WANTED.

One of the interesting items in the copy of the Columbian Centinel of July 7, 1810 (from which we recently quoted an account of the celebration of the Fourth of July 100 years ago), is an advertisement of the assessors of the town of Boston, notifying the inhabitants to bring in to them "the valuation of their real estate, true and perfect lists of the polls, and the just valuation of their real and personal estate."

At the end of the advertisement occurs a sentence which is as applicable today as it evidently was 100 years ago. "N. B. If the above advertisement be not properly attended to, the assessors hope to have no more complaints after the tax bills are issued, for want of judgment in dooming their estates."

TENNIS WEEK FIRST ISSUE

The tournament for the Eastern doubles championship and the 20th annual Longwood singles will take place on the grounds of the Longwood Cricket Club, Brookline, July 18 to July 23 inclusive.

Some of the entries already received are William A. Larned, champion of the United States; B. C. Wright and W. J. Clothier, former champions of the International team of 1909; N. W. Niles, champion of Massachusetts; W. F. Johnson, intercollegiate champion; R. D. Little, G. F. Touchard, C. R. Gardner, R. H. Palmer and F. C. Inman of New York; R. C. Seaver and F. J. Suloway of Boston, and the entries of many others of the best players are confidently expected.

The presence of so many strong players will result in interesting matches throughout the week. Matches will occur both mornings and afternoons.

Subscriptions for reserved transferable tickets to the grand stand, including admission for the week, at $2.50 each, will be received by Edwin Sheafe, president, 104 Milk street, Boston (telephone, Main 2648). Applications will be filled in the order of receipt. Reserved seats for the week or for any one morning or afternoon, including admission, at $1, may be obtained either at Wright & Ditson, 344 Washington street, or at the club grounds on and after Monday, July 18. Subscribers to tickets for the week will have preference in allotment of seats. Admission 50 cents.

A NEW RESTAURANT.

A new and commodious restaurant has been located in the Nonantum building, Nonantum square, by Mr. William P. Sweeney and Mr. John J. Cronin, to take the place of the former lunch room conducted by Mr. Sweeney.

The premises have been enlarged by the addition of the pool room, formerly run by Mr. Sweeney, and has been completely refitted in a first-class manner.

The lunch room itself is finished in Mission style, the wood painted a dark green, and is equipped with the best modern facilities for quick lunches. There are stools for 25 persons. In addition there are six tables, seating 24 persons, where ladies and others who desire a more elaborate meal can have nicely served and attractive lunches.

An attractive feature of the new restaurant is the Dutch mirror effect given the entire room by inserting small mirrors in the wall to a considerable height.

A new soda fountain 12 feet in length has been installed directly in front of the large window facing the square and equipped with the most modern requirements for serving soft drinks.

The new firm has employed a competent chef and pastry cook, and all food is cooked and prepared on the premises. Mr. Sweeney and Mr. Cronin have made a notable addition to the business life in Nonantum square.

The first issue of the Boston Daily Globe of March 4, 1872, has been sent to the Graphic office. The paper is an eight page, seven column, of a so-called "blanket" issue. It is noticeable for its lack of headlines and display advertisements.

The first page is devoted to two columns of miscellaneous advertisements, and five columns of book notices, extracts from sermons preached the day previous, and current notices, of which the first one is "Colorado is knocking at the door."

There is considerably change in the Boston Daily Globe of that issue and the present policy of the Globe management in the matter of editorials. The 1872 issue contains five columns of editorials on many topics, including the present day problems of the "cost of living." The opening paragraph of this editorial is worth quoting at the present time.

"We have read with more than passing interest from day to day, a series of letters published in the New York Times relative to the cost of living, and rehearsing various individual experiences in this line of domestic economy. It cannot be denied that with us the progress has more than kept pace with the progress of wealth, and has practically abolished the real substantial comfort of life."

The paper gives considerable detailed account of the work in the Legislature of the previous Saturday; much more detail, in fact, than the account of the present day.

The lack of headlines is particularly noticeable in a two inch account of "A murder and probable suicide occurred on the Grand Quarry, Dix Island, today." This item, which in the present day would probably have a four or six inch heading, is simply labeled in small type "A Maine Tragedy."

Four columns of the paper are given up to correspondence from New York, South America, West Indies, England and Arabia, each of which are labeled "From our own correspondent." There is also a little over two columns and a half of foreign intelligence. Many of the items which at the present time would be treated at length are merely brief paragraphs.

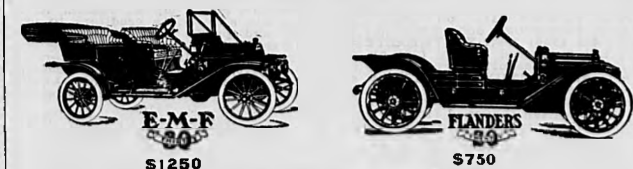

All in all, the first issue of the Boston Daily Globe is a most interesting number, when viewed in the light of present day journalism.

MR. SPRINGER DEAD.

Mr. Marcellus P. Springer, for many years a resident on Arlington street, passed away Monday at his summer home in North Sidney, Me., after a brief illness. He was in his 72d year. Mr. Springer was a former member of the cloak concern of Springer Brothers. He was a member of Grace Church, the Katahdin Club and other organizations. A widow, two sons, Ernest M., formerly captain of the Clifton Guards; Martin, and four daughters, Mrs. Beatrice Church and the Misses Florence, Mildred and Eleanor Springer, survive him.

The Insurance Press of last month has some interesting figures showing the sums paid in 1909 for life insurance all over the country. Massachusetts with a total payment of $25,500,000, stands third in the list, being exceeded only by New York and Pennsylvania. The city of Newton is not treated as a whole, but each village is given separately. The figures are given as follows:

Newton	$235,576
West	53,630
Centre	71,604
Highlands	24,860

Newtonville and Upper Falls are listed as under $10,000 each. The largest payments noted in this city are to William D. Whitmore, Jr., G. D. Gilman, Joseph E. Merrill, G. W. Bartlett and Heman A. Packard.

MRS. FREEMAN.

Mrs. Sarah E. Freeman passed away Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Arthur H. Wiggin, on Bourne street, at the age of 73 years. She was a native of Winthrop, Me., but had lived all her married life in Natick and making her home with Mrs. Wiggin since the death of her husband, Hiram J. Freeman, 12 years ago. She is survived by two sons, George A. Freeman of Auburndale, Wellesley, and S. Freeman of Newton; one daughter, Mrs. Belle H. Wiggin, four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held yesterday at the Wiggin residence in charge of Rev. C. M. Southgate, former pastor of the Auburndale Congregational Church, and the burial was at Dell Park Cemetery, Natick.

NORUMBEGA PARK.

It may seem remarkable but there are very few people, even among the regular weekly patrons of Norumbega Park, and there are many thousands of them, who realize how many interesting attractions there are there. Now and then one runs across the old-fashioned visitor who goes to spend the day and makes a business of taking in everything, but most people go there for some one thing. In the open air theatre for the coming week a vaudeville bill of exceptional strength has been secured. Hearing the list are the Pedersen brothers, who are world beaters on the flying rings. They are said to have no equals in this line of work. Then there will be Brindamour, the original fall breaker, who does stunts with handbells and shackles that make Houdini look like an amateur. Another big feature act will be Warren and Brockaway, the comedy instrumentalists.

THEATRES

American Music Hall—Always on the alert to give his patrons the very best that the market affords, Lindsay Morison has engaged for this coming week to present at the American Music Hall the mostly widely discussed play of the last decade, "The Clansmen," by Rev. Thomas Dickson. This will be the first time that this piece has ever been presented at any theatre in Boston, although several efforts were made to bring it here during the last two seasons. So much newspaper publicity has been devoted to the "Clansmen" that little comment is necessary. Suffice it to say that it is a powerful exposition of the race problem which in this country today is growing more and more serious as time goes on. The scenes are all laid in the South and it deals with the negro question which has agitated the minds of America's greatest statesmen since the time of Abraham Lincoln. In securing this piece for the first Boston presentation, Mr. Morison has turned a trick which stamps him as one of the most progressive stock managers in America. The full strength of the company will be used in the production, including Wilson Melrose, Rosalind Coghlan, Theodore Fidebus, Mary Sanders, Rose Morison, Katherine Clinton, William Henson, Richard Pitman, Edward Nannery and Valerie Valaire. Mr. Morison will continue his usual custom of distributing chocolate bonbons to his patrons Monday matinees and the same popular prices will rule regardless of the fact that this is the very first opportunity that Bostonians will have of seeing this most sensational play.

Colonial Theatre—They are giving "$3,000,000"—to reopen the Colonial Theatre on Monday, Aug. 1. That is to say that they are going to open the season with a big musical corporation entitled "Three Million Dollars" on that date. Charles Marks, who is well known as the producer and manager of Richard Carle's former successes, "The Spring Chicken," "The Tenderfoot," "Mary's Lamb," etc., will be responsible for the welfare of "Three Million Dollars." This is his first individual production and is said to be the most elaborate of all the successes he has been interested in. Prominent in the list of Spendthrifts are such well known artists as Juliet, who created quite a furore in Boston, in vauville a few months ago. Mark Smith, who played the title role in "The Travelling Salesman" during its record breaking run of five months at the Park Theatre; May Boley, one of America's cleverest character comedienne; Louis A. Simon, who will have a new specialty with his famous ladder skit; Arthur Conrad, who was a hit in "Bright Eyes"; George Lydecker, late of "The Man Who Owns Broadway"; Dorothy Brenner, who has appeared in many successful productions that have pleased Bostonians; also Carolyn Gordon, Grace Griswold, Frances Alain, George Barbier, George Oip, Julia Eastman, Ab. Adams, George E. Romani. While there are 60 beautiful young ladies in "Three Million Dollars" none of them are to be known as the chorus. No, indeed, they will be known with the dignified title of "Gilt Edged Heiresses." Mr. Marks considers this trade mark for his beauties so valuable that he has applied for a copyright. "Three Million Dollars" will give matinees on Wednesday and Saturday and after the summer run at the Colonial Theatre goes direct to New York.

A FINE TRIP.

Members of the Massachusetts Press Association and ladies enjoyed a delightful day's outing on Monday when they took the sail to Gloucester on the Cape Ann of the Boston & Gloucester line. Mr. Edward S. Merchant, general manager of the company, rendered all possible aid to the comfort and pleasure of the party. The trip along the North Shore with views of Nahant, Swampscott, Marblehead, Half-Way Rock and the charming shores of Beverly, Manchester and Magnolia, was enjoyed by all. In Gloucester harbor, we found the Dolphin, the yacht of the navy department, and the Mayflower, which is to be used by President Taft in his trip to the Maine coast. Gloucester seemed like a close after the cool breezes of the bay, but a short trolley ride than the crowded and busy main street brought the party to the spacious Surfside Hotel and to a lunch which brought many compliments to mine host Hyams, who did all in his power to make our brief visit a pleasure and delight. Most of the party walked back to the boat wharf in order to get a glimpse of the city and to make a short visit at the home of the Gloucester Times. The Board of Trade provided each member of the party with an attractive and finely illustrated pamphlet of Gloucester and an invitation to visit the plant of the leading fish curing establishment was regrettably declined on account of lack of time. As it was, one member of the party missed the return boat which left promptly on time. The sail home was another pleasure and it was with much regret that the wharf and the hot city were reached.

It was the unanimous opinion of all the party that one of the pleasantest day trips out of Boston is to the quaint old city of Gloucester via the steamer Cape Ann.

SUIT THE CHILD.

At the session of the National Education Association held last Friday and devoted to the physiological and psychological training of school children, Dr. F. E. Spaulding, superintendent of schools of Newton, was a speaker.

Dr. Spaulding talked on changes in curricula, courses of study, length of sessions and many similar branches of administrative work connected with education. It is his belief that although a start has been made in the proper direction in the past few years another decade will see still greater changes resulting in constantly growing benefit to the children.

Dr. Spaulding made the point which has been uppermost in the minds of many educators and supervisors lately that the school exists primarily for the child; that hours and courses must be made to fit the child's capacity; and that regulations, of how ever long standing and good repute in former days, must give way in the march of progress.

"Our school curricula," said Dr. Spaulding, should be so ordered as to make our school children into good citizens. The same work and discipline will not suit all cases, and where it may be uniform and where it may be diverse, must be determined by the needs of various communities and sets of conditions. Every teacher, nowadays, is considering the tendency towards vocational direction, and from a careful consideration of this timely phase of educational methods, we learn to make the most of every child. Indeed, the study of a child's inclinations and possibilities may well begin before he is born.

"We discover many changes from a few years ago; there is now more regard for hygiene in schools; the courses and length of school sessions are being more carefully arranged; the size of classes is now planned from the point of view of the child. All these modifications are good signs. It shows that educators themselves are becoming educated and in a few years, still further changes, such as now we appreciate only dimly, will result in still greater comfort to the child and make the product of the public school such that abnormal and subnormal will not be so prevalent."

SUMMER SCHOOL.

The third annual Baptist summer school at Newton is reported as having met with almost unlooked for enthusiasm this year. The membership was 57, against 43 and 33 in the two previous years, and represented the entire New England district besides two from Canada. Massachusetts had 26 men, New Hampshire 12, Vermont 11. There were Finns, Germans, French, Italians, Poles and Negroes among the students, all harmoniously seeking inspiration in their work. The addresses were divided between expository preaching, sociological methods and missionary work. The students visited the Harvard Semitic Museum and the educational and rescue institutions of Boston, and altogether partook of a broad view of the Christian scheme. They passed most emphatic resolutions of gratitude to the faculty for the service.

MILLIONS KILLED.

While other places have been troubled by the brown-tailed moth, Newton was practically free from such visits until the high wind of Sunday night flooded the northern portions of the city with millions of the white winged moths. They were attracted by the electric lights, and the poles and adjacent buildings and trees were white with them when daylight came.

Forest Commissioner Bucknam was ready, however, and equipping the powerful tree sprayers with water, he attacked each pole, brushing the moths to the ground, where they were killed with stiff brooms. Two work was thoroughly done in two days, the largest number being found on Crafts street and on the Waltham line as far as Auburndale. It is reported the moths came from the New Hampshire woods.

Interesting figures having a bearing on the tax rate for 1910 are as follows: The total charges for state, county and metropolitan expenses for 1909, omitting water, were $386,240.92.
The same items this year total $294, 236.02, an increase of practically $8000. The city appropriation for 1910 is $1,255,000.23, an increase of $6000 over 1909, and the total levy, therefore, is about $14,000 more than the previous year, and would require 20 cents additional on the present valuation.

The assessors' report for 1909 shows that the new corporation law of that year, taking one-half of certain corporation taxes, produced an income of $37,356.49. The law was again amended this year, and Newton loses nearly all of certain corporation taxes, so that it is safe to assume that our income from this source will suffer a loss of about $40,000, or about 50 cents on the present valuation. While the assessors refuse any information as to this year's valuations, it is well known that two wealthy taxpayers of last year have left the city with over a million of personal property, and it is an open question whether the assessors will be able to discover enough new property to offset this loss. All in all, it looks as if the tax rate of 1910 would be considerably higher than that of last year.

ON THE ELBOW.

Chatham, on the end of the elbow of the Cape, is a most delightful place in which to spend a vacation at this time of the year. It is a quaint old town, surrounded on three sides by the ocean and inlets, and is always cool and comfortable when other shore towns are sweltering in the intense heat. It was my good fortune to spend the last ten days at the Hotel Mattaquassan in this delictful village. Mrs. Dean and myself could possibly tell quite a number of fish stories but really I dare not injure my reputation as a follower of the father of this country. Among others from our beautiful city at the hotel were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Elder, of Newton Highlands, and they contributed in no small degree to the enjoyment of everyone in the hotel and Mrs. Elder retains the record for catching crabs on a hand line, bar-none. By the constant dragging of a five-pound deep sea lead Mrs. Dean increased her muscle to a great extent and when asked why she did not load the boat with fish, replied by a little poem something to this effect:

And the dreamy old fisherman answered:

His repose, it was truly sublime,
It is not my wish to kill the poor fish,
I merely sit here to kill time.

Indeed poetry was rampant on every occasion where the Newtonians were present, for in the official log book of the fishing boat is this little skit:

"We left on the catboat Addie
To fish in Pleasant Bay
But they're telling us yet in Chatham
The biggest fish got away."

Just a word as to the hotel: Mine host Wilkey certainly understands the art of running a hotel from A to Z. Large rooms, artesian well water, private electric lighting plant, more than courteous attendants, personal supervision and last (but first in the estimation of many of the summer colonists) one of the finest tables and most elaborate menus in the state.
Thanking you for the space for this article, I can only add "Go thou and do likewise" and you will enjoy every minute of your stay. A. K. DEAN.

MEDICAL BOOKS.

A splendid set of up-to-date medical reference books, for the doctors of Newton, has been deposited in a convenient, well lighted special consulting room in the Newton Library, where they may be read daily from 10 a. m. to 8 p. m.

These books may be kept from the library only from 8 p. m. to 10 a. m.
of the day following, and over Sunday.

They include the best of the general books in medicine and surgery.
A list may be had for the asking.

All doctors are urged to avail themselves of this privilege and thus show their appreciation of this innovation.

The books are:

John. Diet in Health and Disease.

Goldthwait, Joel E. and others. Diseases of the Bones and Joints.

Greene, Robert Holmes, and Brooks.
Harlow. Diseases of the Genito-Urinary Organs and the Kidney.

LET EVERYBODY HELP KILL THE BUGS

This is the time of year when the citizens can help to a considerable extent the suppression of gypsy moth caterpillars.

At this time of year the worms come down the trees in the early morning and creep under the burlap bands that are placed around the trees which act as traps.

These bands do not stop the caterpillars from going up and down the trees at their leisure and in no way is it a preventative in this line; but it is used so that the caterpillars will crawl under and remain there all day and in this way the people can easily turn up the bands and kill the worms. A nice way to destroy the caterpillars is found by taking a can with some kerosene oil in it and with a small stick brush the worms off of the trees into the oil, where they will surely perish.

The employees of the forestry department are working on the street trees and wish all the help possible from those interested both on street trees and the private estates.

Section of burlap band raised during the day, showing gypsy moth caterpillars that had gathered beneath it on the trunk of an elm tree waiting to be killed by an interested citizen or an employee of the forestry department.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The Republican state committee at a meeting in Boston Tuesday set the date for the state caucuses.

In the cities which have adopted the joint caucus act, the caucus will be held on the evening of Sept. 27, and in other cities and towns the Republican state committee has set Sept. 25 as the date.

The Democrats had previously selected Sept. 27, and for this reason it was necessary for the Republican committee to select the same date in cases where the caucuses were held jointly.

The state convention will be held in Tremont Temple, Boston, on Thursday, Oct. 6.

SUNDAY SERVICE.

In the open air theatre at Norumbega Park the second meeting of the season under the auspices of the Boston Y. M. C. A. was held on Sunday. The attendance being large. A chorus of more than 50 male and female voices sang, assisted by a quartet and Mrs. Dora Dannon Brown, cornet soloist. The speaker was James A. Whitmore, religious work secretary for Y. M. C. A.'s in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Miss Sarah L. Arnold of Crescent avenue, dean of Simmons College, was one of the patronesses at the reception of the Boston Elementary Teachers' Club, held Thursday evening at the Hotel Somerset, Boston.

—Mrs. Priscilla S. Bourne, widow of the late George L. Bourne, and a former well known resident of this place, passed away Friday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Brewster, in Windsor, Vt. She was 83 years of age. A son and daughter survive her. The remains were brought home and the funeral was held Monday afternoon from the home of her son, Mr. George H. Bourne, on Woodbine street. Rev. C. E. Spaulding officiated and the burial was in Newton cemetery.

—The numerous rescues of canoeists from the Charles River made by the Metropolitan Park police have elicited numerous laudatory comments from those that frequent the river at Riverside. Under command of Sergeant Burton A. Murray, the men keep a vigilant patrol and almost see when a capsizing will occur. On Saturdays and Sundays when hundreds of canoeists are out they are particularly busy.

WORDS OF PRAISE

In the issue of the Youth's Companion of this week is an interesting article on the Newton Centre Playground and Social Service League, by Paul F. Foster. The cover illustrations of the Companion also have three scenes of the Playground. Mr. Foster's article is as follows:

Early in the spring of 1909 certain public-spirited residents of a prosperous Boston suburban village discovered that the three hundred boys of the community needed more supervision in their playtime hours. Their investigation of the situation resulted in the development of a playground movement which differs from nearly all others in the fact that it is promoted and directed by a village society, and not by city officials at public expense.

Newton Centre is a division of the city of Newton, Massachusetts, eight miles from Boston, with no factory population and no congested districts. The village has plenty of open ground, a large common and a seven-acre playground, within a stone's throw of the schools and village center. With all these opportunities for recreation, a feeling had long existed that the boys of the town needed direction, if not supervision, in their sports and games. In the spring of 1909 a committee in a men's church club began a quiet investigation of what the boys of the town were doing, and what ought to be done for them. Information was carefully gathered from teachers, policemen, shopkeepers, parents and the boys themselves. It showed that the boys encountered the same pitfalls as did boys in less favored groups of homes, and that the town was not doing its full duty by its growing citizens.

To enlist united effort to remedy these conditions, a dinner was arranged at which were gathered five representatives from each of the six village churches, the Mayor, the park commissioner, members of the school committee and the school principal. So much interest and enthusiasm were aroused at this "round table" that a public meeting was immediately called, at which the incorporation of the Playground and Social Service League of Newton Centre was enthusiastically agreed upon. Under the charter one member of the executive committee of the league is nominated by each of the following organizations: the city government, through the Mayor, the school committee, the Woman's Club of Newton Centre, the Newton Centre Improvement Association, a layman from each of the churches—Roman Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational and Unitarian. Six members are also nominated from the village at large.

With a committee so organized, there is every chance for effective co-operation, and duplication of effort is avoided. The officers are chairman, secretary and treasurer; there are several committees, on playground, work extension, finance, entertainment, education, membership and publicity, for example. The league's funds are raised by the memberships, which are of four classes: Regular memberships, $1 to $10; sustaining memberships, $10 to $100; patron memberships, $100 and over; and junior memberships with a nominal fee.

The league's directors agree that the key to the situation was the playground, a beautiful tract, intersected by a brook. In the heart of Newton Centre, which had been slowly developed from year to year as appropriations had been secured from the city government. They determined to insure the purchase of the entire field and to engage an executive director, who should be the agent of the league in the supervision of games and sports, and in the execution of such other plans as they should adopt.

Both these undertakings were accomplished. The field has been purchased and is now free from debt, and an expert from the International Young Men's Christian Association Training School at Springfield, Massachusetts, has been in charge since last summer. A landscape architect supervises the esthetic development of the field, and the director has developed new baseball diamonds, tennis courts, play spots and running tracks. The athletic director has absolute control of the playground, he is empowered with police authority by the city, and can issue permits for games or for the use of any part of the grounds at stated times.

Although the director organizes field athletics for the boys, he interferes as little as possible with the boys' own initiative in play, but helps to perfect their arrangements, suggests better methods, outlines a wider variety of sports, and sees that all bad language is suppressed, and that fairness and good-fellowship are increased. A very marked improvement has been noted in the conduct of the boys engaged in the sports, whether in practice or in contests. They have learned to "play the game" in sportsmanlike fashion.

The girls and younger children have also been well provided for—twelve swings, six teeter boards, six sand boxes and a half dozen first-class tennis courts forming only a portion of the equipment of the playground.

During the first summer the athletic director successfully carried through an all-Newton junior baseball league of seven teams from Newton Centre, Newtonville, Newton Highlands, Newton Upper Falls and Newton. The Newton Centre team won after triple tying twice, in an after series in September. It is interesting to note the fact that no boy can become a member of any of these teams unless his scholarship ranks above a certain average. All members of the various teams must also conform to simple training rules, an important one being the prohibition of cigarette smoking.

On Labor Day, besides the baseball games, the first all-Newton all-round athletic field day for amateurs was held.

During the same week the tennis tournament, which is to be an annual feature, was begun. Through the generosity of a member of the league handsome cups were given, for boys and for young women, each winner's name to be inscribed, and a three-times winner to be owner of the cup. Football leagues were formed in the fall. A committee of young ladies instructed the girls in basket ball, and every effort has been made to occupy and interest every boy and girl in some congenial sport.

Where formerly but a score of boys were to be seen playing ball, or a half dozen playing tennis daily on the big tract, since the playground has been put in well-equipped condition there has been an attendance of boys and girls, some of them accompanied by their elders, of from fifty to one hundred during vacation in the mornings, and seventy-five to two hundred in the afternoons, and all engaged in play or practice of athletic games, from the modeling in sand by the youngest children, to the athletic contests of the full-grown. Practically all this has been under direction of the league.

The league's activities do not cease during the winter. Skating and sliding, snowshoeing, curling, tobogganing and cross-country running are some of the events which are planned and organized by the athletic director in the colder months. Lectures and entertainments are also provided during the winter.

A room in a school building in one of the most thickly settled districts of the town was opened during certain evenings, where boys met to read and play games. This feature proved so popular, the attendance averaging over 30 boys nightly, that a library branch and reading room is now established in the same building, and a flourishing boys' club has also sprung from the same nucleus.

The boys of this town can participate in the management of the league through junior membership, for which a nominal fee is charged. This gives them an added interest in the league's affairs, and their labor and thought help to increase the value of the playground as a town institution.

The Playground and Social Service League of Newton Centre has focused village recreation in ideal surroundings, provided facilities and competent direction for youthful energies, and established a permanent agency in the promotion of city efficiency.

The league endeavors have enlisted the active support and proprietary interest of the whole community. It is difficult to conceive of a finer kind of "village improvement."

SOME RULES WORTH FOLLOWING

Some wise man in the business world has given us a decalogue of demands that should hedge every man about in his business relations with his fellows as closely as the Ten Commandments that were given to Moses on the Mount. Here they are. Paste them in your hat for instant reference.

1. Don't lie. It wastes time and you get caught in the end—always the wrong end. A liar must have a faultless memory.
2. Watch your work, not the clock. A long day's work makes a long day short, and a short day's work makes a boss' face long.
3. Give more than the boss expects, and you'll get more than you expect; increasing his profits will increase your pay.
4. You owe so much to yourself that you can't afford to owe anybody else. Keep out of debt.
5. Dishonesty is never an accident. Good men, like good women, can't see temptation when they meet it.
6. Mind your own business and in time you'll have a business to mind.
7. Don't hurt your self-respect. An employee who will steal for his boss will in time steal from him.
8. Don't dissipate nights—you can do only half as well next day, and hold the job only half as long.
9. Don't get familiar with your employer or allow him to do so with you, but command his respect by diligence and politeness, not flattery.
10. Don't kick when your boss kicks. If you are worth correcting, you are worth keeping.

MRS. HERBERT W. COLBY.

In the death last Sunday of Mrs. Herbert W. Colby of Hyde street, Newton Highlands, there passed out a gentle spirit which leaves behind it memories of kindness, womanliness and simplicity. It was a life which combined domestic tastes and virtues with efficient public service.

In the quiet ways of personal influence Mrs. Colby served the Commonwealth for years as a member of the State Board of Charities, with special charge of young girls who were minor wards of the state. By her gifts of character she influenced for good the lives of these young girls in their formative years. She won their confidence, lifted their standards and established them in right living. Many of these girls, who once were wards of the state, and now have homes and families of their own, looked to her with gratitude, for she believed in their possibilities for good, and she inspired them with confidence in themselves.

As a member of the Associated Charities of Newton she visited the homes of the poor, and by her sympathy, pity and counsel she cheered and comforted many a humble household.

But it was in the domestic sphere, in the relations of the home, that those who knew her best like most to think of her. In a lingering illness her pity and patience were put to the test. Stricken in mid-life with a fatal malady, she bore it with Christian cheerfulness, and she gave courage and hope to all about her.

In her home, and in the line of her chosen service, she went about doing good, in quiet ways, in a gentle spirit, and by the gifts and virtues of a simple and womanly character.

The funeral service was held at her home on Tuesday, July 12. It was conducted by Rev. Edward T. Sullivan, rector of Trinity Church, Newton Centre, of which parish Mrs. Colby had been a member 14 years. The interment was in Newton Cemetery.

NEWTON CENTRE PLAYGROUND NOTES.

Newton Centre residents will be interested in looking over this week's issue of the Youth's Companion. The front (even gives pictures of "An Ideal Playground," and the views seem very familiar to us. Though "The Centre" has always claimed that it has the ideal playground, it appreciates the corroborative opinion of the Youth's Companion. A two column article inside describes our new movement for playground development, and urges the plan to the consideration of other wide-awake communities.

Twenty small girls from 6 to 12 gathered under the trees on the playground Tuesday to enjoy games and dances under the direction of Miss Lawton of the Rice School and her assistants. These pleasant afternoons will be continued each Tuesday, or the first pleasant day thereafter, and all of the smaller girls of the village should plan on being there.

The Centre team plays the Newton Highlands Tigers on Saturday afternoon. Each team has won one game from the other.

The all-Newton League will be started next week. Open to any team in the Centre. Boys under 14 years of age.

You ought to be a member of the Playground League. It is a movement that is worth while. Send a dollar, or more, today to Frederic G. Melcher of the membership committee.

DIRECT NOMINATION.

In order to place the question of direct nomination for state senator on the ballot in this district next November, it will be necessary to obtain the names of 1302 voters to a petition to the Secretary of the Commonwealth, filed before Sept. 8. This is the requirement contained in Chapter 520 of the Acts of 1910, being 10 per cent of the number of votes cast for Governor in this senatorial district last November. As stated last week, the editor of the Graphic would be pleased to know the names of anyone sufficiently interested in this progressive movement to be willing to obtain a few signatures.

Keith's Theatre—Next week at Keith's there will be a bill of more than usual interest from the fact that it will contain a number of artists who have condensed their best of their talents into a few minutes for vaudeville. One of the most prominent of these will be Elizabeth Brice, who was recently featured with Nora Bays in "The Jolly Bachelors" at Lew Fields' Broadway Theatre in New York. Another is Charles King, who took George M. Cohan's place in "The Yankee Prince" and who will at Keith's do some of his Cohan stunts that made such a hit on Broadway. Another couple from the legitimate are the Dolly Sisters, who last season appeared in the big theatre scene in "The Midnight Sons" and were one of the hits of that production. Connolly and Webb will be a team new to Boston, with a splendid comedy called "A Stormy Finish," in which some excellent piano playing is introduced. Una Clayton and company will present Miss Clayton's latest sketch, called "His Local Color." Other features of the bill will be Stelling and Revelle, the acrobatic clowns from the New York Hippodrome; Tom Mahoney, the story teller; Miss Fannie Fish, the whistler; and the three McGrady's, Scotch imitators and archers.

TWO DROWNED IN CHARLES RIVER

In a canoeing accident on the Charles river at Auburndale, late Friday afternoon, two persons were drowned and two others reached the shore only after a hard struggle in which they were thoroughly exhausted. Those drowned were Mary Ellen Higgins, 20 years old, who lived with her stepfather, Patrick Green, on Cranberry lane, West Newton, and Thomas J. Regan, 26 years old, the son of Thomas Regan of 238 Adams street, Nonantum.

John Gilmore of Watertown street, Nonantum, succeeded in reaching the shore, and saving the life of Miss Elizabeth Tracy of Hawthorne avenue, Auburndale, who was the fourth member of the party. The bodies of Regan and Miss Higgins were taken from the water about half an hour after the accident, but the most skillful first aid treatment of doctors and river police was unavailable. Regan was brought to the surface by Joseph O'Brien of Adams street, who was his friend and neighbor. He dove from his canoe and groped about in the mud and water growth at the bottom of the stream until he grasped the wrist of the dead man. He managed to get the body to the surface, where it was seized by the police officers. Miss Higgins' body was recovered by James Burchin, a well known swimmer of Waltham, who grappled for it.

The pitiful feature of the fatal accident was that the shore, toward which the canoe was struggling, was not more than 30 feet from the spot where the canoe overturned and the water in which the two were drowned is only about 10 feet deep. Regan was a strong swimmer but it is thought that he became entangled in the thick grass of the bottom and in his dying struggles pulled Miss Higgins down with him.

Regan and Gilmore were both thoroughly familiar with handling canoes and were joint owners of the craft which capsized. They kept it at the Norumbega boathouse and started from there shortly before 3 o'clock. As they neared Weston bridge they saw the two girls standing near the railing. The canoe was paddled close to the bank and the quartet laughed and chatted for some time until the young men invited the girls to ride with them.

Regan took his place in the stern and Miss Tracy, who knew nothing of the knack of paddling, occupied the bow seat, while Gilmore and Miss Higgins reclined on the cushions. No one could give a clear account of the reason for the upset, but it is thought to have been due to Miss Tracy continually changing her paddle from one side to the other.

They had gone about 100 yards from the bridge toward Riverside when the canoe turned bottom upwards with the suddenness peculiar to such craft. There was no one near on the river, although a man and woman sitting on a bench on the bank saw the accident and shouted the alarm to the police.

Gilmore's story of what followed was terse. "The moment we rose to the surface after the plunge out of the canoe both girls grabbed me and I struck out for the shore. They did not struggle and I was making good headway until Miss Higgins screamed and I saw Tom thrashing about while he grasped her around the legs. He must have been taken with cramp for he was a good swimmer and he had only a short distance to go. I tried to keep May on the surface, but his weight pulled her down and I had hard work after all in getting toward shore with Miss Tracy. We were finally pulled into a boat by James Hackett of West Newton."

The Metropolitan Park police headquarters is just below the bridge, a stone's throw from the scene of the drowning. The shouts of the couple who witnessed the affair brought Sergeant Burton P. Murray and Patrolman Michael Ryan quickly to the place in the police launch, while Officers Hardy, Goodwin and others rowed up in their skiffs. As soon as the bodies were recovered they were taken to the emergency room at headquarters and Dr. Thompson was called. The officers worked for more than an hour, trying artificial respiration and every other known device to restore life but it was useless. Medical Examiner West viewed the bodies late in the afternoon and they were then turned over to relatives.

Miss Higgins was well known in West Newton. She was the only child in the family and worked in the Waltham watch factory, together with Miss Tracy. Regan, who was a plumber, was one of the best known and most popular young men in the section where he lived. He had two younger sisters. He was quartermaster-sergeant of Company C, Fifth Regiment, M. V. M., having been a member of the company for nine years. Gilmore is a private in the same company. Regan spent the greater part of the day at the armory in Newton preparing for the annual trip to Framingham of the company. When news of his death reached Newton the flag on the armory was placed at half staff.

Elizabeth Tracy, who is 25 years old, is the daughter of James Tracy of 107 Hawthorne avenue, Auburndale. She has one brother. Gilmore is employed in the forestry department of the city.

The canoe that overturned was but 16 feet long and was narrow of beam. There is no doubt but what it was overloaded but Gilmore denied that they were fooling and moving about. It is the first drowning from a canoe or boat that the Riverside section has known in four years.

A peculiar coincidence regarding Regan's death is that the last member of Company C to meet death accidental was Private Ernest H. Gammons of West Newton, who was drowned when his canoe upset in June, 1896.

Hackett, who assisted in getting Gilmore and Miss Tracy out of the water, is an employee of a Waltham bottling concern. He was delivering tonic at a refreshment stand on the shore of the river almost directly opposite the spot where the canoe overturned and rowed out in one of the emergency boats that are kept at intervals along the bank. When he reached the two they were wading through the mud and grass and he assisted them into his boat from which they were transferred to one of the police skiffs and taken to the station house where they were treated by the physician.

The funerals were held Monday morning at 9 o'clock. Services for Miss Higgins were held in St. Bernard's Church at West Newton, while Regan's funeral was held at the Church of Our Lady at Newton.

Regan was buried with full military honors befitting his rank. From the time the body was brought to his home on Adams street until it was taken to the church a guard of honor from the company was on constant duty. Monday morning, the entire company, under command of Captain George Gullford, marched to the house and escorted the body to the church. The large auditorium was insufficient to accommodate all the friends who had gathered to pay tribute. The casket, draped in the American flag, was carried into the church by First Sergeant Albert H. Randall, Sergeant David H. Kerr, Sergeant Edward A. Wenmouth, Sergeant Richard J. Davis, Sergeant Andrew Donnelly and Corporal Howard E. Reynolds. The other members of the company occupied seats in the front of the church.

The requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Fr. A. S. Malone. The burial was in Calvary Cemetery at Waltham and the militiamen marched from the church to the grave, a firing squad of 16 men, under command of Sergeant Randall, marching ahead of the hearse. At the grave the regulation three volleys were fired and Bugler Williams sounded taps.

As the cortege entered the cemetery gate it was joined by the funeral procession of Miss Higgins. The services at West Newton, which were largely attended, were conducted by Rev. Fr. Francis Cronin.

CHILD SHOT

Arlene McGourty, 3, only child of Mr. and Mrs. James H. McGourty of 649 Washington street, Newtonville, was accidentally shot Saturday, a bullet from a 22-calibre rifle lodging in her head, fired by Arthur Boyd, 15, son of A. Henry Boyd of 17 Crafts street, Newtonville.

The little girl was paralyzed in her right side for four hours following the shooting. At no time was she unconscious, however, and local physicians, as well as a specialist who was called, voiced the opinion that there is a good chance of her recovery. The bullet entered two inches over the left eye and it is thought that it was deflected by the frontal bone of the skull.

Young Boyd, when questioned, declared that he had picked the rifle up to examine it and then laid it down again. He did not pull the trigger, did not see the little girl and said that he heard no report. His first knowledge of the shooting, he said, was when he heard the child cry out and saw blood on her forehead. The boy was heartbroken and lay for hours on the floor of his room crying and sobbing. Chief of Police Mitchell, who investigated the case, doubts the boy's version of the affair and says that he undoubtedly pulled the trigger, thinking that the rifle was not loaded.

The shooting occurred on the rear porch of a house on Washington street near the McGourty home. It was occupied by the family of Louis H. Marvel, who were shipping their household effects to Michigan. Young Boyd was loitering about the yard when an armful of things were brought out and laid on the porch. Among them was a rifle, from which it was thought all the shells had been removed. Out of curiosity the boy was examining the weapon when it went off.

Dr. F. M. O'Donnell was called and as soon as Mr. Boyd heard of the accident he instructed the wounded child's parents to secure the services of a specialist and a nurse.

PRAISED

At the summer outing of the Norfolk Club at Nantasket last Saturday Senator Lodge paid a high compliment to Congressman John W. Weeks, saying in part:

"Also, I wish to say a word in regard to the congressman who represents Massachusetts from Norfolk county. The debt the country and party owe to him for the success that we have had in this legislation to which I have referred is very large."

"In the first place, as chairman of the committee on postoffices and post-roads he sent over to the Senate the great postoffice appropriation bill, which he had framed and passed through the House, and that bill passed the Senate without the slightest amendment. Such a thing may have happened before, but not within my knowledge or experience in public life have I ever before seen the Senate take a House appropriation bill, especially one of the great bills like this, and pass it without a single change. It was a very great tribute to the perfection with which that bill had been prepared, under the leadership of the chairman of the House committee."

Mr. Weeks' part in framing a new postal savings bank bill, making a good one after a poor start by others, which was concurred in by the Senate without a single change, was cited by Mr. Lodge, who added: "Now, let me say to you that that was a great feat and showed that Mr. Weeks was a very able and skillful legislator and maker of laws. (Applause.) I have not quite finished. (Laughter.) His virtues are many."

"Twice the Senate passed what is known as the Appalachian bill, the bill to enable the government under proper restrictions to take possession of certain lands in the White Mountains and Appalachian range, with a view to the preservation of the forests. The first time it failed in the House. The second time the House sent it back to us so late that it was impossible to deal with it. This time the bill came through the House again—it came late, but we were able in the Senate, where there is a decisive majority in its favor, to make that agreement to take a vote on the 15th of February next, which insures the passage of that law. Now that bill that was passed through the House was passed under the leadership and by the energy and influence of your congressman."

"I don't think that he is in any danger as to his re-election. But I say these things because I think they ought to be known. He won't say them himself and somebody ought to say them and I have told you just what his achievements have been and how proud you have reason to be to have such a congressman representing you in Washington."

What a sorry state the world would be in, if all men were great leaders!

TWO HURT

While out riding in a new automobile Dr. George O. Clark, a young physician in the Back Bay, Boston, and Miss Grace Greeley, a relative, had a narrow escape from death Tuesday afternoon on Commonwealth avenue, near Central street, in Auburndale, when their machine left the road, glanced the side of a tree and landed upside down against a pile of lumber.

Dr. Clark is now at the Newton hospital suffering from a broken leg and hip injuries and his companion is at the same institution suffering from body bruises. The latter's injuries are not as serious as the former's.

The machine was new to the driver, who was giving it a trial along the smooth road bed of Commonwealth avenue. The accident was witnessed by several people who were resting on their piazzas at the time. When they arrived at the overturned machine they found Miss Greeley unconscious, her face pushed against the planks. The crumpled, splintered tonneau and one side of the chassis had misadvised crushing her body against the lumber by a scant margin. It was several moments later that Dr. Clark's body was noticed several yards beyond the lumber pile in a declivity below the avenue. His first words on recovering consciousness were an inquiry after his companion and a request that she be carried to him in order that he might attend to her injuries. This he did, although the agony of his own injuries nearly overcame him several times.

When the ambulance arrived from the Newton hospital Dr. Clark insisted that Miss Greeley be taken away first although his diagnosis had revealed she was not badly hurt, and he knew his injuries required immediate attention.

Representative George H. Ellis has been appointed by Governor Draper to assist the state dairy bureau in drafting a milk inspection bill. Mr. Ellis is said to be the largest single producer of milk in the state.

A Reluctant Candidate.
During a local election in a German town only one man appeared at the nomination desk.

"Whom do you nominate?" inquired the official.
"Myself," was the answer.
"Do you accept the nomination?"
"Well, no."

The officer laughed and said:
"Then we must try again. Whom do you nominate?"

"Myself."
"You accept the nomination?"
"No."

A subdued "Donnerwetter!" escaped the lips of the perplexed official, but he went on:
"For the third time, whom do you nominate?"

"Myself," came the invariable reply.
"Do you accept the nomination?"
The man rose up, and a smile of satisfaction spread over his face as he answered proudly:

"Having been three times solicited by my fellow citizens to accept the nomination, I can no longer decline to accede to their wishes." He then retired.

The Opal.
In judging an opal color is of the greatest importance. Red fire or red in combination with yellow, blue and green is the best. Blue by itself is quite valueless, and the green opal is not of great value unless the color is very vivid and the pattern very good. The color must be true—that is to say, it must not run in streaks or patches, alternating with a colorless or inferior quality. Pattern is an important factor, the several varieties being known as "pin fire" when the grain is very small, "harlequin" when the color is in small squares, the more regular the better, and the "dash fire," or "dash opal," when the color shows as a single dash or in very large pattern. Harlequin is the most common and is also popularly considered the most beautiful. When the squares of color are regular and show as distinct minute checks of red, yellow, blue and green it is considered magnificent. Some stones show better on edge than on top.—Exchange.

Kept Them Dancing.
A Washington official, speaking of blunders in the diplomatic service, told of a mistake committed by an American in Afghanistan. He said:
"This American entertained the shahzada for three days, giving him a very handsome suit of rooms in his house. The morning of the shahzada's arrival the American host visited him in his apartment and was amazed to see the royal guest and his entire staff hopping about the floor in the oddest way. They conversed politely and gravely; but, instead of walking, they hopped, taking great leaps of eight or nine feet. The host ventured to ask the reason of this hopping. The shahzada politely replied:
"You see, this carpet is green, with pink roses here and there. Green is a sacred color with us, so we are obliged to hop from rose to rose. It is good exercise, but rather fatiguing, I confess."

A Lively Office.
In his recollections in Blackwood's Magazine Sir Robert Anderson tells an amusing story of the days when he was employed at the home office. On his arrival one morning at the office he found a note from Sir James Ferguson's private secretary—his intimates called him "Creepie"—announcing that at 3 o'clock precisely an old but, lately the property of the chief clerk, would be kicked off from the end of the corridor and requesting the favor of Sir Robert's presence. When Ben struck 3, Sir Robert heard Creepie's cheery voice ring out, "All on side; play!" They all turned out and the game began. On emerging from an unusually hot scrimmage Sir Robert became conscious of the presence of a stranger at his side, a timid little Frenchman, who meekly inquired, "Is this ze office for ze untimulization?" Sir Robert adds, "It was!"

Why He Cried.
The sympathetic neighbor asked: "Is your little brother ill this morning, Johnnie?" I heard him crying in the most heartrending manner."
"No; not exactly," Johnnie explained, "but Willie pulled down a jug of molasses on himself in the pantry, and mother has been trying to comb his hair."—Exchange.

Livingstone.
Of Dr. Livingstone it was said by Stanley that the missionary lived for years among the most cruel and ignorant savages in the world, but he never fired a shot in anger, never "clubbed or clouted or bannied or blasted." His manner was that of a "cool, wise old man who felt offended and looked grave."

Circumstances Reversed.
Unkempt Smith—Mister, would you kindly help a poor man as is all in, down and out? Joellar Citizen—Why, certainly. Just climb the fire escape on that skyscraper across the street and walk in on the top floor. Then you will be all out, up and in.—Judge's Library.

It's Good Point.
"But," asked the long haired young man, "is there nothing at all about poetry that you like?"
"Yes," replied Crabbe. "Whenever I see a poem it makes me feel good to realize that there's no law to compel me to read it."—Catholic Standard and Times.

No grip is so hard to shake off as that of early convictions.—Maurice Thompson.

The Leather of the Egyptians.
The ancient Egyptians were skilled in the art of tanning leather and manufactured it in various ways and for various purposes besides that of furnishing covering for the feet. Indeed, it is to those builders of the pyramids that we are indebted for the first artistic forms of footwear, and so far as can be ascertained from history and the researches of archaeologists, the Egyptians were the first shoemakers who were worthy of that name. It is a fact, too, that tanners of today employ very much the same methods as did the ancients. About the same materials are used, and the processes are almost precisely similar to those in vogue hundreds of years ago. It is true that tanners of the present day have found a means of greatly shortening the time required to convert a hide into leather and that steam power and modern machinery have done much to expedite and improve the processes of finishing the leather; but, after all, the principals of tanning remain the same as they have been from the first.—London Globe.

Posthaste.
He kicked off his wet boots, slid his tired feet into a pair of carpet slippers, lit his pipe, sat down in the easy chair with a sigh of relief and declared that twenty thousand wild horses couldn't make him stir from the house till morning.

"Henry," remarked the lady with the knitting needles, "you posted that letter I gave you this morning, I suppose?"

"I did, my love," he answered unblushingly.
"I asked you to postpone her visit for awhile," his wife went on. You see?"

Henry did see. His wife saw too. What she saw was the tired man jump from his chair, kick off his slippers, put on his boots and skip out into the street as if rain was the very thing he liked wading through.

And when, five minutes later, Henry came back with a tale that he'd just been to see how the thermometer outside the postoffice stood she smiled.—London Scraps.

Just Like Eve's Apple.
A fruit supposed to bear the mark of Eve's teeth is one of the many botanical curiosities of Ceylon. The tree on which it grows is known by the significant name of "the forbidden fruit," or "Eve's apple tree." The blossom has a very pleasant scent, but the really remarkable feature of the tree, the one to which it owes its name, is the fruit. It is beautiful and hangs from the tree in a peculiar manner. Orange on the outside and deep crimson within, each fruit has the appearance of having had a piece bitten out of it. This fact, together with its poisonous quality, led the Mohammedans to represent it as the forbidden fruit of the garden of Eden and to warn men against its noxious properties. The mark upon the fruit is attributed to Eve. Why the bite of Adam did not also leave its mark is not known, but as only one piece seems to be missing its loss is ascribed to the woman.

Constable Had the Evidence.
One of Philadelphia's leading corporation lawyers was visiting in New England, and, returning home, he told how he had been arrested there. He had not had a vacation for some years, and, getting into the country, he proceeded to be a boy again.

He struck a piece of country road and ran along for a half mile. He found a fence and vaulted it. He saw a tree and climbed it. Finally he returned to the village. Just as he struck the town a hand was laid on his shoulder, and a man said in a gruff voice:

"Come with me."
"What for?" inquired the other in amazement.

"I'm the constable, and you're under arrest. I've been following you, and I think you're crazy."—Philadelphia Times.

Cool Presence of Mind.
Debtor (to shopgirl)—It's an outrage for your employer to have you present this bill here at the railroad station in the presence of all these people! Tell him I'll attend to the matter as soon as I get home. And now give me a kiss, so the people will think that you are a relative and have come to bid me goodby!—Flegende Blatter.

A Risky Study.
"Why have you dropped your popular astronomy?" asked the visitor.
"Cause I got too many fleckings," confided Tommy. "The other night I told you that Mars' face was ever changing, and you heard me and thought I meant her face. Next thing I didn't get any supper and got a flecking besides."—Chicago News.

Ministers Aboard Ship.
A minister aboard ship has always been taken as a "Jonah sign" by seamen. In recent years, however, this superstition has been modified to a certain extent. A young minister, the seamen believe, will not bring as much of a "Jonah" with him as an old one.

Simplicity Itself.
"There are only two points in success."
"What are they?"
"Work and keep other people from working you."

Do It Now.
Decision never becomes easier by postponement, while habit grows stronger every day. Common sense as well as conscience says, "Choose this day."

The feet of Fate are tender, for she sets her steps not on the ground, but on the heads of men.—Homer.

"PARAGON PARK" and PALM GARDEN.

They have never had anything approaching the crowds that are going to "Paragon Park" and its famous Palm Garden this season. It is unique in all its appointments and never has it been so rich in its attractions. Manager Dodge is contemplating the establishment of a temporary roof garden on his Palm Garden at "Paragon Park" as the most feasible way of taking care of his greatly increased patronage this season. Although he has increased his former capacity of 1000 people at tables in the Palm Garden by serving meals on the veranda he still finds that it is an almost nightly occurrence that guests are kept waiting for tables in the rush hours. An extension of the Palm Garden would require too elaborate construction in the height of the season, but a way may be found to serve on the roof. The fireworks every Wednesday and Saturday night continue to be great attractions. The free open-air circus features, such as La Diva Venus, Speedy, the Stanleys, Denon and Aroza in balloon ascensions and tri-ple parachute drops are nightly interesting the Paragon visitors, while the statuary electric fountain in the centre of the lagoon is a constant source of delight. The music this season is better than ever, with Martland Military Concert Band in the band stand, and Sztarny's Viennese Orchestra, assisted by the Paragon Male Quartet in the Palm Garden balcony.

BASEBALL.
After two innings of the game between the Newton Catholic Club and Somerville A. A. nine had been played on the West Newton Common Saturday afternoon rain put an end to the game. At that time the home team was leading, 4 to 2. The feature was a home run by Donahue, McCourt and Rogers were the battery for the Catholic Club, while Brooks and Condor worked for Somerville.

TO GLOUCESTER.
The fine, newly-equipped Boston-GloUCESTER steamboats have begun their daily and Sunday trips to the quaint old fishing city of Gloucester. These cooling and highly invigorating trips are delightful in the extreme. No such views of the far-famed North Shore can be had otherwise than by these splendid boats of the Gloucester line—safe, commodious, fitted with every comfort and convenience, and supplied with good music. If you want to "get next" to nature's most fascinating side, take one of these trips at 10 a. m. any weekday (10:15 Sundays), and go up the cool and enchanting North Shore.

GOOD BUSINESS.

According to figures of Postmaster E. C. Mansfield, the Boston postal district, of which Newton is a part, does quite a business. The total receipts for the year being over $6,000,000 and an increase of over $360,000 over the previous year. The ten Newton stations do a business of $106,824.05 and an increase of $3250.39 over the previous year. Newton is the largest, with Newton Centre, West Newton close rivals for second honor and Newtonville a strong fourth. All of the Newton stations, except the Centre and Upper Falls, made a gain over the previous year. The figures are as follows:

	1910.	Gain.
Newton	$28,096.85	$2,691.32
Newton Centre	17,401.85	$2,763.61

TELEPHONES AND TELEPHONING

Most men—and women—use more nervous force in speaking through the telephone than would be needed to keep them strong and healthy for years.

It is good to note that the more we keep in harmony with natural laws the more quiet we are forced to be. Nature knows no strain. True science knows no strain. Therefore a strained high-pitched voice does not carry over the telephone wire as well as a low one.

If every woman using the telephone would remember this fact the good accomplished would be threefold. She would save her own nervous energy. She would save the ears of the woman at the other end of the wire. She would make herself heard.

Patience, gentleness, firmness—a quiet concentration—all tell immeasurably over the telephone wire.

Impatience, rudeness, indecision and diffuseness blur communication by telephone even more than they do when one is face to face with the person talking.

It is as if the wire itself resented these inhuman phases of humanity and spit back at the person who insulted it by trying to transmit over it such unintelligent hush.

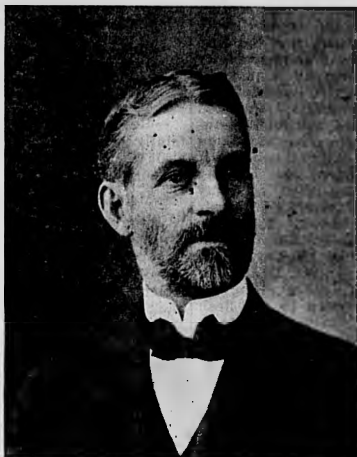

There are people who feel that if they do not get an immediate answer at the telephone they have a right to demand and get good service by means of an angry telephonic sputter.

The result of this attempt to scold the telephone girl is often an impulsive, angry response on her part—which she may be sorry for later on—and if the service is more prompt for that time it reacts later to what appears to be the same deficiency.

No one was ever kept steadily up to time by angry scolding. It is against reason.

To a demanding woman who is strained and tired herself, a wait of 10 seconds seems 10 minutes. I have heard such a woman ring the telephone bell almost without ceasing for 15 minutes. I could hear her strain and anger reflected in the ringing of the bell. When finally she "got her party" the strain in her high-pitched voice made it impossible for her to be clearly understood. Then she got angry again because "Central" had not "given her a better connection," and finally came away from the telephone nearly in a state of nervous collapse and insisted that the telephone would finally end her life. I do not think she once suspected that the whole state of fatigue which had almost brought an illness upon her was absolutely and entirely her own fault.

The telephone has no more to do with it than the floor has to do with a child falling and bumping his head.—Annie Payson, Call in "Nerves and Common Sense."

Don't Be at the Mercy of Burglars

Startled from sleep in the dead of night a man, or woman, either—no matter how armed or how brave—is absolutely at the mercy of burglars in his home.

Reckless rushing from the sleeping room offers a target for the thief at bay who will shoot to kill. No man is a coward who seeks the quickest—surest way out of danger.

If you can flood your home with light at an instant's warning any intruder will run away. You can do this by means of a switch at the head of your bed connecting with the electric lights.

Better still—make the thief turn on the lights.

An attachment can easily connect your burglar alarm with the electric lights, so that the slightest intrusion or disturbance will give both the alarm and protection of bright light.

This system is especially valuable when a house is closed for the season. The electric service stands guard ready to flash its warning call the moment danger or robbery threatens.

One light, a dozen, or all in your house can be lighted by this plan.

Estimates for installing furnished promptly—the cost low. Appointments by telephone or postal at an hour's notice.

A NEW THEORY OF THE FORMATION OF THE EARTH

By J. F. Frisbie, M. D.

Scientists are evolving a new theory of the formation of an earth and all other worlds, in opposition to the old theory of Lea Place, which has been for a long time accepted by the scientific world. The theory is that our earth has grown from a small sphere to its present size, through accretion, by the gathering to itself of other meteors and aerolites from the surrounding space and that the same process is still going on. In other words, that it has been in the past and is now drawing the spheres, greater and smaller, to itself and thus our earth has grown from small beginnings to its present size. They claim that in earlier times these rounded bodies came thick and fast and the world grew rapidly, but that now the accretion is very slow and slight. Astronomers tell us there is a broad belt of meteor in the sky which is composed of these meteors, circling through space, and that when our earth, in its progress around the sun, cuts across this belt, uncounted numbers are drawn to us and gathered on the external surface.

It is estimated that hundreds and perhaps thousands of tons are added to this earth each year. The most of these are small but sometimes a large one is caught by its near proximity and the attraction of gravitation. In September of each year we cross this meteoric belt and capture a few of them, which we call shooting stars. But about three times in a century we see many more and capture a greater number. These meteors, when they come hurtling from space, earthward, enter our atmosphere with tremendous velocity. The density of the atmosphere is so great, the friction results in great heat—so great that many of these are burned up, and only the ashes—star dust—reaches us. Others, larger, become incandescent and the outside is melted and wiped off by the atmosphere giving them a smooth, polished appearance.

Occasionally the heat becomes so intense the meteor explodes with a loud noise, and the fragments come hurtling to the earth. Some of large size reach the earth and the impact is so great it produces a small sized local earthquake. Many years ago a fallen meteor was reported to have come to the earth of large size and penetrated to the depth of 18 feet. It was very hot and retained its heat for several days. A few weeks ago a meteor fell out West that retained its heat for many hours.

What are termed falling stars are those meteors rendered incandescent by the friction of the atmosphere as they come through it.

I have seen these meteors by the hundreds, from the size of a pea up to 2000 pounds. Peary brought from the Arctic regions one of the largest yet discovered.

In the Smithsonian Institute at Washington there is a meteorite that weighs 1400 pounds. It was discovered in Mexico, where it was used as an anvil by a rude Mexican blacksmith. It has an oval hole in the center which made it useful for an anvil. Meteors are composed largely of iron, collect, meteoric iron, in combination with cobalt, tin, copper and manganese in varying proportions.

There has never been found in these visitors from the beyond any new mineral or chemical combination. All are the same as those found on our earth, thus proving them to have the same origin.

With possibly one exception, there has never been anything to indicate plant existence in that far off creation. That possible exception is the diamond, which is believed to be of vegetable origin. In one aerolite at least there was found what was thought to be a diamond. If that was a real diamond, and if the old theory of their origin is correct, that meteor must have come from a planet on which plant life existed. Then this planet must have exploded or been crushed from some collision in the sky.

The theory of the formation of the diamond is as follows: Certain chemical changes take place in the vegetable matter of which coal is formed; ferns, moss, wood and peat is the result; when these substances are buried beneath water and mud. These changes do not take place in contact with the air.

Other chemical changes follow and the peat is converted into lignite or brown coal. Then further chemical combinations and changes take place and bituminous or cannel coal is formed. This bituminous coal is considered the typical coal.

Then, following earthquakes, accompanied by fracture of the coal beds with upheaval and down throws and moving of strata horizontally developing intense heat, and bituminous coal is changed to anthracite. As these processes take place the heat causes the formation of gases which are now utilized as natural gas—the production of petroleum which is brought to the surface by millions of barrels and bitumen.

Another change takes place, the gases escape, new chemical combinations result and we have left graphite, a pure carbon used in the manufacture of lead pencils and the arts. And then the last and complete change takes place—this graphite becomes crystallized and behold, the ultimate perfection of all these processes, the diamond.

We see the growing plant at the beginning of the series and the beautiful, sparkling diamond, when all the changes are complete.

POLICE NOTES

Patrolman Charles H. Tainter of Auburn, a veteran member of the police department, was given a bearing Tuesday morning by Mayor Hatfield on charges of disrespect to a superior officer and refusing to obey orders. The charges were preferred by Lieutenant William Soule. The Mayor reserved his decision.

Salvatore Spinelli, 25 years old, an Italian shoemaker who lives at 76 Border street, West Newton, was in court Tuesday morning charged with breaking and entering. Probable cause was found and he was held for the grand jury in bonds of $1000.

His arrest followed the robbery in the home of John H. Keller at 174 Webster street, West Newton, early Sunday morning. Keller was awakened and saw a man climbing through the window with a pair of trousers over his arm, the pockets of which contained $50. He gave chase but the thief got away. Later the missing trousers were found hidden beneath some shrubbery, with the money intact.

Charles Moore, a negro, was the principal witness for the police. He declared that he was working in his garden at 4 o'clock Sunday morning and saw a man who closely resembled Spinelli running away from the Keller home.

After the trial a number of Spinelli's relatives attacked Moore on the steps of police headquarters. They struck and kicked him until the police were obliged to interfere. Mrs. Lilliana Aceto, 22 years old, persisted in striking and threatening Moore and was arrested for assault. She lives at 21 Harvey place.

THEATRES

Kelth's Theatre—There has been a series of summer sensations at Kelth's and not the least of which was "The Maid of Mystery," whose identity is still secret, and for the coming week there will be another exceptionally strong bill, a feature of it being plenty of laughing material. Laura Burt and Henry Stanford, whom last season were with the New Theatre company, will appear in a sketch called "The Order of the Bath," that contains some of the most amusing situations placed upon the stage in a long time. The bath is really a bath room and by a spring lock a young society girl and a typical Englishman are locked in it for the night. The situation is decidedly humorous, and Miss Burt and Mr. Stanford get all there is out of it. Another feature will be the Temple Quartet, unquestionably the best male quartet now in vaudeville. Julia Frary is also on the bill, and other features are Lamalze, Bennett and Lamalze, acrobatic clowns; De Haven and Sidney, the dancers; the four Readings, and other big features which will be announced later.

American Music Hall—Practically everybody in New England and at least a majority of the rest of the people of the country are familiar with Newton Newkirk's "Bingville Bugle," which has been a big comic feature of more than a score of representative newspapers. This coming week Bostonians and those living within a reasonable radius of the Hub will have their very first opportunity of becoming intimately acquainted with all the famous characters of that feature. Mr. Newkirk has dramatized "Bingville Bugle," and although showered with offers from other managers to have the opportunity to produce it first, he has arranged with Lindsay Morrison to have this stock company present it at the American Music Hall this coming week. In other words, reproductions of Bing Barker, Ben Weatherly, Bud Hinkley, Seth Dewberry, Amelia Tucker, Doc Livermore and all the other Bingville characters will be seen in the flesh on the American Music Hall stage. Ordinarily the premier of such a play, "Bingville Bugle," would excite considerable comment, but Mr. Lindsay Morrison's securing of new material at all times is nothing out of the ordinary. Critics who have read Mr. Newkirk's manuscript and have seen the play in rehearsal are of the unanimous opinion that it is far better than any rural play yet produced in America. In addition to being chock full of good wholesome comedy, it contains a beautiful love story, which forms the basis of the theme and which furnishes splendid opportunities for the work of which Mr. Morrison's players are known to be capable. Although this is the first time that "Bingville Bugle" will be seen on any stage, Mr. Morrison has decided that there is to be no increase in prices and next Monday matinee as usual, chocolate bon-bons will be distributed to the patrons.

HOW TO SLEEP OUTDOORS.

"Directions for living and sleeping in the open air," is the title of a pamphlet being sent out today by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis to its local representatives in all parts of the United States.

The pamphlet is meant to be a handbook of information for anybody who desires to sleep out of doors in his own home. It emphasizes the fact that outdoor sleeping is as desirable for the well as for the sick. The booklet will be sent free of charge to anyone applying for it at the headquarters of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis in New York, or to the secretary of any local or state anti-tuberculosis association.

Some of the subjects of which the pamphlet treats are, how to take the open-air treatment in a tenement house; how to build a small shack or cabin on a flat roof in the city; how to make one comfortable while sleeping outdoors either in hot or cold weather; how to arrange a porch on a country house; and how to build a cheap porch; the construction of tents and tent houses; the kinds of beds and bedding to use in outdoor sleeping, and various other topics. The book is well illustrated and attractively prepared.

The object of the book is to suggest particularly to consumptives who cannot secure admission to a sanatorium how they can be treated at home under the direction of a physician. In view of the fact that there are less than 25,000 hospital beds in the United States for consumptives and fully 300,000 who should be in hospitals, the National Association urges that more attention be paid to sleeping in properly provided places at home, and that in every case the best be made of the patient's environment.

LINCOLN—WADLEIGH.

At the home of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Wadleigh on Walker street Tuesday noon occurred the marriage of her daughter, Miss Blanche Winifred Wadleigh, to Rev. Howard Abbott Lincoln of Wiscasset, Me. Rev. Dr. George S. Butters, pastor of the Newton Methodist Church, was the officiating clergyman and only the families of the contracting parties were present. After a brief wedding trip on the Maine coast Rev. and Mrs. Lincoln will make their home at Wiscasset, Me., where Rev. Mr. Lincoln is pastor of the Congregational Church.

Fifty per cent interest is forty-four per cent higher than the local rate, but you can make it by installing a "WINCHESTER" steam or hot water heater in your house. Make your own comparisons with your old apparatus. It is modern and scientific. Smith & Thayer Co., 235 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

The announcement of lowered tax rates by many of our neighboring cities is probably due to the increase these places receive from the operation of the corporation tax law. Waltham and Watertown will benefit largely by the law, while Brookline, which increases its tax rate, suffers even more than Newton. It is to be noted that Somerville, with a population of nearly double that of Newton, has a valuation of about $66,000,000
this year as compared with a Newton valuation last year of over $71,000,000.
Newton's rate this year will undoubtedly exceed that just announced by Somerville of $18.50.

The Springfield Union takes an optimistic view of the fall campaign.
Politically, in the following words:
"The facts are that the Republican party was never in better condition, the opposition to Lodge is fading away, and the outlook for Draper and Frothingham is brighter than it has been for more than a year. Under the able leadership of Chairman Hatfield of the Republican state committee, the campaign is already underway and a united Republican party will face a divided Democracy."

Newton automobile owners should be interested in the hearing next Wednesday before the Massachusetts Highway Commission on the recent order of the Boston Park Commission excluding automobiles from the principal parkways of the city of Boston.
The approval of the exclusion order by the Highway Commission would seriously hamper the pleasure of many residents of Newton and undoubtedly would add to the danger of automobile driving thru crowded city streets.

WATER PIPE BURST.

The bursting of a two-inch service pipe running from the city water main into the building at 279-281 Washington street some time Saturday night undermined a considerable section of the street and finally burst through, creating a small washout and calling out the emergency crew of the department.

Shortly before noon water was seen bubbling through the street surface at a point just out of Nonantum square. An automobile passing by at the time caused the surface of macadam to settle more than two feet and a makeshift barricade was placed there while the water department was notified.

When workmen arrived it was necessary to do considerable excavating before the exact location of the break was discovered and then it was found that the broken pipe was 15 feet from the place where the street had caved in. The break is said to have been due to the fact that the water pipe was laid across the bed of a sewer. The earth in this ditch had settled and its weight had snapped the water pipe.

The excavating done by the workmen showed the effects of the damage to the street. The surface of the roadway was cracked along the side of the street car tracks and again near the curbing and the entire crowning had settled. For a considerable distance on the macadam top surface was left the gravel immediately underneath having been washed away, and extensive repairs will be necessary.

INSPECT FARMS.

About 250 members of Middlesex and Norfolk Pomona Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, took part Tuesday in an open air meeting at the Henry M.
Howard farm on Fuller street, West Newton. There were 17 district granges represented in the gathering, as follows: Wellesley, Cohasset, Foxboro, Millis, Westwood, Framingham, Ashland, Medway, West Medway, Sherborn, Holliston, Franklin, Norfolk, Dover, Medfield and Norwood.

During the early hours of the meeting the grangers inspected the large Howard farm as well as Wauchope farm on Commonwealth avenue, the model dairy establishment operated by George H. Ellis. An inspection was also made of the greenhouses at Wachope owned by Rand & Hall. At noon the members partook of a basket lunch.

In the afternoon they gathered in a large tent and listened to speeches
by State Master Charles M. Gardner, State Lecturer F. F. Richardson, Secretary J. L. Elsworth of the State Board of Agriculture, State Forester
F. W. Rane and Julius E. Warren of the State Board of Education. Matters pertaining to agriculture and the teaching of it in schools and colleges were discussed.

The officers of the organization are:
John S. McIntosh, Franklin, master;
George H. Murray, Medfield, overseer; Edmund Grover, Walpole, steward;
William A. Cox, Needham, assistant steward; Lottie Champney, Holliston, chaplain; Nathan W. Fisher, Walpole, treasurer; J. Herbert Baker, Medfield, secretary; Nathan H. Hale, Norfolk, gate keeper; Katherine M. E. White, Westwood, pomona; Edith F. Murray, Medfield, Flora; Etta McIntosh, Franklin, Ceres; Nettie L. Brown, Cohasset, lady steward; Lucius M.
Daniels, Franklin, Harry A. Whiting, Walpole, Norman E. Douglas, Sherborn, executive board.

NEW LIGHTING.

After a thorough testing and several conferences Mayor Hatfield, Street Commissioner C. W. Ross and Fire Chief W. B. Randlett have agreed on a new plan of lighting the Newton boulevard from Lake street to Weston bridge. The thoroughfare is already one of the finest automobile roads in the country and with the new lights will compare favorably with the best. The Edison Electric Illuminating Company is to install 73
"magnetite" lamps, each of 800 candle-power. The lamps will be situated 100 feet apart and will be placed on the automobile roadway on poles 24 feet high. This is thought to be a better plan than that tried in Boston with similar lights where they were placed in the centre of the boulevard and their brilliance discounted by thick foliage. The new lamps will cost $42 each a year for installation and will be burned at a cost of 11-13 cents per kilowatt. The old style of light, of which there are 59 on the boulevard, cost $36 each at the start and the cost per kilowatt hour was 11-12 cents.

HOW DID YOU DIE?

Did you tackle the trouble that came your way.
With a resolute heart and cheerful?
Or hide your face from the light of day
With a craven soul and fearful?
Oh, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it.
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts—
But only, how did you take it?
You are beaten to earth; Well, well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face.
It's nothing against you to fall down flat.
But to lie there—that's disgrace.
The harder you're thrown, why the higher you bounce.
Be proud of your blackened eye—
It isn't the fact that you're licked
that counts—
It's how did you fight—and why?
And though you be done to the death,
what then?
If you battled the best you could,
If you played your part in the world of men,
Why the Critic will call it good.
Death comes with a crawl, or comes with a pounce,
And whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts.
But only how did you die?
—Edmund Vance Cooke.

STRUCK BY AUTO.

Wednesday evening Miss Annie Lawn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawn of Pearl street, Newton, escaped serious injury when she was struck by an automobile operated by Frank Durbin, a tester in the employ of the Stanley Automobile Co., at the corner of Jefferson and Centre streets, Newton.

The girl was crossing the street to take a car when the automobile passed and she ran into the rear wheel of the machine and was knocked down. The driver stopped after the accident and took the injured girl to her home where it was found her injuries were slight.

POLICE.

The Mayor announced his decision this morning on charges preferred against Patrolman Tainter for disrespect and refusal to obey orders. The officer is reprimanded.

Mrs. Filomena Aceto, 22 years old, of 21 Harvey place, West Newton, was fined $50 Wednesday morning for assault. She had pleaded guilty but appealed and was held in bonds of $500. Her arrest grew out of a disturbance on the courthouse steps the previous morning when she and several other Italians attacked Charles Moore, a negro, who had testified against Salvatore Spinelli in a burglary case. Mrs. Aceto is Spinelli's sister.

POLICE COURT.

From now until further notice the sessions of court will be opened at 9-15 o'clock instead of the usual hour of 8-30. This change is due to the fact that Judge Kennedy is enjoying a vacation on Monhegan island. His place is being filled by Associate Justice Bacon, who is forced to make the trip each morning from his summer home at Essex.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Corinne M. Cleveland of Newton in the County of Middlesex, and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, widow, to Benjamin C. Hardwick of Boston in the County of Suffolk, and said Commonwealth, dated January 2, 1904, and recorded with Middlesex South Dist. Deeds, Book 3677, Page 623, for breach of condition of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same, will be sold at public auction and recorded with Middlesex South Dist. Deeds, Book 3677, Page 623, on Wednesday, August 10, 1910, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, a certain parcel of land, with the buildings thereon, situated in said Newton and bounded and described as follows:—Beginning at a point on the Easterly line of Waverley Avenue, four feet on plan hereinafter mentioned, and thence running Southeasterly on said lot four, one hundred and twenty and 68-100 (128.68) feet to land now or late of Pray; thence turning and running Northerly by said land of Pray, eighty-two and 92-100 (82.92) feet; thence turning and running Northerly by lot two on said plan, one hundred and forty and 100 (140.25) feet to said Waverley Avenue; thence turning and running Southerly by said Waverley Avenue, eighty-six and 48-100 (86.48) feet to the point of beginning; containing eleven thousand four hundred and fifty-one (11,451) square feet, and being lot numbered three on a plan drawn by E. S. Smith, dated September 18, 1891, recorded with said Deeds, Book 2007, Page 122, and subject to the restrictions therein referred to; being all and singular the premises described in said mortgage deed, said premises to be sold subject to any unpaid taxes, tax titles or other municipal liens.

$500 will be required to be paid by the purchaser at the time and place of sale and the balance in ten days.

Mortgagee and present holder of said mortgage, Arthur H. Wellman, Attorney, 1040 Old South Bldg., Boston, Mass. Boston, July 12, 1910.

Notice is hereby given, that the subscribers have been duly appointed administrators of the estate of Arthur H. Terrell, late of Newton, in the County of Middlesex, deceased, and have taken upon themselves that trust by giving bonds, and Herbert A. Terrell has appointed Mary Emma Terrell of Newton, Mass., his agent, as the law directs. All persons having claims against the estate of said deceased are required to exhibit the same, and all persons indebted to said estate are called upon to make payment to the subscribers.

Fair Exchange, Yet a Robbery.

While Gustave Dore was at Ischl and wandering about the mountains he became much interested in a country wedding and sketched it on the spot. He put the sketch into a book in the pocket of his palette and went back to the hotel to dinner. After dinner he looked for the sketch. It was gone. Angry at the theft, the artist called the landlord and made complaint, but no trace of the book was found. From Ischl Dore went to Vienna, and there he found a letter and a parcel awaiting him. The letter, which was anonymous, read thus: "Sir, I stole your book at Ischl. The sketch was so charming that I could not resist the temptation of having it in my possession, and I knew very well you would never consent to sell it to me. But theft is neither my trade nor my habit, and I beg you to accept as a souvenir of my crime and my enthusiasm for your talent the walking stick which will reach you at the same time as this letter."

The cane was one with a massive gold head in which was set a gem of value.

The Clock's Annoying Habit.

Mrs. Benham had just seated herself to work at a bit of embroidery that required particular care and attention when there came a ring at the telephone. "I just know that Mrs. Gummy," she said as she laid down her work and went to answer the call. "Whenever I am unusually busy and haven't any time to spare she rings me up and talks to me by the hour."

She was right. It was Mrs. Gummy, who was fully as talkative as ever. She began with a long story, and when fairly in the middle of it the clock on the wall of the room began to strike.

"Wait a moment," interposed Mrs. Benham. "I can't hear you until this noise stops."

"What made that noise?" asked Mrs. Gummy after it had ceased.

"It was only the clock," answered the patient Mrs. Benham. "You know it always strikes once or twice when we get to talking."

The conversation did not last long after that.—Youth's Companion.

Judgment Reversed.

A middle aged and nervous tenant in an apartment house had summoned his next door neighbor, a young woman student at the conservatory, into court and charged that the peace and quiet of his lodgings had been disturbed by her singing.

The court was inclined to regard the proceedings as unwarranted.

"How much do you sing?" he asked the defendant.

"Only two hours a day," she answered.

"An hour in the morning and one at night."

"Two hours?" said the judge. "It appears unreasonable to complain of that."

"But, your honor," interposed the complainant, starting up excitedly, "I trust you will not decide the matter until you have heard the defendant sing."

The defendant was not at all loath to sing. In fact, her personal assurance and professional pride urged her to make the most of this opportunity in the interests of high art.

She began an aria from Wagner, but she had sung but four or five bars when the court interrupted her.

"That will do—that will do," he said. "No further testimony need be taken. The court's judgment is reversed."

She Wasn't Afraid.

A crowd gathered on the street to watch a handsome fox terrier that was running about, nose in air. White froth was running from the dog's mouth.

"He's mad!" yelled a fat man.

The fox terrier stood in the center of the group with wide open eyes, either too mad or too frightened to move.

At this juncture the policeman arrived. A dozen voices began to tell him that the dog was mad; that it must be killed; that it had been snapping at the children; that it began to froth when it passed a pool of water, and how best to shoot.

A tall, quiet looking woman pushed through the crowd and started toward the dog. A dozen men yelled at her. Two or three men grabbed at her. She picked the dog up, and started out of the crowd. The policeman stopped her with:

"Madam, that dog is mad. He must be shot. Look at the foam coming out of his mouth."

"Foam?" she said contemptuously. "That's a cream puff he was eating."

Printing a Coin on Linen.

The print of a silver coin or medal may be made on silk or linen by dipping the fabric in a solution of nitrate of silver and stretching it over the face of the coin until the image is imprinted. The linen is sensitized by dipping it into a solution of nitrate of silver, made by dissolving sixty or eighty grains of nitrate of silver in one ounce of water. Wet the portion of the cloth which is to receive the impression in the solution and when nearly dry draw it over the face of the coin and tie it at the back. Expose to a weak light, and in a few minutes the raised design of the coin will appear on the linen. As soon as the print is dark enough remove and wash in clear water. When nearly dry iron it smooth with a warm iron, placing a piece of tissue paper over the print. In printing from the coin or medal it is advisable to paste a piece of paper on the reverse side, so that the silver will not come in contact with the sensitized fabric.

Student of Shakespeare.

The office boy sat in the corner busily engaged in reading a book. Strange to say, it was not "The Adventures of Bunko Jim," "Daisy Dean, the Demon Detective," nor even a thrilling narrative of more or less correct life on the plains. He was reading Shakespeare.

An expression of peace and joy was on his face that caused those who knew him to wonder if he had at last experienced a change of heart. His eyes sparkled, and his whole expression was one of happiness. Finally he turned to a worker at another desk.

"Say, Jim," he said, "I've got a question for you. Did you ever read Shakespeare?"

"Yep," was the reply.

"And d'yer know what he talks about?"

"Yep."

"Den maybe you can help me."

"What is it?"

"Well, I want to know which was de man, Romeo or Juliet?"—Youth's Companion.

Losing His Mind.

"Mother, guess you'd better send for the doctor," gasped Uncle Charlie. "Sever as he's sunk into a chair and rocked back and forth, holding his gray head."

"Sakes alive! Ye haven't been and got the misery in yer head, have ye, Silas?" gasped his astonished wife, dropping a pin.

"I dunno what's the matter, but I've alwus had a hunch my mind 'd go some time. It's cum, I guess. I noticed th' trouble last week when I plumb forgot to go up an' swear off th' $100 assessment till it was too late. Then I neglected to go to th' school meetin' last night to fight agin the new commissioner. But, wuss and wuss, I didn't guess within eleven pound seven ounces of th' weight of Wal Weaver's big hog killed today. I guess my mind has gone all right. I'm about all in."

—Puck.

Tuning Forks.

The tuning fork was the invention of John Stone, royal trumpeter, in 1811. Though the pitch of forks varies slightly with changes of the temperature or by rust, they are the most accurate means of determining pitch. Tuning forks are capable of being made of any pitch within certain limits, but those commonly used are the notes A and C, giving the sounds represented by the second and third spaces in the treble staff.

An Incentive.

"Won't you try to love me?" he sighed.

"I have tried," she replied kindly, but firmly.

"My rich aunt has just died," he went on.

"In that case, dear, I will try again."

—Puck.

A Blunt Answer.

Mother to her daughter—You'd better accept Peter, my dear. He is a nice boy, though he may not be handsome. After all, good looks fade, don't they, papa? Father—Rather!—The gendo blatter.

ELECTRIC FANS AS FLY KILLERS.

Go into most any store these hot summer days and you will find one or more electric fans very busy. These fans perform the dual task of keeping the rooms cool and destroying the flies.

There is something about the electric fans which flies dislike. Perhaps it is the strange humming noise which reminds them of some dire enemy. Perhaps it is the strong current of air which makes it difficult for a fly to navigate. Whatever it is, it has been proved that the common electric fan is one of the best fly discouragers in use today. A fan kept playing over piles of fruit, the soda fountain, the candy case or any other part of the store which is apt to lure the insects will effectively drive them away.

The comfort of sitting upon a piazza in the evening is, under ordinary conditions, greatly diminished, if not destroyed altogether, by the "pestiferous" mosquitoes. An electric fan placed in a convenient position and connecting with the lamp socket inside the house, will keep mosquitoes and bugs of all kinds away, thus affording an opportunity for "really cool comfort."

AT OXFORD WITH COL. ROOSEVELT

Paris, France, June 13, 1910.

You will, long before this, have seen an official account of the lunch given to Mr. Roosevelt by the American Rhodes scholars at Oxford. We were among the few favored outsiders who were invited, and greatly did we appreciate the honor.

We travelled from London to Oxford in the car next to the Roosevelt party, and felt quite like near-silk, or some such article. For we were not going to lunch with them today, and had they not lunched informally with the King and Queen at Marlboro House only yesterday! And we had taken a pleasant walk up the Mall and looked thro' the fence at that palace, as well as St. James and Buckingham, only the day before that. There the Rhodes scholars were in their glory, making the grounds very beautiful. At Oxford the Roosevelt party were met by the vice-chancellor (the resident head of Oxford University) in his crimson and red kimona. The colors, although hideous, just about matched his complexion. Of course cameras were pointed at the party by various people.

You will have seen in the Boston papers an account of the official powwowing with the city officials before the luncheon. There was so much red tape that the luncheon was postponed almost an hour. It was held in Masonic Hall, which was gay with red, white and blue flowers.

While waiting for the guests we were interested in talking with the Rhodes scholars. They must be Anglo-Saxons; and from our country two are selected from each state. A man must be at least a sophomore in college, and the choice does not depend entirely on a man's mental ability. They are allowed $1500 a year for expenses, part of which must be spent in travelling during the vacations: six weeks at Christmas, six at Easter, and 16 in summer. Our boys are expected to take the lead in both scholarship and athletics, which is rather hard on them, especially as during the weeks that they are obliged to travel, the English boys do all their studying, in order to devote the remainder of the year to athletics.

In travelling from London the road follows the Thames River much of the way, crossing it several times. It is so narrow and so winding that I should think the students would have difficulty in rowing on it, which they do every day in the year. I spoke of this to a student who sat on my left, whose home is beside the Mississippi, and you can imagine the scorn with which he spoke of "That little brook called the Thames!" On Thanksgiving day the American boys at Oxford invite those at Cambridge to a regular home dinner, with turkey and cranberry sauce. Last year they had a Lady Baltimore cake sent from home to eat with their loc cream.

After the lunch the president of the American Club tactfully introduced Ambassador Reid, who proposed the health of King George and President Taft. Then Mr. Roosevelt spoke very happily for about 10 minutes. Of course there was great enthusiasm among our boys during the speech.

After the lunch he went to the "Sheldonian" and gave the "Romanes" lecture, which is given once a year by one of the best speakers in the world, in memory of Prof. Romanes. At the conclusion of the lecture Lord Curzon, chancellor of Oxford University, conferred on Mr. Roosevelt the degree of D. C. L., with quaint and impressive ceremonies. As he was conducted to the platform to receive his degree, Lord Curzon turned to the vice-chancellor and said in Latin: "Behold vice-chancellor the promised night."

Before whose coming comets turned to flight, And all the startled months of seven-fold Nile took flight."

At this the solemnity of the occasion was relieved by hearty laughter. Mr. Roosevelt then ascended the steps and shook hands with Lord Curzon, who spoke to him as follows: "Most Colonial Theatre—Boston is anxiously awaiting the re-opening of the Colonial Theatre, Boston, on Monday, Aug. 1, when Charles Marks' big musical production entitled "Three Million Dollars" is going in for a limited run, starting on that date. "Three Million Dollars" is in three acts, written by Edgar Allan Woolf, with lyrics by David Kempner and music by Anatol Friedland, a young musician whose compositions are being favorably compared with the best of our American composers. Some of the musical gems are "Girls, Girls, Keep Your Figure," "When You're Swinging with Someone," "Little Dancin' Jumpin' Jigger," "Meet Me Down at Mammy Jany's," "Piddle-de-whiffle-de-whiffle-de-dee," "I'm Crazy to be Crazy Over Someone," "Glee a Girl Bonbons" and "My Little Havana Maid." The electrical cooling plant of the Colonial Theatre has been tested and the result is that the theatre is 20 degrees cooler than the beaches.

Keith's Theatre—Frank Lalor, the star of "Coming thro' the Rye," and a number of big musical productions, will make his vaudeville debut at Keith's on Monday surrounded by a splendid company in what is said to be one of the most amusing short musical comedies seen here in a long time. Mr. Lalor in himself is a whole show, and undoubtedly will always be remembered for his great work in "The Sultan of Sulu," one of the best of George Ade's musical pieces. He will be surrounded by an exceptionally strong bill, one feature of it being Bird Millman, unquestionably the greatest wire artiste now before the public. Miss Millman is as lively on the slack wire as Eva Tanguay is on the stage, doing cake walks and all sorts of dances, some of which seem incredible. There will be a number of new features, including Edwards, Murray and Tierney, in their splendid comedy called "A Night in a Bath-keller"; Felix Adler, the monologist; Kennedy, Nobody and Platt; Kelly and Kent; the Mozarts, in a sensational dancing specialty; the Misses Turner, the Southern singers, and banjoists, and Walker and Strum, in a European novelty.

American Music Hall—"Bingville Bugle," the great rural play by Newton Newkirk, founded on the comic feature of the Boston Sunday Post, is still occupying the boards at the American Music Hall, where it is being given an admirable presentation by the members of the Lindsay Morrison stock company. From present indications it is likely that the play will remain at least another week at this theatre and possibly two or three weeks more. The play itself proved a delightful surprise to the thousands of patrons who had closely followed Mr. Newkirk's work in the Boston Post. They all believed that it was to be an uproarious comedy; instead they found a delightful drama with a beautiful love story running through it and containing just enough comedy to raise it above the melodrama class. The Lindsay Morrison stock company are already rehearsing for presentation after "Bingville Bugle." Clyde Fitch's great comedy success, "Girls," the only time this piece played in Boston was at the Majestic Theatre for a two weeks' engagement when the very highest prices were charged for

SUBURBAN LIFE

Distinctly seasonable is Suburban Life for August, with its remarkable frontispiece showing a midsummer scene in the heart of the woods, and its wealth of other illustrations in wide variety. It is interesting to note the practical way in which this number appeals to people in suburban communities all over the country. The leading article is entitled "A Suburban Community Made to Order," and describes a unique but very successful experience in community building near Chicago. It is a story which ought to prove an inspiration to hundreds of people who contemplate moving suburbanward. An article entitled "Is the Shade Tree Doomed?" is sure to set many people thinking seriously about a subject which has too long been overlooked; already the noble elms of New England are on the point of extinction. "Living Out-of-Doors in California" is an interesting practical article about the experiences of a family in modest circumstances, who are thoroughly enjoying their suburban home. "When You Drive Your Own Motor Car" will make a strong appeal to the amateur motorist, and an article on "Bulbs to Plant in the Fall" will prove of no little value to the lover of flowers, both indoors and out. "An Unconventional Country Home" shows how it is possible to have nearly all of the conveniences of the city home, although one may be four miles from a railroad station. "Two Pet Porcupines" is an entertaining and highly amusing nature article by Ernest Harold Baynes. There are several articles in this number dealing with the furnishing of the home, among them being "The Interior of the Modest Home" and "Flanders Furniture and Its New Popularity." Jason Rogers continues his interesting articles on practical golf, while several columns are devoted to the suburban household, the vacation home, the month's garden work and similar subjects.

admission. Mr. Morrison will present it at his same popular summer prices.

NORUMBEGA PARK

Some remarkable records have been made at Norumbega Park, both in the matter of general attendances in the park and capacity audiences in the theatre, and this year with a new theatre which seats a thousand more than the theatre which was destroyed by fire last season it has been crowded night after night. A few weeks ago when a musical comedy was the attraction the park did the biggest business in its history, and this week with another Matthew Ott musical comedy even that record bids fair to be surpassed. And now the management comes forward and says that notwithstanding all this the arrangements are all made for a vaudeville bill the coming week, beginning Monday, Aug. 1, that will eclipse in drawing powers anything hitherto seen in the park. Heading the list are those notable vaudeville headliners, Lew Bloom and Jane Cooper, who form such a clever team for the exploitation of mirth-provoking stunts in singing, dancing and comedy. Another strong feature will be the Millar Musical Four, a troupe that is as notable for its excellent music as for the variety and novelty of the instruments they play. Then there will be Hoey and Mozar, that funny pair of entertainers. Nothing more need be said. They are great favorites at Norumbega. Still keeping up the list of headliners there will be the four Sullivan's, a famous singing and dancing quartet. And then as the greatest novelty in vaudeville there will be Bugoes and Clara with their Wild West show specialties, including the most wonderful lariat throwing the world has ever seen.

The Midget Baseball League is now well started. The little boys are showing much interest in this league.

NEWSPAPER EDITING

Editing a newspaper in some respects is a good deal like preaching the gospel—truth must be presented in the form of generalities or some fellow will get hit and howl. Few persons like truth, even in homeopathic doses, if it hits them. But, while preachers and editors are criticised for what they do say, no one thinks of giving them credit for what they do not say. Yet what they keep to themselves constitutes the major portion of what they know about people.

Very many people harbor the belief that newspapers are eager to publish derogatory things. It's a mistake. There isn't a newspaper that could not spring a sensation in the community at any time by merely telling what it knows. There is not a newspaper that does not keep under the lock of secrecy scores of derogatory things which never meet the public eye or reach the public ear. Deciding what not to print is the most troublesome part of newspaper work.

How many good stories are suppressed for innocent relatives and for the public good nobody outside a newspaper office has any idea of.

In some instances he who files into a passion because a newspaper prints something about him which he considers uncomplimentary has every reason to feel profoundly grateful to the newspaper for publishing so little of what it knows about him. And oftentimes the loudest bluffer is the most vulnerable to attack. A big noise is often a device employed to cover trepidation.

Newspapers put up with more bluffing than any other agency would endure. It is not because they lack courage; it is because they are unwilling to use their power to destroy or ruin unless the interests of society imperatively demand it.

It might be well for some people to reflect upon these truths and in silent gratitude accept mild admonition lest worse befall them.—Conneaut News Herald.

ELECTRIC COOKING

Benjamin Franklin, one of the pioneer investigators of electricity, as early as 1769 foresaw the advantages of modern electric cooking. This was about the time Franklin drew electricity from the clouds with his famous kite and key. In a humorous description of his experiments written by him in that year, Franklin said, "a turkey will be killed by the electric shock and roasted over the electric jack." Of course this article was supposed to be very funny at that time, but it is a very common practice to roast turkeys in electric ovens these days.

There can be no question as to the superiority of electric cooking over any other method. The heat is localized and concentrated where wanted and none of it is wasted in useless radiation. Among other features electric cooking possesses the following undeniable advantages:

No heat is wasted in going up a flue or passing into the air around the appliance.

When the heat is no longer needed the current can be turned off and again no waste occurs.

Heat can be obtained at a moment's notice—no waiting for a fire to get started.

The cooking apparatus is portable and can be moved from one room to another as it is convenient.

PARAGON PARK

Paragon Park—It is doubtful if New England has ever had a park where the trip there and back and the attractions within its gates combined such an altogether delightful variety of sights and amusements as Paragon Park and the Palm Garden at Nantasket Beach. In the first place, the harbor trip to Nantasket on the fine steamers passing the principal forts and points of interest, is a whole outing in itself. Then there is the fine beach, a glimpse of which suffices whole on the way to reach Paragon Park. This is where the crowds are. All is hustle and bustle, joyous, festive and gay. At every turn is some new amusement. Many of the attractions are free. Some require a slight additional expenditure, but they are so worth while seeing and the patron is provided with so much free amusement in the way of the band and orchestral concerts, the big free circus acts, the bamboo slide, the sand bumps, the statuary electric fountain, Japanese village, the water fowl on the Lagoon, fireworks every Wednesday and Saturday night, etc., that the extra cost is not regretted. The chief trouble is that Manager Dodge has provided so many free attractions that if one sees them all and takes adequate time to enjoy the famous cuisine and wine list of the Palm Garden there is little time left for seeing everything else. The free circus acts are all expensive features for the management. Most parks would consider one or two of them enough for free features, but here are seen La Diva Venus, the Parisienne diving sensation from Ostend; the Stanleys, in wonderful feats of strength; Speedy, the world's most famous high diver; Demon, in his flaming slide for life from the top of the electric tower, hanging by his teeth; and Aroza, in balloon ascensions and triple parachute drops.

MISS SIMPSON DEAD.

—Miss Eunice J. Simpson, a resident on Hovey street for many years, died suddenly Wednesday at her summer home at Sullivan, Me. She was a former teacher in the Boston schools, was an attendant at Channing Church and a member of several societies. She is survived by two brothers, Messrs G. Fred and Joseph B. Simpson of Newton. Funeral services were held today at the Simpson home at Sullivan, Me., in charge of Rev. A. L. Hudson.

SERVICE IN BANKING

This Company makes a special point of the service it renders to its customers. The institution is big enough to be strong and not too big to give personal attention to the accounts placed in its hands.

Located near South Station, our banking rooms are very handy for suburban people desiring to do their banking with a good city institution. Its location is also such as to be convenient for business houses and individuals engaged in the shoe, leather and textile trades.

We place a splendid banking equipment at your service and solicit from you the handling of at least a part of your banking business.

It has been reported that the remains of Mr. Kenneth Archibald have been found in the Sierra Nevada mountains, where he was travelling when he met his death. Mr. Archibald was the son of Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Archibald of Centre street.

Box 7 was rung in for a slight fire in the chimney of the house occupied by Mrs. A. C. Dothart of Beacon street yesterday morning. Upon the arrival of the apparatus the flames were quickly extinguished before any serious damage was done.

The police were notified Friday evening that a New York Central local train, bound toward Riverside, had been stoned, presumably by boys, as it was passing under the bridge at Langley road. A stone crashed through a window, but no one was injured.

The death of Mrs. M. H. Oltham occurred at her home on Trowbridge street yesterday afternoon after a lingering illness of several months. She is survived by a husband, one son and a daughter. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from her late home.

The last meeting of the union services which are being held at the First Church will be conducted next Sunday morning. The Rev. E. A. Noyes will preach. The following Sunday the services will be at the Methodist Church. The Rev. Dr. Charles M. Melden will officiate.

Recipes For Invisible Ink.

The following are the ingredients of the most common invisible inks: Sulphate of copper and an ammoniac, equal parts, dissolved in water; writes colorless, but turns yellow when heated. Onion juice, like the last. A weak infusion of galls; turns black when moistened with weak copperas water. A weak solution of sulphate of iron; turns blue when moistened with a weak solution of prussiate of potash and black with infusion of galls. The diluted solutions of nitrate of silver and terebithine of gold; darken when exposed to the sunlight. Aqua fortis, spirits of salt, oil of vitriol, common salt or saltpeter, dissolved in a large quantity of water; turns yellow or brown when heated. Solution of nitromuriate of cobalt; turns green when heated and disappears on cooling. Solution of acetate of cobalt to which a little ether has been added; becomes rose colored when heated and disappears on cooling.

Knew the Wrong Man.

It was with a good deal of confidence that he walked up to the magistrate's desk in a Philadelphia station notwithstanding the fact that a policeman had a firm hold on both sleeves. He waited quietly till one of the policemen made the accusation of "drunk and disorderly" and then asked the magistrate if he might speak.

"Yes," replied the magistrate. "What have you to say?"

"Well, judge, I was drunk last night, but it does not often happen. I have lived in this ward nearly all my life, and any one can tell you that."

"Oh, lived here all your life, have you? Do you know any one in the ward that can speak for you?" asked the magistrate.

"Yes," said the prisoner, "I know — He can tell you all about me."

"You know him, do you? Well, so do I. Ten days," was the result.

Bull Baiting.

Although bull baiting was a cruel pastime, it was also a fulfilling of the law, for formerly no butcher was allowed to offer for sale the flesh of any bull that had not been baited. The goading of the animal in a fury was supposed to have some influence on the flesh. In a similar belief the flesh of a hunted hare was thought to be superior in flavor to that of one that had been shot, and a present of "a hunted hare" was considered to be a special compliment.

In the records of the corporation of Leicester, England, the following order appears: "At a common hall, held on Thursday before St. Simon and St. Jude, 1467, no butcher to kill a bull till baited." At Winchester it was ordered (reign of Henry VIII.) "that from henceforth they shall be no butchers set before any mayor's door to bait any bull, but only at the bull-rings within the said city."

Gender of the Sword.

Among the many curious notions obtaining among the different races using the sword may be noted the gender of the weapon. In the north of Europe it was either masculine, as in Britain, or neuter, as in Germany, while in the south it was uniformly feminine. Its force and cruelty appealed to the northern mind. Its grace and elegance attracted the warriors of the sunny south. It typified to the one strength, to the other dignity.

What He Saved.

CATCHING LOBSTERS

An invitation the past week to accompany one of the men engaged in catching lobsters promised so much that it was gladly accepted.

Rubbing the sleep out of my eyes at the unusual hour of 3 o'clock in the morning, and after swallowing a hasty breakfast, I fully enjoyed the beauty of the morning an hour before sunrise. The sky in the east was of pale pink and light blue with a very brilliant morning star hanging low in the eastern heavens. Overhead the moon shone with considerable light, although it was in its last quarter.

A short walk to the shore and a short row out to the up-to-date motor boat with which my friend transacted his business, began the day's work. I found that catching lobsters was a matter of considerable detail, requiring careful forethought and preparation. For upwards of an hour there was hard work in getting the bait ready to be placed in the traps after they had been pulled. The bait for lobsters must be dead fish, and the more ancient the flavor the better the lobsters like it. The result is not pleasant for a spectator, even on a beautiful July morning. The bait had all been caught the day previous, and had lain under the hot afternoon sun and all night before we reached it. It consisted of cutters, sculpins and a large number of skates of various sizes, from one about eight inches in diameter to great, huge fellows half as large as an ordinary desk. The skates had to be cut up into pieces about the size of an ordinary book, and all this preparation took so much time that the sun showed itself above the water line before we were ready to move.

It was a pretty sight to see the red edge of the sun show itself above the water and then gradually rise until it was so high and so brilliant as to pain the eye. By this time my friend had the engine working, and the chug-chug of the motor announced that we were ready to start.

A cunner pot was first visited with the purpose of baiting, in order to prepare for the next day's work. A cunner pot is similar to a lobster pot with the exception that it has one closed end and two funnel-shaped arrangements of net in sequence at the opposite end. The bait for cunners are crabs, the shell being broken under the heel of a boot, and six or eight being thrown into each compartment of the cunner pots. It was allowed to sink, and we were actually on our way for lobsters.

My friend was an up-to-date lobster man, and had a string of 80 pots all along the Plymouth shore. Lobsters frequent only rocky bottoms and for several miles the rocky strip was but a few hundred feet in width, on which the four men who were in the business in this locality placed their pots at frequent intervals. Each lobster man has a colored wooden buoy attached to his pots.

A lobster pot, as almost everyone knows, is a half circular arrangement of wooden laths a little over three feet in length, and 15 or 16 inches in height at the centre. At each end is a funnel-shaped arrangement of netting with an opening about four inches in diameter. Half-way between these and hanging from centre of the pot is an iron hook, on which the bait is placed. Several of the laths are arranged to act like a door, so that the trap can be baited and its contents removed. Each pot has 16 fathoms or 96 feet of rope with a buoy attached to the end of it. The pulling of the trap consists in catching the floating buoy with a gaff as the boat comes up to it. The rope is then pulled in until the pot is dragged to the surface and onto the gunwale of the boat. As the water pours out of the pot there is considerable interest for the spectator as well as for the lobster man to see what has been captured during the past 24 hours. It is pretty safe to predict anywhere from one to six crabs, possibly a sculpin or two, usually one or more lobsters of varying sizes, and the interest continues until the lobsters have been taken from the pot, placed on the measuring board to see if they reach the legal length of nine inches, and then thrown into the box or into the sea as the measurement is over or under that figure.

After the lobsters and crabs have been removed from the pot it is freshly baited and frequently laid again in practically the same spot where it was taken, although in many instances it is placed in the bow of the boat and carried to a place which the lobster man thinks is more favorable for the shell fish.

Lobster pots are usually placed in rows or "strings," as they are called, of anywhere from one to a dozen pots, about 100 yards apart. They are placed in double strings, in order that one set may be pulled as the boat goes in one direction, and the other string pulled as the boat returns, thus saving time as well as distance.

The pulling of 80 lobster pots, removing the contents, and rebaiting, consumes considerable time, and it was well into the morning before we stopped for a welcome lunch of bread and butter. Returning to near our anchorage, we pulled the cunner pot which had been baited when we first started out. When this pot came to the surface it seemed fairly boiling with fish, and we took out 89 large cunners before rebaiting with crabs.

After placing the cunner pot again into the water, we went spearing for sculpins for additional bait for the morrow. The lobster man stopped his engine, allowed the boat to drift slowly in anywhere from six to 15 feet of water, and stood in the bow with a long, wooden handled spear. Whenever he saw a fish swimming about in the water beneath, he would quickly spear it and bring it into the boat. In a surprisingly short space of time 30 or 40 sculpins were added to the bait box. It was most interesting to watch the spearing of the sculpins. The fish appear merely as a round, dark blotch on the sand. But it was rarely that my friend missed his aim, and frequently he speared at apparently vacant places in the sea bottom and brought up a sculpin squirming at the end of the spear.

After stopping work with the spear we again pulled the cunner pot in less than half an hour after it had been rebaited, and took 46 more cunners which had been caught in that brief space of time.

In the meantime the lobsters which we had taken from the pot had been transferred to the car. This was a wooden box made of two-inch timber, is six feet in length, four feet in width and one foot in depth, attached to a mooring and floating on top of the water. Inside there are two compartments, one for lobsters measuring between nine and ten and a half inches, the other for lobsters larger than ten and one-half inches. Out of the 60 lobsters which we had taken that day, and which were considered a fair catch, 13 were over the ten and one-half inch length and were worth 20 cents each, while the others were worth 12 cents each.

The lobsters are taken from the cars every two or three days by a schooner, which comes from Boston for the purpose, and which pays for them on the spot.

Another interesting experience of the morning was the pulling of the trawl. This was a half-mile of fishing line to which short lines were attached every nine feet. It was anchored at one end with a buoy to mark the anchor, and a cask floating on the water indicated the further end. Unfortunately, the trawl had been parted, and we had considerable work that morning in straightening it out. In fact, part of it was never straightened out.

As we pulled in the trawl it was interesting to see what had been caught on the different lines as they came into sight. Most of the catch were skates of various sizes, several of them being very large and heavy and requiring the assistance of the gaff to pull them into the boat. As the trawl had been parted, the struggles of the fish had made it bunch into many tangles and twists. However, by cutting out the worst portions, of the tangle, we were able to put out about half of the original trawl before we left, taking ashore the tangled line and fish in one puzzling mess.

The lobster season extends from April till November, with several weeks' scarcity in June, while the lobster seeks deeper waters in order to shed its shell and grow a new one. This is done each year until the shell fish becomes five or six years of age, when it does not grow a new shell so frequently. A lobster of the legal length is supposed to be from three to four years of age, although the fact is not definitely verified.

While pulling lobster pots on a pleasant morning in July is a pleasant diversion, it should be remembered that except in very heavy weather the lobster man makes his rounds, regardless of sun or rain, and that even with a well equipped motor boat there are many days when it is hard work and the results a gamble.

Save colds and coals by heating with modern apparatus and by modern methods. The "WINCHESTER" steam or hot water heater has a record unsurpassed for results. Made by Smith & Thayer Co., 236 Congress street, Boston, Mass.

SUNDAY ON THE RIVER.

The Charles River was a place of recreation for a typical crowd of canoeists last Sunday, the gathering being one of the largest that has been seen on the river this season. In the early afternoon a downpour that did not last more than five minutes drove hundreds to shelter, but the skies soon cleared.

In the afternoon there was a band concert on Fox Island that attracted a great throng, including many who enjoyed the music from the banks. The regular meeting under the direction of the Boston Y. M. C. A. was held in the open-air theatre at Norumbega Park. The speaker was Rev. James J. Dunlop pastor of the Roxbury Presbyterian Church. A large chorus sang, assisted by Miss Helen Claude, whistling soloist.

Three accidents were reported during the day. A couple tipped over while paddling beneath one of the arches of Weston bridge. Both set up loud screams for assistance, but the young man soon found that the water was barely up to his waist and he quitted his companion until a canoeist got them to shore. Another young man fell overboard near the "stone house" and a third got his feet wet near the Norumbega boathouse.

POWERS-HAYNES.

Miss Elizabeth E. Haynes and Dr. Maurice Ray Powers of Clemson College, South Carolina, were married on Thursday evening at the home of the bride, 47 Washington park, Newtonville, by Rev. E. W. Virgin of Dedham. Miss Haynes is the daughter of Henry M. Haynes and Hattie G. Haynes, who formerly resided in Saxtonville, and her mother was the popular organist of the Methodist Church where the officiating clergyman was the pastor. The married couple will reside at Clemson College, South Carolina.

Today they are invited to a reception given by Lady Burnham-Lawrence in behalf of the British League of Universal Women. They reach Berlin next week.

We are showing some of the coolest and daintiest materials for summer bed-room curtains that we have ever had. Makes you feel delightfully comfortable just to look at them, and not the least cheerful part of them is the price. You can pay whatever you want to, but some of the prettiest kinds are the least expensive; and they are serviceable too.

An Anecdote of General Jackson.

General Jackson while on one of his journeys to Tennessee about the time of the nullification excitement arrived at a Virginia village in a very impetuous state of mind, both with public affairs and with the state of the roads. The president was entertained as a guest at the house of a lady in the village, and, although he tried to be polite, the state of vexation which he was in affected him visibly.

His hostess at the supper table was much alarmed to see the general swallowing with great rapidity a cup of almost boiling hot tea.

"Wait—wait, general!" exclaimed the lady. "Let me give you some cold water."

"No, thank you, ma'am," said the general, continuing to drink.

"But I don't see how you can drink that boiling hot tea without scalding yourself."

"No wonder you can't, ma'am," said Jackson. "I am scalding myself."

"But, sir, why do you?"

"Good gracious, ma'am!" exclaimed the general. "Don't you see that I want to scald myself?"

The lady refrained from making any further suggestions as to her distinguished guest's comfort.

Mercury Laden Swords.

Inserting running mercury in the backs of swords was a comparatively common practice among the Italian, French and Spanish swordmakers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, but it was more of a fancy than anything else, for it never came into general use. It was not, of course, used for rapiers or the lighter kind of swords, but for the heavier cutting swords. The method was to cast the blade rather broader at the back than usual, with a hollow running down it.

This was half filled with quicksilver and sealed up. The idea was that when a blow was struck with such a sword the quicksilver would fly to the point and so increase the weight of the blow. This theoretical advantage, however, did not at all counterbalance the general clumsiness of the weapon and its unhandiness in guarding, and so the mercurial swords, as they were called, from which their ingenious inventor hoped so much, were rather military curiosities than practical successes.

Tale of Two Fish.

A story is related of a Manchester fisherman who once tried to lure the dainty trout from some of the nearby brooks. The fisherman did not get a bite in the brooks. He drove back to Manchester rather disheartened and went to a restaurant to get something to eat.

He asked the restaurant keeper if he had any trout and received an affirmative reply. He ordered some of the trout for his supper and then told the proprietor that he might put two or three of the uncooked fish in his fish basket out at the door, as he didn't care to go home and receive the railing of his friends. The proprietor of the restaurant told one of the clerks to carry out the order, and it was supposed to have been done faithfully.

But the clerk was not very alert, and when the fisherman got home and opened up the fish basket to his astonished wife there reposed two fine salt mackerel, and the fisherman has not got through explaining yet—Manchester Union.

A Little Too Much.

"A wife has a right to expect much of her husband," remarked the philosophically inclined person amusingly.

"Yes, I suppose she has," replied the meek appearing man with wilted looking whiskers. "I suppose she has, but when she expects him to live up, steadily and without swerving, to the motto on her first husband's tombstone I somehow think she is expecting more than she really ought to expect from a common, everyday, earthly man."

Her Nationality.

When small Sigrid made her first appearance in an American school, says Harper's Magazine, she was asked the usual puzzling questions, one of which was:

"What is your nationality, Sigrid?"

"Sigrid tossed her flaxen braids. 'I'm an American of Norwegian design,' she said promptly.

Discretion.

"You say you left the house this morning and then went back. Don't you know that's unlucky?"

"It would have been a blundered sight unluckier for me if I hadn't gone back."

"Why so?"

"My wife called me."—Lippincott's Magazine.

A Family Affair.

Cassey's wife was at the hospital, where she had undergone a serious operation a few days before.

Mrs. Kelley called to inquire as to Mrs. Cassey's condition.

"Is she resting quietly?" Mrs. Kelley asked.

"No, but I am," said Cassey.—Exchange.

His Earthly Task.

"Do you think the deacon will be entirely happy in the hereafter?"

"Why not?"

"I fear the good man will feel lonely with no church mortgage to lift."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Felt Good.

"Don't you honestly believe there is more good than evil in the world?"

"Ah! You've found a dollar you didn't know you had, haven't you?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

It takes a strong man to be mean. When I give a tip 'tis not because I want to, but because I'm afraid of what the waiter 'll think.—Mr. Dooley.

The Color of Water.

The waters of the seas, lakes, rivers and streams in general are very often colored. For instance, the water of the Mediterranean sea is not colorless, but green-blue; also there is a brilliant red river in South America. The St. Lawrence, in Canada, is pale green and the Ottawa golden brown. Where these two rivers meet quite frequently whole broad patches remain unmixt.

Here is a gold patch and there a green one. Otherwise than this water reflects the colors of its surroundings, and a so called "Emerald pool" in the White mountains is green because the birches on its borders in early summer are brilliant green. The Blue grotto, in Capri, Italy, shows a remarkably rich color, near to green-blue, because all the light received in that grotto comes through the water at its entrance, and, as has been said, the Mediterranean is green-blue. The water of the geysers in the Yellowstone park are also colored by natural mineral dyes. You can dye your own glass of water by a piece of the bloodroot plant. Try it. That will be a vegetable dye.—St. Nicholas.

Paderewski's Distinction.

There was a day when Paderewski's English was not fluent. One evening before a choice company in his elegant apartments in New York he was showing a few highly flattered callers how to do this, that and 'tother on the keys of his grand piano, explaining in bad English as he went. Of course the man was present who is ever ready to supply a word when a speaker hesitates. The famous artist, landing with both hands as if he had just dropped from the ceiling, exclaimed, "Harmony!" All applauded the perfect concord. He shot down again like a trippammer and would have exclaimed again, but the word refused to come. "What you call—er—er—" "Discord," put in the supplier of words. Paderewski's hair stood straight out, and his face was white and red with anger. Jumping up from the stool, he sputtered: "Deescort! Nol With me a deescort is impossible!" He would not be persuaded to touch the instrument again that night. The unintentional insult struck deep.

No Sense of Humor.

"Fog Eye" Smith of northwest Wyoming bore an appalling facade. His style of beauty was a blight. Depending upon his horrible exterior, he was in the habit of trying to awe newcomers. On one occasion, affecting some displeasure at the manner in which a pallid stranger watered his liquor, Mr. Smith announced, frowning, that unless he detected immediate amendment he would send the neophyte home in a market basket. "Which I'll sure tear you up a whole lot," said Fog Eye. Half an hour later Mr. Fog Eye was found groping about on the floor under the poker table hunting for his glass eye and muttering to himself. The stranger asked with some evidence of impatience what new line of sentiments Mr. Smith was now harboring. That injured resident, glaring malevolently from beneath the furniture, replied, "Which I sure do hate a man with no sense of humor."—Argonaut.

Origin of "Watered Stock."

The expression "watered stock," which describes so well the expansion of the stock of a company beyond the value of the property, originated, it is said, in connection with Daniel Drew, who was once the wealthiest and most unique manipulator in Wall street. Drew had been a drover in his younger days, and it was said of him that before selling his cattle in the market he would first give them large quantities of salt to make them thirsty and then provide them with all the water they could drink. In this way their weight was greatly increased, and the purchaser was buying "watered stock."

Hypocrites.

"I despise a hypocrite," says Boggs. "So do I," says Clogs. "Now, take Knoggs, for example. He's the biggest hypocrite on earth. I despise that man."

"But you appear to be his best friend."

"Oh, yes. I try to appear friendly toward him. It pays better in the end."

The Final Transaction.

"Father," said little Hullo, "what is the ultimate consumer?"

"He is the last person, my son, that an article reaches in its commercial existence."

"I know what you mean. He's a man who goes into a hotel and orders chicken hash."—Washington Star.

Queer Men.

"Some men are so queer!"

"And you are going to tell me of one particularly queer one."

"Yes. It's Mr. Barberton. His wife used to beg him for nickels and dimes, and now he's cheerfully paying her a hundred a week for alimony."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Fearless.

"Whitcomb is an independent thinker."

"He is?"

"Yes; he even dares to say the clock in the railroad station is wrong."—Buffalo Express.

Dying to Tell.

"Jack, Dolly told me the most exciting secret and made me swear never to tell a living soul."

"Well, hurry up with it. I'm late for the office now."

His Status.

"Well, say little man," inquired a visitor pleasantly, "who are you?"

"I'm the baby's brother," was the ingenious reply.—Truth Seeker.

Tragic Joking.

Oswald's friends were always on the lookout for some ruse. He once notified them that on New Year's day he should get the best of them all in some joke, and New Year's morning each received this notice, "Remember." They were on their guard.

As they were leaving a house where they had breakfasted Oswald slipped on the steps and fell on his back on the sidewalk. His friends rushed to his assistance, but paused before they reached him.

"This is his ruse," some one said. Clearly the man who was so proud of his talent for mimicry was bent on deceiving them all into thinking him a dying man, for he lay there motionless, his face drawn and twisted as if with terrible pain.

His friends stood around and made jokes and puns and hummed lines of comic songs, assuring him all the while that they were not deceived by his acting. At last he gave a hoarse, mournful cry, looked at them sadly and then ceased to moan or writhe. In a never to be forgotten moment of horror and sorrow his friends realized that Oswald was dead.—"Souvenirs d'un Vieux Libraire."

Caught the Old Sailor.

It was a clever lawyer in a Boston court who took advantage of the nautical knowledge he possessed to work upon the mind of a jurymen who did not seem to show much comprehension of a case of suing a street railway for damages.

The dull member was an old sailor, who, though doubtless very keen of perception along some lines, was nevertheless rather slow in his understanding of the points involved in the case being tried, says the New York Journal. The lawyer noticed this and made his strike with this particular man. Approaching the jury box, he addressed himself to this one jurymen and said:

"Mr. Jurymen, I will tell you how it happened. The plaintiff was in command of the outward bound open car and stood in her starboard channel. Along came the inward bound closed car, and just as their bows met she jumped the track, sheered to port and knocked the plaintiff off and ran over him."

The sailor was all attention after this version of the affair and joined in a $5,000 verdict for the injured man.

The Clinching Argument.

A young man representing a well known make of motorcar had called, discussed intelligently the points of the automobile he was endeavoring to sell, had given a flawless demonstration—

But the prospective amateur motorist before mortgaging his house still wanted to be thoroughly convinced, and so he said: "What you say about your car may be all right. The engine runs very nicely, and it looks good to me, but tell me one thing—have you ever sold any of these cars to your own personal friends?"

The salesman smiled. "Have I? Why, three months ago I was engaged to a girl, and I sold one of these identical cars to my prospective father-in-law."

"Did you marry the girl?"

"Yes, indeed! I've now got the girl, a contented father-in-law and an enthusiastic customer as well."

He made the sale.—Life.

Mules and Kindness.

"In the fifteen years that I have been connected with societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals in this and other cities I never have received a complaint alleging cruelty to a mule," said the humane looking man. "That immunity of mules from harsh treatment is an interesting question. Why are they immune? There are plenty of mules, even in New York. Does nobody beat them? Does nobody underfeed them? If not, why not? Does a mule show such a decided ability for taking care of himself that his owner is afraid to abuse him, or do men beat mules and escape punishment because the persons who witness the beating think it is only a mule and not worth bothering about? What is the explanation of that phase of the mule question anyhow?"—New York Press.

To Rest His Eyes.

The people who quit reading "Just to rest their eyes" might take a hint by inference from the reply made by an old illiterate. A passing man found him apparently deeply interested in a paper.

On looking close it became apparent that his paper was upside down, and he was asked forthwith why he held it thus.

His reply almost knocked the questioner out. It was:

"Just to rest my eyes!"

A Reversal.

"I suppose you talked a lot of nonsense to your wife before you were married."

"Yes," answered Mr. Meekton. "Before we were married she thought my nonsense sensible. Now when I try to talk sense she thinks it's nonsense."—Exchange.

Inspiring Air.

He—So you think married life ought to be one grand, sweet song? She—Yes. He—And what air would you prefer for this matrimonial song? She—A millionaire!

Reciprocal Help.

Doctor—Well, my good woman, what do you want? Beggar—A quarter, doctor. Give me a quarter and I'll tell everybody that you helped me.

Death is the golden key that opens the palace of eternity.—Milton.

Efforts are being made in some quarters to prejudice the public by insinuating that the purchase and use of automobiles by our city officials has created such a deficit in the appropriations as to require a material reduction in the force of city laborers.
As a matter of fact, it has been the policy of the city to give the officials having charge of outdoor work the best facilities possible for that purpose, and it has been proved that more and better work can be done by high salaried and conscientious men in this manner. These automobiles, many of which have been in use for some time, were in each instance charged to the appropriation made for the different departments, so that only the autos purchased by the street department are made a charge to the appropriations for maintenance of streets, dust laying, and sewer construction and maintenance, from which the bulk of the labor force is paid. The appropriations for these purposes have had extraordinary calls the present year, and a large amount of work has been done in the early part of the season instead of being spread over the entire working period of the year as formerly. This has necessitated a reduction at the present time, if the appropriations are to last for the whole year, and Street Commissioner Ross has made arrangements for the employment of the men suspended, by a contractor in charge of the work for the metropolitan water works. There is absolutely no call for either a criticism of the use of automobiles nor for lack of work for all city employees.

While there are no definite figures announced by the postoffice department, enough is known to state that the large reduction in the usual deficit for the past year has been accomplished without changing the postal rates on second class matter so strenuously advocated by President Taft and the postmaster-general.
While the amount of second class matter has increased slightly, the deficit has been cut down more than 50 per cent.

Evidence continues to multiply that in Governor Draper the state has an executive amply qualified to administer its affairs to the highest advantage. The Governor made a ten strike in arranging the lease of the Commonwealth pier to the New Haven railroad at the price of $70,000 annually. Massachusetts ought to acknowledge his services with a handsome vote next November.

A strong effort should be made by the Republican city committee to induce hundreds of fine men of this city to take out naturalization papers.
In many cases it is simply a case of neglect, and a little intelligent work in this direction would materially aid the party.

The tax rate for 1910 which will probably be announced early next week will undoubtedly be considerably larger than last year's rate of $18.20.
Let us hope that the assessors have been unusually vigilant.

SEWALL—COOKE.

A quiet home wedding took place
Wednesday afternoon at the home of Ferdinand E. Cooke, Newton Centre.
When his daughter, Miss Helen Lindsey Cooke, became the bride of Karl Harris Sewall, son of Mrs. Benjamin
R. Sewall of Waltham.

Only the immediate relatives witnessed the ceremony, which was performed at 4 o'clock by Rev. Mr. Levy of the Newton Centre Baptist Church.
The double ring service of the Episcopal Church was used. The bride was gown in a travelling costume.

Mr. Sewall is a well known and popular young man of Waltham, and for a time was employed in the office of the Boston Manufacturing Company, later entering the employ of the Wellington, Sears Co., Boston. After several years' service he was transferred to the Chicago office. The bridal trip will embrace Buffalo and the Great Lakes, thence to Chicago, their future home.

The bride is a popular young lady of Newton Centre, and was also employed in the Boston office of the Wellington, Sears Co.

They were the recipients of many presents.

POLICE NOTES.

Four young men who live in West
Newton were arrested in a field off River street early Sunday morning and charged with disturbance. They had been in the place since midnight drinking and created such an uproar that word was sent to the police.

There was some difficulty in locating them in the darkness, but finally Patrolman Joseph Seaver came across the celebration and arrested the quarter. All had bottles of liquor in their pockets and on the way to headquarters one of them attempted to throw away a full quart bottle, but the officer found it and took it along as evidence.

Those arrested were William H. Ryan of Auburndale avenue, Timothy J.
Bowler of Murray road, John J. Mc-Carthy of Auburndale avenue and Henry J. Fitzpatrick of Derby street.
All secured bail. In court Monday morning Ryan and Bowler were fined $10 and McCarthy and Fitzpatrick $3 each.

Quality in Bakery Construction

Have you ever been in an ordinary bakery? What was your impression?

Can you picture a three story brick building, windows on all four sides; the inside walls of white enamel brick; all the wood-work painted enamel white;
hard wood floors clean as wax?

This is our model bakery where cleanliness reigns supreme.

A Quick Witted Doctor.

A French surgeon who was once attending a sultan resorted to an expedient which, although efficacious, might have resulted in his own death. He had been commissioned to bleed the grand seignior and either through timidity or nervousness had met with an awkward accident. The point of the lancet broke off in the vein, and the blood would not flow. That point must be got out somehow. Without stopping to consider the consequences to himself, the surgeon gave his highness a violent slap in the face. This produced the desired effect, for surprise and indignation put the blood into violent circulation. The vein bled freely, and the lancet point came out. The bystanders were about to lay hands on the surgeon when he said, "First let me finish the operation and bandage the wound." This done, he threw himself at the feet of the sultan and explained his action. The sultan not only pardoned him, but gave him a handsome reward for keeping his wits about him in a critical moment.

A Knockout.

A young lawyer was engaged in a case when a witness was put in the box to testify to the reputation of the place in question. This witness in answer to a query as to the reputation of the place replied, "A poor shop." The lawyer inquired, "You say it has the reputation of being a 'poor shop'?" "Yes, sir." "Whom did you hear say it was a 'poor shop'?" "The witness did not recollect any one he had heard say so." "What!" said the lawyer. "You have sworn this place has the reputation of being a poor shop and yet cannot tell of any one you have ever heard say so?" The witness was staggered for a moment at the words of the lawyer. The lawyer was feeling triumphant when the witness gathered himself together and quietly remarked, addressing the lawyer: "Well, you have the reputation of being a poor lawyer, but I have never heard any one say so."

Romance of an Inkstand.

Pens and furniture used in the signing of famous treaties and documents recall Archibald Forbes' experience after Sedan. After witnessing Napoleon's interview with Bismarck at a wayside cottage and his subsequent surrender Forbes and a fellow war correspondent slept at the chateau which the fallen emperor had occupied the night before. The bedroom was just as Napoleon had left it and by the bed the open book which he had read himself to sleep. It was Lytton's "Last of the Barons." Sitting at the adjoining writing table, Forbes wrote his dispatch, while his companion gnawed at a ham bone, their sole remainder of food. Irrate at the little eating it furnished, he flung it across the room and upset the inkstand into which Forbes was dipping. When Forbes revisited the chateau a month or so later the inkstand was polished out as caused by Napoleon's rage on learning the German terms of peace.—London Chronicle.

The Order Pleased the Cook.

The following story is told on a missionary of the China inland mission, a bachelor keeping house for himself in the southern part of China: One morning in ordering his dinner he wished to tell his cook to buy a chicken. Instead of saying "ye" for chicken he exclaimed the word, saying, "Buy me a 'che.'" His cook thought that was an eminently proper command and went about his marketing in high good humor. At noon the missionary found no chicken cooked—in fact, no dinner at all, for his cook had not returned. About dark the man came back, saying: "This was not a good day for buying wives, and I have been all day looking for one, but at last I found one for you. She is rather old and not pretty, but you can have her cheap. I have promised $40 for her."

Browning.

Browning lent Lord Coleridge one of his works to read, and afterward, meeting the poet, the lord chief justice said to him: "What I could understand I heartily admired, and parts ought to be immortal. But as to much of it I really could not tell whether I admired it or not, because for the life of me I could not understand it." Browning replied, "If a reader of your caliber understands 10 per cent of what I write I think I ought to be content."

Exchange of Courtesies.

One of the keenest of journalists and wits, Moritz Gottlieb Saphir, had the better of the true stranger against whom he ran by accident at the corner of a street in Munich. "Heast!" cried the offended person without waiting for an apology. "Thank you," said the journalist, "and mine is Saphir."

The Thorn.

Caller—How pleased you must be to find that your new cook is a stayer! Hostess—My dear, don't mention it. She's a stayer, all right, but unfortunately she's not a cook.—Boston Transcript.

Cruel.

Jess—He said my face was a poem. Bess—It is like one of Browning's. Jess—How do you mean? Bess—Some of the lines are so deep.—Cleveland Leader.

Criticism often takes from the tree caterpillars and blossoms together.—Ritcher.

Four and Its Multiple of Ten.

The number four was anciently esteemed the most perfect of all, being the arithmetical mean between one and seven. Omah, the second caliph, said, "Four things come not back—the spoken word, the sped arrow, the past life, the neglected opportunity." In nature there are four seasons and the four points of the compass. Forty, a multiple of four by ten, is one of the sacred numbers. The probation of our first parents in the garden of Eden is supposed to have been forty years. The rain fell at the deluge forty days and nights, and the water remained on the earth forty days. The days of embalming the dead were forty. Solomon's temple was forty cubits long. In it were ten layers, each four cubits long and containing forty baths. Moses was forty years old when he fled into the land of Midian, where he dwelt forty years. He was on Mount Sinai forty days and forty nights. The Israelites wandered in the wilderness forty years. The Saviour fasted forty days and nights before entering upon public life. The same time elapsed between the resurrection and the ascension.—Exchange.

How Roberts Won the Victoria Cross.

Roberts noted that a sower of the squadron with which he rode was in great danger from a sepooy with a fixed bayonet. The contest of sword against bayonet would have ended disastrously had not Roberts intervened and disposed of the bayonet. That was barely done when he noticed in the distance two sepoy fleeing with a standard. He galloped after the rebels and overtook them, and then he had a close fight for the possession of the standard. He cut down its chief bearer. While wrenching the staff from the man's grasp with both his hands the other sepooy turned his musket on him and fired. The muzzle was within a few inches of Roberts' person, and there would certainly have been an end of him had not the musket refused to go off. As it was, he rode away unhurt with the standard, and for those two courageous and gallant acts in close succession Roberts got the Victoria cross.—Cobden's "Life of Roberts."

The Cows of Muscat.

Muscat is famed as the hotbed of smugglers in the Persian gulf, the nearby desert tribes being regularly supplied with arms despite the efforts of the British patrol. But to the writer, reared on a Missouri farm, the odd antics of the cows of Muscat seemed a nothing sort of freakish. They actually eat fish. No grass grows, so the wily Arab teaches his family cow to subsist on dates and dried fish. The milk tastes queer to a foreigner, which is probably why the Arab likes it. He also claims it is richer and makes more butter, but most ridiculous of all is the deception practiced on cows when the calves are "weaned." A calfskin or sometimes a goat-skin is stuffed with rags and tied not far from where the mother cow is anchored. This effigy of her late lamented offspring soothes her nerves and keeps her from "going dry," according to Arabic tradition.—San Francisco Chronicle.

A Surprised Lion.

The man eating lions did not always get their own way. Five Sikh carpenters made a staging eight feet high, and on this they fixed their sleeping tent. Each night they ascended by means of a ladder, which they drew up after them. They were warned that it was not high enough, but were content to believe that God was all powerful. One night they left the edge of the ladder projecting beyond the end of the staging. A hungry man eater on the prowl observed this and, thinking he could not find a meal more conveniently elsewhere, determined to try how a carpenter tasted. Calculating his spring, he leaped lightly on to the projecting ladder, which, unfortunately for him, instantly tipped up and toppled over, both falling heavily to the ground. The lion bellowed; so did all the men, making for the nearest trees.—From "In the Grip of the Nyika," by Colonel J. H. P. Patterson.

A Test of Friendship.

A gentleman tried the following peculiar way of probing the ties of friendship. He sent letters to twenty-four intimate friends asking for a loan of a pound. Thirteen of the two dozen friends did not reply at all, five declined to lend the money, two promised to send it on the next day and did not do it, one sent his "last 10 shillings," and only three sent the full sum asked for. The suppliant and all the "friends" he had written to are well off.—London Mail.

A Pointer.

The Girl—You're not a bit like a lover. You never say pretty things. The Man—Didn't I say that you looked like a beautiful autumn leaf? The Girl—Well, don't autumn leaves want pressing?—Illustrated Hits.

His Bad Break.

"How did you enjoy the music?" "Oh, I applauded at the wrong time, as usual! Thought the orchestra tuning up was a classical number."—Kansas City Journal.

Thoughts.

Thoughts are much greater than things. They are vital forces and have endless effects. What you think today determines what you will be in years to come.

Easily Granted.

Tommy—Ma, can I have two pieces of pie this noon? Ma—Certainly, Tommy. Cut the piece you have in two.—Somerville Journal.
